I understand that you have expressed a preference that service of process upon this recently acquired domestic company be received by Canadian counsel. This is contrary to the procedure that we implemented a couple of years ago, whereby a corporate agent has been assigned as agent for service of process relative to all domestic entities affiliated with Enron Corp. in all states. Currently, that agent is NRAI.

There are two exceptions -- PGE and Limbach. Both of these companies requested and were granted exceptions to the SOP procedure for specific business needs.

Please provide me the basis for the requested exception as to the captioned company. Of course, we will make every effort to accommodate the specific business needs of this company. Also, please advise whether you or someone on your behalf has determined that the laws in each state in which the company is incorporated and does business permits SOP on a foreign individual.

Thanks.

Deb,

Attached is the file you requested. The consolidated report includes all of ENA Legal cost centers, except for 107062. As we have talked about before, I don't think that I am responsible for maintaining CC 107062 since it's part of EIM. Give me a call if you want to clarify on this issue. I am still working on the year-end report for 2000. I found that there were two different reports for August 2000, and I think that's where the problem lies. We're also moving this week, so please give me until the end of Monday to send you the file.

RE: Next Brazilian Subcommittee Meeting

Dear All,

Based on your responses our Next Brazilian Subcommittee Meeting will be held on Thursday, October 4, 2001 at 11:00 am New York time at ISDA. As usual, we will provide a call in number for people that are traveling or located abroad.

ISDA is considering a visit to Brazil of several days in order to hold meetings with the Central Bank as well as other regulators - NMC, e.g., market players, netting legislation contacts, lawyers working on master agreement development, and others in order to further the agenda of the Brazilian Subcommittee and to be able to prepare for the conference planned for Brazil next year.

In preparation for our subcommittee meeting ISDA would like to obtain from your institution by Thursday a list ("Wish List") of local OTC derivatives market issues for ISDA to address as well as suggestions for meetings and organizations with which ISDA might meet to address these issues. This "Wish List" will be of enormous help to ISDA for purposes of having an adequate and focused agenda for planning visits with a number of Brazilian institutions and authorities.

Please reply R.S.V.P. by email to Scott Marra (smarra@isda.org) if you would like to attend.

If you have additional suggestions in terms of the topics to be included in our agenda please do not hesitate to contact me.

Netting Legislation Update

House (Financial Services Committee/Toomey) and Senate (Gramm) staff met this afternoon to agree on provisions for a stand-alone netting bill that is likely to be brought-up under a suspension vote in the House next week. This morning Gramm's office indicated that most of the bill looked fine (including the Section 562 modification) except for the 907A provisions, which they believed to be covered in the October 4 SEC-CFTC Rule on "Customer protection, Recordkeeping, Reporting, and Bankruptcy Rules and the Securities Investor Protection Act of 1970 to Accounts Holding Security Futures Products". We are currently vetting this view with the CFTC and SEC. Gramm's staff (Linda Lord/Sarah DuMont) reiterated their concern in this afternoon's meeting. Apologies for the late notice but we have been asked for our views today as to whether we wish to keep the provisions in the underlying bill or if we support dropping the provisions. We would like to schedule a conference call ASAP to receive your views about these provisions. The FT has contacted ISDA regarding our contribution to an upcoming article they are writing on the emergence of electronic trading.

ISDA staff will give them regulatory background in US and Europe. I thought it might be worthwhile for them to hear a business/legal perspective as well.

Would you be interested in speaking with the reporter within the next couple of days? Please advise. Many thanks!

Judge Montali has issued a tentative ruling on the MidSet QF's motion to suspend performance under their PPA's. Click on the link below to view a pdf file containing the 27 page decision.

In summary, the Court's tentative ruling is to deny the QF's request to suspend the PPA's, to decline to set a deadline for PG&E to assume or reject the contract and to find that the reasonable rate that PG&E must pay the QF for energy delivered post petition pending assumption or rejection is the rate determined by the CPUC in the Wood decision.

The Court then goes on to note that this case is an extraordinary one requiring extraordinary relief. The Court therefore tentatively ruled that PG&E should pay some undetermined portion of the pre-petition arrearages to the QF's in order to ameliorate the burden on the QF's and help get them back (or keep them) online.

The Court therefore ordered PG&E, MidSet and the Committee to meet and confer and attempt to reach a resolution of the amount of the arrearage to be paid. Judge Montali states that "he has it in mind" that the amount perhaps should be equal to the difference between the Wood rates and the market price.

Call me if you have any questions or have an trouble with the link.

Transmission Expansion and Systems in Transition Conference

Feb. 5-8, 2002, Miami, Florida

OVERVIEW

This conference will examine the business and regulatory challenges to U.S. electric systems in transition in effectively expanding transmission capacity to meet new demands in the larger and more competitive regional markets emerging under FERC's RTO initiatives. The conference will review the parameters of these challenges and possible solutions to them. It will examine technology options and new business models for transmission expansion. It will analyze emerging proposals for effective transmission planning and pricing, including market-based pricing alternatives to FERC's traditional pricing methods. The conference will also discuss what it will take in legislative action and regulatory initiative to achieve an efficient regime for ensuring that the nation has a reliable grid and regional trading system.

Hello Mark - I have attached an outline that will hopefully assist in planning and prioritizing activities for the NA Committee for the remainder of the year. If your schedule permits, can we arrange a call sometime this week to discuss?

Thoughts for your consideration: * what should be the goals of the committee? * what are the primary issues affecting the committee? (by region and product type) * what issues present a role for ISDA? * Next steps: 1) formulate draft agenda 2) coordinate agenda w/European Committee 3) schedule remaining North American Committee Meetings - June, August, October, December.

Many thanks!

I have reviewed the O&M Expenses for ENA Legal for month-ended August 31, 2000, as compared to the budgeted amount for the same period. The overall legal budget was $4,835,184 over budget as of August 31, primarily due to Outside Costs which went over the planned amount by $5,094,838. The most significant outside costs were incurred in litigation, power plant development, legally intensive deals such as United Illuminating, and misallocated costs for Projects Summer and California. The Inside Costs were under budget in the amount of $259,654.

I am attaching a list of questions prepared by Sullivan & Cromwell for your review as we consider our approach on moving forward with comments regarding Sections 23A and 23B. We have invited Michael Wiseman and Willem Gravett of Sullivan & Cromwell to participate in our conference call on Thursday at 10:00 a.m.

These questions are designed to solidify our thinking on our approach. As the memo states, we may choose not to respond to certain questions. It would be extremely helpful if you would review the questions and be prepared to offer your thoughts on Thursday about which concepts ISDA should address in a comment letter. We would also appreciate your thoughts on additional issues that may not be included in this list.

If you have colleagues in your institution specifically following this issue, please feel free to have them join Thursday's call - just let us know who will be participating.

Many thanks. Please call if you have any questions.

European Energy Committee Meeting

File	haedicke-m/notes_inbox/87.

Hello Mark -- The European Energy Committee meeting was held in London today. The attached documents, including the agenda, a memo on the Bridge agreement, and a copy of the Bridge agreement, were reviewed at this morning's meeting.

Much of the discussion focused on explanation of the Bridge Agreement. There was some discussion about the German regulatory structure and the bridge agreement. Katia ran through the agenda in Houston and asked for ideas on December conference. I was not able to hear all of the questions entirely but questions were asked about the outcome of the meeting. Katia and Christophe explained that it was a forum to exchange ideas and to promote use of ISDA within industry. The minutes should give us more detail.

In addition to a call re: the NA agenda, I think it would be worthwhile to also have a call w/Christophe, Katia and John Berry to discuss European activities and to begin discussion on the December agenda. ISDA should begin to focus on an agenda as soon as possible so that we assure December's conference is as productive as the Houston conference. Thanks!

November 16, 2001

Dear Enron Users:

Due to a severe storm which hit central Texas last evening CYNET is experiencing a temporary service interruption of the assigned telephone numbers of it's Inbound Fax-2-Email Service.

Our local loop carrier has advised us they are aware of the situation and they are working to restore this connectivity.

While CYNET maintains back-up facilities for its Fax-2-Email services the problem we are faced with is that we can not place the same user telephone number within two different facilities at the same time. Our technical team is working on future recommendations in the form of having individual back-up numbers in the event of this type of outage.

We sincerely do apologize for any inconvenience this may cause you and your users and expect to have this service restored as soon as possible.

I propose to write a brief note to Mrs Plitsch to say that it was a matter is between the company and Mr Plitsch which has been settled with Mr Plitsch's participation. Mr Plitsch was given every opportunity to consult his lawyers and put his case but he declined. We take a very serious view of this abuse of our company's letterhead and chop, but would now consider matter closed.

Mark, it was good to see you Thursday. My next visit to Houston is scheduled for May 14 and 15. I will be making a presentation concerning the legal consequences of market abuse in electricity trading to a Risk Magazine Conference on the 14th. As we discussed last week, I would, if you wish, be pleased to speak to your colleagues on the same subject during my visit. I would also be pleased to discuss the contract audit issues, focusing on the key provisions that have been, or we expect to be, critical from a financial or reputational perspective. In that regard, it would be helpful to discuss Enron's experience with agreements/provisions before finalizing my remarks. Perhaps you could identify someone on your staff with whom I may speak.

Hello Mark -- The European Energy Committee meeting was held in London today. The attached documents, including the agenda, a memo on the Bridge agreement, and a copy of the Bridge agreement, were reviewed at this morning's meeting.

Much of the discussion focused on explanation of the Bridge Agreement. There was some discussion about the German regulatory structure and the bridge agreement. Katia ran through the agenda in Houston and asked for ideas on December conference. I was not able to hear all of the questions entirely but questions were asked about the outcome of the meeting. Katia and Christophe explained that it was a forum to exchange ideas and to promote use of ISDA within industry. The minutes should give us more detail.

In addition to a call re: the NA agenda, I think it would be worthwhile to also have a call w/Christophe, Katia and John Berry to discuss European activities and to begin discussion on the December agenda. ISDA should begin to focus on an agenda as soon as possible so that we assure December's conference is as productive as the Houston conference.

Thanks!

Federal Reserve Board Action on 23A and 23B

Sender	scarey@isda.org
Recipients	[usregcomm@isda.org]
File	haedicke-m/notes_inbox/1138.

Yesterday afternoon the Board adopted staff recommendations to:

* Regulation W - request comment on Regulation W that would comprehensively implement sections 23A and 23B of the Federal Reserve Act. This proposed regulation would confirm Board and staff interpretations, revise other previous staff opinions, proposes several additional exemptions, and addresses new topics under sections 23A and 23B. * Section 23B - issue interim final regulations, with a delayed effective date of January 1, 2002 that would: 1)clarify that institution-affiliate derivative transactions are subject to the market terms requirement of Section 23B; 2)require that banks maintain policies and procedures reasonably designed to monitor, manage and control credit exposures to affiliates arising from derivative transactions and intraday extensions of credit with affiliates. The policies and procedures must at a minimum monitor and control the credit exposure arising from the institution's derivative transactions with each affiliate, and all affiliates in the aggregate, ensuring that the institution's derivative transactions with affiliates comply with Section 23B * Section 23A - the application of section 23A appears to be addressed in two forms. Regulation W proposes a set of questions on measures that could be applied to institution-affiliate derivative transactions under section 23A. Additionally, the Board is also requesting public comment on the most appropriate treatment of derivative transactions between banks and affiliates under section 23A through the interim final rule.

The comment period for proposed Regulation W and the interim final rule on sections 23A and 23B is 90 days from issuance in the Federal Register which has not yet occurred. The full text of the Board Memo and proposed rules can be accessed through www.federalreserve.gov. I have included a shortcut to the site below. The relevant regulations are included under item 2. Proposals regarding Sections 23A and 23B of the Federal Reserve Act. 2a. is Regulation W and 2b. is the Interim Final Rule on 23A and 23B. In case the shortcut does not work go to General Information -- then: Board Meetings -- then: May 2, 2001. Please call if you have any questions. Many thanks! <<Open meeting memoranda.url>>

I propose the following agenda for the NA energy committee:

1. convergence of commodity forms -- need to build a team to pursue this 2. California energy issues/solutions 3. standardized provisions for master energy contracts -- setoff, netting, termination, etc. 4. bankruptcy 5. CFTC study of retail derivatives 6. emerging market forms for paper, steel, etc.

Mark Taylor will send a list of proposed topics for the European conference. Let me know what you think.

Would you let me know your thoughts about which items to cover and how long we want the meeting to last. The attached agenda will likely lead to a 2 hour meeting. This might be an adequate time frame since this is the first meeting in a while but let me know what you think! Many thanks! -- Stacy

I think we should be able to cover most of these items in a first meeting as many of them (European and US regulatory issues) are update items. However, we will need some time to further coordinate the agenda in terms of identifying individuals to make presentations. I do not believe we can pull this together by July 13. I mentioned that Goldman Sachs had teleconferencing capabilities in their NY and Houston offices but there is question as to whether they would be available from the 16th through the 26th. At this juncture the best days for the meeting are July 30 or 31. Additionally, in terms of organizing the agenda. Would appreciate your thoughts on the following: especially who might be the right person for California. 1) European Bridge Agreement - Allen & Overy 2) California Energy Issues - NEED A RECOMMENDATION? 3) Bankruptcy Reform - Stacy Carey - ISDA NY 4) Retail Swaps Study - Stacy Carey - ISDA NY 5) Market Abuse Directive - Katia D'Hulster - ISDA London 6) FSA Consultation Paper - Jonathan Marsh (Enron) (gave the presentation at the European Energy Committee Meeting) or Katia D'Hulster ISDA London << File: Agenda Discussion Document.doc >> Stacy Carey Policy Director International Swaps and Derivatives Association 600 5th Avenue, 27th Floor Rockefeller Center New York, NY 10020 (212) 332-1202 ph (212) 332-1212 fax (917) 543-9622 cell scarey@isda.org

Stacy:

It occurred to me that members of the North American Energy and Developing Products Committee might be interested in participating in a discussion about one of the changes to the Ontario Market Rules that is currently being considered by the Board of Directors of the IMO (the Independent Electricity Market Operator in Ontario).

The Ontario Market Rules have, to date, been designed such that generators of electricity will receive a 5 minute price (EMP or energy market price) from the IMO, and consumers of electricity receive an hourly price (the HOEP or hourly Ontario energy price). The HOEP was calculated as the weighted average of the EMP for an hour. For a variety of reasons, the IMO has now decided to change the way that the HOEP is calculated, such that it will be the straight average of the EMP's for the hour.

Customers have already entered into swaps, fixing the price at which they will purchase electricity, in which they pay a fixed price and receive the HOEP in return. Therefore, if the quantum of the HOEP is now different than is was based under the formula in effect when the contract was entered into, the economics of the deal have changed.

It's not clear at this time how material this change in calculation will be. Will it make a $0.05 difference to the HOEP, or a $3.00 difference to the HOEP? In other words, is it a Material Change in Formula?

Let me know if you think this might be of interest to the members.

Stacy:

If you decide that you'd like to have an update re that status of the new Ontario electricity market, I'd be happy to do so. It won't take more than 2-3 minutes, as nothings changed dramatically since July. All parties are proceeding on the assumption that the market will open in the Spring (a specific date has not yet been established).

If, however, anyone has any specific questions that they'd like to have discussed, perhaps they can add them to the agenda in advance of the meeting for general discussion.

Hello All -- wanted to let you know that we have scheduled the next NA Energy & Developing Products Committee meeting for Friday, November 2. (Meeting details will be circulated to the entire Committee today but I have attached them for your information).

We are in the process of finalizing the agenda, which will largely focus on documentation initiatives to address standardizing netting provisions across energy commodities and to also address physical and financial trading. However, I wanted to ask if there are any Canadian energy issues we should include on the agenda. Would you let me know your thoughts? Meg gave an update on the Ontario Electricity Market at the July 27 meeting -- is an update in order for the Nov. 2 meeting? Thank you. -- Stacy

-- [B] Single stock futures bill cautiously back in play -- By Mary Haffenberg, BridgeNews Chicago--Dec. 5--With Congress back in session this week, discussions on the Commodity Futures Modernization Act of 2000 are on again. But after months of negotiations that resulted in House legislation but no Senate bill, those interested in the bill's passage are taking a cautious approach at its chances of passage while Congress remains in session, even as key players held discussions Monday. * * * At a meeting with Senate Banking Committee Chairman Phil Gramm, R-Texas,

House Agriculture Subcommittee Chairman Thomas Ewing, R-Ill., and representatives of the Chicago Mercantile Exchange and the Chicago Board of Trade on Monday in Washington, the group agreed on several points regarding legal certainty for banking products. Though at least one source said that the final draft that came out on Tuesday of these agreements was the farthest the parties have ever gotten in terms of conceptual agreements on these issues, others warned they'd been down a suspiciously similar path before. Conceptual agreements on these issues have been reached only to be foiled when pen was put to legislative paper and the details were revealed and the proposed legislation was deemed unpassable. It would be to no one's surprise if the same thing happened again. However, even the most ardent skeptics on Tuesday couldn't explain why Gramm has continued to discuss the bill if he had no intention of it ever passing. A spokeswoman for Gramm on Tuesday said that there is no time frame of when the legislative language would appear. No further formal meetings on the bill were scheduled on Tuesday afternoon. In addition, as of midday Tuesday, Gramm had not contacted the U.S. Treasury Department, sources said, which must give its blessing to the bill if it is going to pass. In the past, Treasury and Gramm have not been able to reach agreement on several issues regarding the regulation of banking products. Retail protections and agency trades have been sticking points. The bill, which passed the House in October in a 377-4 vote, proposes to provide legal certainty for a variety of over-the-counter markets, legalize single stock futures, revamp and codify the regulatory plan that oversees the trading of derivatives products and reauthorize the Commodity Futures Trading Commission. The sticking point has been Gramm, who said that the bill will go nowhere unless it contains provisions he thinks are necessary to exclude banking products from the act and to keep certain types of swaps out of the hands of certain regulators. After the House bill passed, Gramm put forth 34 revisions to it. When discussions last left off before the federal elections, Gramm and Treasury had resolved about 15 of those issues. "One man, Senator Gramm, is holding up this bill," Ewing said at a press conference last month. Ewing, who retires from Congress at the end of this year, has taken the lead in shepherding the bill through the House and is now actively trying to get it passed through the Senate. If agreement on legislative language is reached, the idea is that the Senate bill could be attached to a legislative package. But early this week there was talk of Congress passing a continuing resolution that would in effect fund the government until next year, meaning no bills would pass until Congress returned. End

Mark - thanks and thank you for Mark Taylor's London Conference draft agenda as well.

All of your topics sound appropriate and significant. Clearly, this is an ambitious agenda, which I assume contemplates a series of meetings over the next months. Also, the issue of updating the 1993 Commodity Definitions comes up from time to time and we'd like to hear your thoughts re taking on this very large project.

We had talked about meetings every two months - should they be more frequent?.

We'd much like to have a very brief call to discuss all this further next week and to schedule the next meeting. Could you suggest a 15-30 minute period that works for you?

CFTC study of retail derivatives 6. emerging market forms for paper, steel, etc.

Mark Taylor will send a list of proposed topics for the European conference. Let me know what you think.

From: Stacy Carey Sent: Tuesday, May 22, 2001 3:57 PM To: Mark Haedicke Subject: European Energy Committee Meeting

Hello Mark -- The European Energy Committee meeting was held in London today. The attached documents, including the agenda, a memo on the Bridge agreement, and a copy of the Bridge agreement, were reviewed at this morning's meeting.

Much of the discussion focused on explanation of the Bridge Agreement. There was some discussion about the German regulatory structure and the bridge agreement. Katia ran through the agenda in Houston and asked for ideas on December conference. I was not able to hear all of the questions entirely but questions were asked about the outcome of the meeting. Katia and Christophe explained that it was a forum to exchange ideas and to promote use of ISDA within industry. The minutes should give us more detail.

In addition to a call re: the NA agenda, I think it would be worthwhile to also have a call w/Christophe, Katia and John Berry to discuss European activities and to begin discussion on the December agenda. ISDA should begin to focus on an agenda as soon as possible so that we assure December's conference is as productive as the Houston conference. Thanks!

Performance Management for Electric Distribution Companies

An Executive Forum

October 25-26, 2001, Atlanta, GA

OVERVIEW

Deregulation is introducing competition into the electric utility industry in an ever-increasing rate, and it is requiring companies to consider dramatic changes in their business processes, in the operation of their businesses, and in managing their assets. Issues such as customer satisfaction, performance based rates, operational reliability targets, operational efficiencies, risk management, and rate reductions are among the new business drivers.

With the advent of new choices open to the smallest retail customers as well as the largest industrials, distribution companies are re-engineering their businesses and re-establishing their corporate priorities in response to these new challenges. This new business environment has brought performance management to the forefront for the electric distribution companies, and they are being driven by regulators, customers, and financial rating agencies to improve all aspects of their performance.

Through this conference, we have gathered leading executives from distribution companies, wires companies, generation companies, energy marketers, regulators, and market participants to openly discuss the issues, their experiences, and their corporate strategies. Our objective for this executive forum is to provide you with new insights into how electric distribution companies are addressing these issues and concerns, and to help you formulate your own corporate approach to this challenging and complex new world.

The website link for the conference is provided below. Please click the link to see the program agenda, general information including location and hotel, and online registration. You can also register by calling us at 303-770-8800.

Ancillary Services Conference

October 31-November 2, 2001, Denver, CO

OVERVIEW

The Ancillary Services conference will explore the rapidly changing and fascinating engineering, economic, market, and policy issues related to bulk-power ancillary services. These issues are difficult to resolve because these services are essential for both reliability and commerce, and it is often difficult to disentangle the two.

Topics to be covered at this event include centralized vs. supplier unit commitment, integration of ancillary-service markets with energy and congestion markets, relationships among forward and real-time markets, measuring the performance of ancillary-service delivery, operating costs to provide these services, retail-load provision of some ancillary services, comparisons among the existing ISOs and future RTOs in their treatment of ancillary services, and the feasibility of letting price influence the amount of reserves acquired.

Electric Utility Consultants, Inc., a long-time provider of timely conferences and workshops for the electric industry, has assembled a covey of top experts to explore all aspects of the emerging field in a conference devoted exclusively to Ancillary Services.

In the wake of last week's disaster, we have had numerous requests for contingency decisions on issues of a trading practice nature. We are compiling a list of these questions for review by ISDA's Trading Practice Committee, chaired by Jonathan Moulds at Bank of America.

If your firm has experienced or if you are aware of any such issues in relation to the market disruptions (eg: how to establish CMS/CMT rates for those days), please would you be prepared to raise them at tomorrow's Board Meeting. If necessary, ISDA may subsequently ask its Trading Practice Advisory Group to convene to address these issues.

-----Original Message-----

From: Cook, Mary Sent: Thursday, September 20, 2001 11:12 AM To: Haedicke, Mark E. Subject: Implementation of Form Setoff Language: EOL Transactions

Due to the extent of work required to modify our annexes, GTCs etc. on EOL (IT coordination, counterparty notification and the like) and the traders' strong preference to not often make changes on EOL product documentation, we propose to implement the EOL form change in one aggregate revision as and when the trading forms committee concludes its work on events of default and termination valuation/remedies. Should you think this should be handled differently, please advise. Mary

Energy Capital Resources Funding Commitments

File	haedicke-m/inbox/426.

Based upon my review of the files and discussions with other lawyers and other business people:

Ameritex Ventures II, Ltd.- No further funding commitment exists. Nutech Energy Alliance, Ltd. - A DASH has been approved for funding $2,627,000 million. $592,000 has been funded. There is no known legal documentation of a commitment to fund any additional amount. It is unclear what expectations other partners may have regarding future fundings by the Enron entity. Texland Limited Partnership - An AFE for $4 million has been approved but funding will not be required until next year. Approximately $1 million/month for the first four months of 2002 will most likely be required. Andex Credit Facility - Fundings are in the sole discretion of ECTMI as the agent. Tri-C Resources - ENA is committed to fund $30,000-40,000 of general and administrative expenses this year. Westwin Energy I Limited Partnership - Additional capital contributions require unanimous consent of the partners. A Dash has been approved for $7,400,000 contingent upon certain levels of success and an engineer's report. Hanson - No further funding obligations exists.

Update on Retention of Lynn Slade for Seminole Tribe Transaction

Sender	carlos.sole@enron.com
Recipients	['mark.haedicke@enron.com', 'jeffrey.hodge@enron.com']
File	haedicke-m/all_documents/1213.

I wanted to update you on my request to retain Lynn Slade of Modrall Sperling for a power plant development transaction involving the Seminole Tribe of Florida. In requesting Jim Derrick's approval, he asked that I contact Jim McCartney of Vinson & Elkins to discuss such a retention because Jim McCartney who has had extensive Enron experience regarding our right-of-way agreements through Indian country and recently had a mixed experience with Lynn Slade. Jim has been both candid and very helpful. He has recommended that the better approaches would be either to retain Mike Webster, an Indian lawyer in Montana, or find a lawyer in Florida who has had direct experience with Seminoles. More importantly, Jim graciously offered to review the preliminary letter of intent that we are negotiating and offer his comments based on his general Indian law experience. He will charge the limited amount of time that will be required for this review against his general retainer that he has with Jim Derrick. At this preliminary stage, I believe that Jim's review and comments will suffice for purposes of getting advice on the letter of intent and I will continue to pursue identifying a Florida-based lawyer with experience in dealing with the Seminoles.

FYI -- PG&E has asked to purchase March gas from Enron Canada on a prepaid basis. Bill Bradford approved the transaction, but wanted to give the legal department an opportunity to stop the deal if we saw any issues. Given that this is an arms-length transaction on market terms, there isn't much risk that we have participated in a fraudulent transfer. Nor is there really a "preference" issue (the transaction doesn't involve a payment for an antecedent debt) that would require us to disgorge the payments in the event of a subsequent filing. Finally, as we are paid cash up front we shouldn't have any credit or security issues. Assuming the traders are happy with the economics of the deal, I see no reason why we shouldn't be willing to deal with PG&E if we are paid cash up front.

It appears the cash margin may not be a problem. Initial feedback from EES legal is that we may not be able to cut them off immediately due certain provisions in the EES Masters. I have a call in to Haedicke to address. I have also attached the current exposure information. I am currently in discussion with New Power to better understand the liquidity risks they face.

Let me know if you would like to discuss.

Cadwalader confirms their opinion that margin postings under the netting arrangement (inclusive of forwards and derivatives) are excepted from preference provisions and that this should not be altered merely by having an insider position, absent other claims. I have touched base with Tribolet and Sanders to let them know that Cadwalader is available to discuss the netting agreement/bankruptcy issues as desired.

please look at the following:

As many of you are aware, Enron Corp. has been appointed as a member of the Official Unsecured Creditors' Committee of Pacific Gas and Electric Company ("PG&E") which filed a bankruptcy reorganization proceeding on April 6, 2001. Request for Participation in Power Institute

Mr. Haedicke:

Please let me apologize in advance for not providing this response earlier based on discussions with your assistant Ms. Elbertson. I was trying to clarify needs for the Institute with other planning committee members, and then was involved in an unfortunate accident which has had be out of the office for a major portion of the last 2 weeks.

As previously discussed through your assistant, we would be interested in your participation as a panelist in a discussion to take place as part of the Power Institute to take place on June 7 and 8, 2001 at South Texas College of Law (downtown Houston). The segment I would like to solicit your participation in is entitled "E-Commerce in the New Energy World" at 1:00 PM - 1:45 PM which was originally structured as a "speech", but the planners would like to restructure as a round-table discussion including legal representatives from Pantellos (confirmed), the newly-defunct Petrocosm and yourself (Enron On-line). The panel would be moderated with some "canned questions" that we'd give you ahead of time, and some time for questions and answers from the audience. There would be little preparation other than sharing your experiences. I've faxed the brochure to 713-646-2600 for your review.

If you are unavailable, we would welcome one of your attorneys from your staff. It's a great opportunity to "sell" Enron On-Line to a captive audience of industry participants.

Please let me know at your earliest convenience.

Thanks,

Attached is a revised version of the CA with Goldman. The remaining issue is in Section 1 regarding restrictions on Goldman's "use" of the Confidential Information. Goldman believes that they will have to bring a lot of their personnel, including traders, "over the wall" in order to perform this engagement, and that such personnel will by necessity see some of our Confidential Information. While they agree that their personnel shouldn't be able to use our specific information against us in future transactions, they are worried that the restriction on their use of our info that is set out in Section 1 could limit the future activities of those folks simply because they "saw" some of our Confidential Information and are carrying it around in their heads, and at any time could be accused of "using" our info.

Initially, Goldman insisted on removing the restriction on use. We have suggested the language at the end of Section , which would generally restrict use of the information to the engagement, but would allow Goldman's non-IB's to work on the deal but perform their other jobs without worrying about violating the CA as long as they weren't using the notes that they took while they were in our shop. Admittedly, it is not as clean as I would like, but I think this adequately addresses both parties' concerns.

Goldman was initially receptive to this language, and will call tomorrow morning with any other comments.

Mark, I am not completely sure what the other groups want to do; however, assuming a fixed amount of the "internal" legal costs are fairly represented by this allocation as ENA's "capacity" charge, you are correct. This number will be in the P/L under your name. The "outside" legal costs should be tracked and controlled and carried at the business unit (by deal) level. I need an estimate of the quarterly "capacity charge" for ENA and an estimate of outside legal costs by business unit.

I have attached the "time allocations" (which are used for inside costs only) by attorney to the various business groups. We can derive the percentage of total legal department inside costs from this chart, in order to calculate the capacity charge, for ENA and the other wholesale groups and ENW. We had used this chart to bill back to the various business units within ENA, but we will stop doing that now per our conversation. Are you in agreement?

We are nearing the "final" form of the document for further use. I have asked Bradford to speak with you regarding use of it for major trading counterparties that may not be investment grade, but with whom Credit sees the ability to greatly enhance our liquidity via netting of margin requirements (not the small accounts).

Two issues.

1. Do you think we should write a risk memo concerning the issues surrounding the ultimate effectiveness under the Code and "square setoff" rights? Basically, the intent would be to clarify that if a court did not enforce the close-out netting, and then did not enforce the square setoff, our collateral position on a trading master by trading master basis could be underwater because we would have netted the positions under the master netting agreement for margining purposes. Further to this, the bankruptcy reform aspects of this issue are not moving as previously hoped due to consumer issues and current events.

2. FYI: It has come to my attention this week that Global Finance has consummated a receivable financing, and desires to consummate additional such financings which conflict with master netting agreements in place (as well as setoff language in trading contracts) and with the general concept of master netting for the future. We are meeting tomorrow with Bradford and Global Finance representatives to gather facts, sort through the issues, and try to resolve what appear to be different objectives concerning trading receivables. From a cash perspective, I would think Enron as whole would get more benefit from master netting (dollar for dollar benefit) than loan security (which would never be a dollar for dollar benefit)--do you think this is a correct analysis?

RE: Credit Derivatives Documentation; Review of 1999 Definitions

Three Supplements and Commentaries have been published on ISDA's website relating to amendments to the 1999 ISDA Credit Derivatives Definitions (the "Definitions"). These three Supplements to the Definitions are: (i) the Restructuring Supplement published on May 11, 2001; (ii) the Supplement Relating to Convertible, Exchangeable or Accreting Obligations, published on November 9, 2001; and (iii) the Supplement on Successor and Credit Events, published on November 28, 2001. As indicated at the Credit Derivatives Market Practice Committee meeting on November 5 in London and New York, ISDA will publish a Supplement that rolls all three Supplements into one, for ease of reference. We will also do the same for the Commentaries.

ISDA has received member feedback that it would be useful to update the Definitions in 2002. Accordingly, taking into account that the three Supplements have already been published, we would like to receive any additional comments that you might have on other areas of the Definitions. Please direct your comments to Kimberly Summe at ksumme@isda.org by Friday, January 18. Once comments are received and reviewed, we will hold another Credit Derivatives Market Practice Committee meeting, probably in February 2002. Details will be sent out in January 2002.

Also, as a reminder, final comments are due on the User's Guide (also to ksumme@isda.org) by Monday, January 7, 2002.

Thank you in advance for your consideration.

The following notice was sent to a ISDA documentation task force. The issue to be discussed may be of interest to each of you and we encourage your attendance.

We have arranged for meetings of the Credit Derivatives Documentation Task Force to take place simultaneously in New York and London on Monday, November 13, at 9:30 NY time/2:30 London time. The New York meeting will take place at the offices of Chase Manhattan Bank, 270 Park Avenue, 11th Floor, Room C. The London meeting will take place at the offices of Morgan Stanley Dean Witter, 20 Cabot Square, Canary Wharf, London E14. Please RSVP to Barbara Hanlon at bhanlon@isda.org indicating at which location you will be attending. At each meeting, I will arrange for several individuals to present their view on the Restructuring issue. There will then be an opportunity in each meeting to ask questions of those individuals and for more general discussion. We will then link the London and New York meetings by telephone to share views between the meetings. This distribution list is drawn from participants in the documentation process. The Restructuring issue, while focused on a term in the documentation, is nevertheless one of market practice and not really one of documentation. We, therefore, encourage you to ensure that the views of your trading desk are expressed at the meeting, preferably by having someone from the desk at the meeting. We expect a large number of people at the meetings, however, so we also encourage you to consider who from your institution is most critical to be in attendance to ensure that your views are heard. We look forward to hearing from you on the 13th. To: Mark E Haedicke/HOU/ECT@ECT cc: Janette Elbertson/HOU/ECT@ECT, Jeffrey T Hodge/HOU/ECT@ECT Subject: Outside Counsel for transaction with Seminole Indian Tribe of Florida

Mark,

I have a unique outside counsel request on which I'd like your approval. I am involved with a potential power plant development project with the Seminole Indian Tribe of Florida. The project would be on their land and would potentially involve a joint venture with them. Although we are at a preliminary stage, even the initial letter of intent that we are negotiating raises unique issues that will set the precedent for our project development agreements with respect to enforceability, jurisdiction and dispute resolution matters.

I have identified and spoken with Lynn Slade of the New Mexico law firm of Modrall, Sperling, Roehl, Harris & Sisk on whether he could advise us on the Indian law issues associated with this project. Lynn and several of his colleagues specialize on Indian law matters, and Lynn has experience both with representing Enron and in handling energy transactions in general. In fact, Lynn gave a presentation at the 1999 Enron law conference entitled "Energy Business in 'Indian Country': Opportunities and Obstacles" (credit goes to Jeff Hodge for remembering that presentation and suggesting I contact Lynn); Lynn has represented several of Enron's pipeline companies, as well as the government affairs department, in connection with their Indian law issues and, at one time, prepared an opinion letter for ENA in a transaction involving the Ute tribe.

Lastly, please note that I had asked our Florida counsel of Greenberg Traugott on whether they had any Indian law expertise, including specifically, any experience involving the Seminoles. Unfortunately, the Seminoles are one of their clients so Greenberg cannot represent us in a manner adverse to the Tribe.

Thanks in advance for your attention and consideration of this request.

Linda,

As we discussed, Enron Corp. was served with a subpoena by the Securities and Exchange Commission to produce documents related to Texon Energy Corporation, of Las Vegas, Nevada, and Lonestar Petroleum Corporation, also of Las Vegas, Nevada (including their parents, successors, subsidiaries, related corporations, partnerships or professional associations, affiliates, principals, officers, directors, general or limited partners, associates, employees, agents, and independent contractors). We have been requested to produce all documents that Enron has related to these entities. The specific requests are:

1. All documents concerning Texon including but not limited to agreements or contracts between Enron and Texon, purchase orders, invoices, and correspondence concerning any technical, professional, or other services.
2. All documents concerning Lonestar including but not limited to agreements or contracts between Enron and Lonestar, purchase orders, invoices, and correspondence concerning any technical, professional, or other services.

The subpoena has a return date of October 5, 2001. While it is likely that we can get an extension of this return date, I would like to find out whether we think we have any responsive documents before that deadline. I appreciate your help in sending this information and request out to EWS legal. Please have responses sent to either me or you by e-mail, by noon on October 4, 2001. I also understand that you will have someone begin a search of EWS databases for references to these two entities.

Subject: Meeting - Friday December 8

Randy:

Per our meeting on Friday, you asked me to summarize what we discussed so= =20 that you can address these issues with Mark Haedicke:

1. I recently changed the standard ECB slate of directors of the Caycos=20 directly owned by Enron Caribbean Basin LLC, to reflect the standard ESA=20 slate of directors. These Caycos all relate to projects or assets in=20 Colombia and

Venezuela. =20

2. Early this week Nancy Muchmore mentioned that the new slate of directors= =20 would be put into place: Kishkill, Wiggs, Gonzalez (replacing Bannantine an= d=20 Christodoulou), Derrick and Walls. Today=01,s email from David Delainey sta= tes=20 that Enron Global Assets =01) South America will work in close coordination= with=20 Enron Americas. However with these recent re-organization announcements,=20 would this new slate that Nancy mentioned, apply to the Enron Global Assets= =01)=20 South America group? Perhaps, upper management should consider naming some= =20 key individual(s) in the South America Assets group to the slate. I believ= e=20 that we should keep it simply with one standard slate in place (in case we= =20 reorganize again), but adding at least some one from the assets side. =20

3. I was about to move the mentioned Caycos directly owned by Enron Caribbe= an=20 Basin LLC under Enron South America LLC when the new re-organization was=20 announced. I will need a directive from Legal as well as from Tax where to= =20 move these entities. =20

4. Also, there is a list of Caycos (set up for bid purposes in Colombia and= =20 Venezuela) that management has reviewed and approved to be dissolved. I pl= an=20 to provide that list to Tax for their review and approval. =20

5. Another point to address is the standard slate of directors/officers of= =20 those Delaware entities (that have operations in Latin America) which have= =20 Haug, Cumberland, Castagnola and Sayre named as Directors/Officers. A=20 decision has to be made who are going to replace these individuals. =20

I await your instructions.

Please see the following at the request of Mark Haedicke and forward this e-mail to any people that you think appropriate:

As many of you are aware, Enron Corp. has been appointed as a member of the Official Unsecured Creditors' Committee of Pacific Gas and Electric Company ("PG&E") which filed a bankruptcy reorganization proceeding on April 6, 2001. As a member of the committee, Enron will have access to certain confidential and/or non-public information regarding PG&E. Enron and the other members of the committee have signed a confidentiality agreement with PG&E that restricts the use and disclosure of this confidential and/or non-public information.

Michael Tribolet with the Risk Assessment and Control group is Enron's designated representative to the committee, and Lisa Mellencamp with the ENA Legal Department will be assisting him in this role. Please be advised that they will be restricted from disclosing certain of the information that they receive. Any requests for information regarding PG&E or its bankruptcy proceedings that Enron has obtained through its membership on the Committee should first be cleared by Lisa Mellencamp, Travis McCullough, Richard Sanders or me.

mark, an issues update:

1. timing issues--sithe has extended the time for potential tollers to give comments back on the tolling and related agreements until next friday, may 12. final bids are not yet in and will probably be coming in as late as a week after that (may 19). we anticipate some real negotiation on the documentation and some issues that may be hard to resolve. our restructure document negotiations will be running a parallel path. this is a lot to accomplish, particularly with marty's torturous page-turning, wear you down negotiating style and the fact that he will be involved in all. marty has said he sees his june 1 date slipping.

2.bondholder issues--we have issues in addition to our consent issue that we have discussed. with respect to one of the transport pieces with transcanada, it signed a consent directly running to the bondholders that arguably it could be breaching if it consented to the assignment of the transport to us. marty's lawyer is clearly worried about this and transcanada is likely to at least ask for an indemnity from sithe and/or us. business guys are discussing splitting that risk 55 sithe/45 us, the partnership split under the proposed restructured deal. additionally, we have been asked to agree that the transport assigned to us is pledged to the bondholders and in essence agree that we will indemnify the bondholders directly if we do not make the transport contract payments. that number has potentially moved from $190 million to a significantly larger number ($350 million??). seems like the toller may have some concern with bondholder issues potentially in trying to protect itself during this long tolling period. this obviously could affect timing. bondholders are likely to have QF concerns as well (both on our side and with PECO). hard to tell what the business strategy is right now with respect to informing the bondholders about the transactions.

3.limitation on sithe liability--sithe served us very skinny documents, including no reps and warranties except basically as to title, and those came from a shell subsidiary where it is dropping its interest (supposedly for tax purposes) and disappeared at closing. there will need to be significant push back on a number of fronts to get some fairer documents.

4.tax issues--leboeuf and steve douglas are working on, but there is a potential for disconnect between the two sides as to tax treatment that we are trying to run to ground. the deal is so tight and so structured that we worry that a disconnect could make a deal hard to do.

5.due diligence--the business guys have not really done. le boeuf has been geared up to help starting monday (financial, plant, material contracts).

From: Delaney, John [mailto:delaney@bus.msu.edu] Sent: Sunday, October 07, 2001 3:19 PM To: 'Mark.E.Haedicke@enron.com' Subject: Hello from Michigan State and a request

Dear Mark,

I am the Associate Dean for MBA Programs at Michigan State. I'm writing to ask for your advice regarding a new initiative here. I am not sure how much you have remained in touch with MSU since your graduation. I am proud to report that US News and World Report recently named the Eli Broad College of Business #16 in its annual ranking of undergraduate business schools. And last April, the Wall Street Journal ranked our full-time MBA program #12. As an alum, I hope you are as proud of these accomplishments as are the faculty, staff, and current students of the Broad School.

The Broad School recently opened a financial analysis laboratory and trading room to help our students understand options theory better and learn trading skills. I would like to expand the scope of the lab to include the energy marketplace. That interest led me to the EnronOnline and Enron web sites, where I found your bio. Because Enron is the world's top energy trader, I'd like to get your views on how I can best expose our students to the energy marketplace. For example, do students need access to specialized energy trading information and software (e.g., EnronOnline.com) or do they need advanced courses in options theory (or both)? Similarly, is it better to focus on risk management more generally or the energy market in particular?

I have also been working with our MBA Placement Director to better understand career opportunities in energy and bandwidth trading. Given the background of many of our students (with experience in operations and finance), we think they'll be qualified for opportunities in the energy market (as traders or analysts) if we give them the right tools. Finally, I saw an announcement that Enron has collaborated with Rice University in an e-commerce, energy and bandwidth initiative and wonder if any type of collaboration with Michigan State is possible.

If you are willing, I would like to discuss these and some related issues with you. I'd be happy to call at any time that is convenient for you - just let me know a time and phone number. If you'd prefer to schedule a specific time, please have your assistant call mine - Cathy Chubb at 517-432-5100 - to set a time on our calendars.

Thanks in advance for your consideration. I wish you much luck and continued success in all your activities.

Best regards,

John Delaney

We are approaching the final countdown as to signing our definitive agreement with El Paso regarding the sale of JEDI II's 51% interest in East Coast Power and ENA's $157.9mm of ECP Subordinated Notes.

The transaction has continued to develop along the lines of my last update of 11-21-00. The terms and economics remain essentially as outlined on 11-21-00. In summary, the primary form of consideration will be a derivative-like commodity agreement or a 'contract for differences'. This contract will be exchanged in full for the SubNotes and the majority of our equity interest. The JEDI II equity interest will also receive a residual contingent interest which will become payable in the event of a PPA restructuring at the Linden facility. We are calling the derivative a swap but it is more like a receivable. An El Paso affiliate (guaranteed by El Paso as parent) will notionally be paying NYMEX plus approx $0.52 (escalating) over seven years on a notional volume of 300,000 MMBtu/d and receiving NYMEX. With netting the contract is simply a series of fixed quarterly payments over seven years. No offset rights and no limitations on the guarantee - fully a stand alone agreement.

We are optimistic that we may be able to sign documents as early as Thursday night. This agreement can be terminated at our option in the event that we do not receive the necessary internal approvals. There are only two significant external approvals required, a NJ Environmental 'non-applicability' determination and ECP credit ratings reaffirmation. Accordingly we expect at this time to receive the necessary internal and external approvals and close by year end. We expect that a public announcement would be appropriate at the time both parties have received all necessary internal approvals.

The portion of the commodity contract being exchanged for the SubNotes is expected to be offered to Condor to monetize this portion of the contract at year end. Subsequent to Condor's acquisition of its contract, both JEDI II's contract and the Condor contract are expected to be monetized in a QSPE vehicle later in the first quarter.

Please call or email with any questions you may have. Thanks for your assistance in these matters.

PRIVILEGED AND CONFIDENTIAL

Vicki Sharp, John Klauberg and I had a short call on Sunday to discuss any legal issues associated with the proposed accounting treatment of certain of transactions between EPMI and EES.

1. EPMI has requested that the economics of the Assigned Transactions (the PGET transactions assumed by EPMI and referred to in the December 28, 2000 letter between EPMI and EEMC) be held by EPMI, and not retained by EEMC as provided by the letter agreement.

Wes, could you confirm that EPMI wishes to assume the economics of those transactions effective 1/1/2001? I have assumed that this is the case, and have drafted an amendment to the December 28 letter accordingly (attached below). Please review and let me know if this is something we can work with (note that the draft letter may need revisions based upon resolutions of other issues raised in this e-mail). We will also need to confirm that there are no undesirable tax or bankruptcy implications to this approach.

One element of the assignment of the "Regulatory Receivable" and the assignment to EPMI of the PGET trades that we have questions regarding is the apparent lack of consideration flowing back to EEMC/EES as a result of these transactions -- we will have transferred some fairly substantial assets from EEMC/EES to EPMI, but have made no provision for those entities receiving anything in exchange. The December 28 letter did make reference to the possibility of "back-to-back" transactions between EPMI and EEMC, which may answer that questions with respect to the assignment of the PGET trades, but if we are going to go that route, we would need to work out the terms of those "back-to-back" transaction by which EPMI sells the power that it purchases from PGET/Avista to EEMC to enable EEMC to fill its short position. For instance, at what price would EPMI resell the PGET/Avista power to EEMC so that EEMC can supply the requirements of its Direct Access Customers? If the transfer price is at market, EEMC will recognize a significant loss on sales to its DACs.

2. On January 17, 2001, EES and EEMC assigned certain of their "Regulatory Receivables" to EPMI. The assignment was intended to be an absolute transfer and true sale of EEMC/EES' rights in those receivables, but the Assignment Agreement does not recite any consideration for that transfer. Again, we assume that the transfers of those receivables would leave a "hole" in EES' books that, in an arms-length transaction, would be filled by the consideration that EES/EEMC received for the sale. Has there been any conversation about the benefits that may ultimately flow back to EES/EEMC in consideration for their transfer of these receivables to EPMI? While the attached amendment is not intended to address the assignment of that receivable, it may be beneficial to make reference to those benefits in this amendment.

3. The January 17, 2001 assignment transferred that portion of the negative CTC that had accrued to date, but we have not effected any transaction to transfer the risk of the remaining marked position to EPMI. There was some discussion of an EES/EPMI "swap" that would transfer the risk in the remaining position to EPMI. Is that still being contemplated?

Performance-Based Ratemaking Conference

December 5-7, 2001, Denver, CO

OVERVIEW

Performance Based Ratemaking (PBR) is emerging as a key element of the restructuring of the electric utility industry. For PBR to be effective it must be designed carefully and uniquely for each utility so as to align the interests of the utility, the shareholders and the customers and also to make sure that PBR is successful in achieving efficiency and service quality.

EUCI has put together a covey of expert speakers to review and address the latest PBR developments and applications. Join us in Denver and get the latest state-of-the-art information and insights you will need to develop an effective PBR strategy for your company.

Electric Power Market Performance Conference

December 12-14, 2001, Denver, CO

OVERVIEW

Each year there is additional opportunity to draw lessons regarding electricity market structure and design from actual market performance. These lessons are leading to a convergence in market design, at least in the Eastern Interconnection and ERCOT. One focus of this conference will be on the lessons to be drawn from the experience of the new ERCOT markets, the continuing market design problems in California, and the difficulties in developing and implementing a market based congestion management system in the midwest.

A second focus of this conference will be on the existing markets in PJM and New York, which have now moved beyond managing their internal markets and are being pushed by market participants and regulatory agencies to better address inter-RTO coordination and develop market based incentive systems for transmission expansion.

Finally, the conference will highlight one of the important, but little noticed successes of the Eastern ISOs, which is the explosive growth in the PJM and New York financial rights auctions.

ISDA PRESS REPORT - OCTOBER 26, 2001

ENERGY Dividend uncertainty enhances option pricing risk - Financial Times

EQUITY DERIVATIVES Dividend uncertainty enhances option pricing risk - Risk News

German power exchanges to merge Financial Times - October 26, 2001 By Bettina Wassener

Germany's two electricity exchanges, the European Energy Exchange and the Leipzig Power Exchange, confirmed on Friday that they will merge by the start of next year in a move that will pool liquidity in Europe's biggest power trading market.

The rival exchanges said on Friday the move was a "merger of equals," though existing shareholders in the Frankfurt-based EEX, whose owners include the Eurex derivatives market, will hold 57.5 per cent of the merged exchange.

Both exchanges were started fairly recently to capitalise on the boom in power trading after liberalisation in the electricity sector since the late 1990s, but have faced competition from bilateral trades, and jointly represent only 6.6 per cent of the market.

The LPX, backed by power exchange Nord Pool, launched Germany's first spot bourse in June last year, just ahead of a similar move by its Frankfurt-based rival. The EEX began trading electricity futures earlier this year.

Due to the merger, the LPX will not now go ahead with plans to launch its own futures contract which had been expected this year. The merged exchange will offer a combination of the existing trading systems.

The new exchange, to be called EEX but based in Leipzig, will be run jointly by Hans Schweickhardt, EEX's chief executive, and Carlhans Uhle, his counterpart at the LPX. About 90 participants from nine countries will trade at the new EEX.

Dividend uncertainty enhances option pricing risk Risk News - October 24, 2001 By Sarfraz Thind

The growing spate of dividend cuts in the global markets has made dividends a potential source of uncertainty in the pricing of equity derivatives. Companies across the board now have reduced expectations of meeting their earnings forecasts following the downturn in the economy, which, combined with increasing use of share buybacks and return of capital as alternative methods of cash distribution, has placed pressure on dividends, bankers said Michael Maras, Merrill Lynch

The latest analysis on European equity derivative markets by Merrill Lynch forecasts a 2.52% decline in the dividend payments of FTSE 100 constituents for 2001. Merrill's report said that market expectations for earnings and dividend growth remain excessively optimistic. It added that earnings and dividend forecasts across Europe are increasingly likely to see a downward adjustment over the next six months, with dividend growth in the Euro Stoxx 50 index declining by around 2.5%.

Michael Maras, global equity derivatives director at Merrill Lynch, told RiskNews that the report was intended to warn investors of potential dividend cuts, so that they re-evaluate their dividend yield ratios. Maras pointed to companies such as the UK's Rolls Royce and Dutch bank ABN Amro that have already had their dividend payment ability cast under doubt. He identified the auto, technology and financial sectors as being especially vulnerable.

"A lot more trading houses will be reducing dividend expectations. This is a global phenomenon, though it's a lot more intense in Europe, as [European] companies have an over-reliance on dividends."

An equity derivatives trader at Morgan Stanley, who asked not to be named, said that Merrill Lynch was "absolutely right". "We are very, very cautious about how we price options going through the dividend period."

Performance-Based Ratemaking Conference

December 5-7, 2001, Denver, CO

OVERVIEW

Performance Based Ratemaking (PBR) is emerging as a key element of the restructuring of the electric utility industry. For PBR to be effective it must be designed carefully and uniquely for each utility so as to align the interests of the utility, the shareholders and the customers and also to make sure that PBR is successful in achieving efficiency and service quality.

EUCI has put together a covey of expert speakers to review and address the latest PBR developments and applications. Join us in Denver and get the latest state-of-the-art information and insights you will need to develop an effective PBR strategy for your company.

Electric Power Market Performance Conference

December 12-14, 2001, Denver, CO

OVERVIEW

Each year there is additional opportunity to draw lessons regarding electricity market structure and design from actual market performance. These lessons are leading to a convergence in market design, at least in the Eastern Interconnection and ERCOT. One focus of this conference will be on the lessons to be drawn from the experience of the new ERCOT markets, the continuing market design problems in California, and the difficulties in developing and implementing a market based congestion management system in the midwest.

A second focus of this conference will be on the existing markets in PJM and New York, which have now moved beyond managing their internal markets and are being pushed by market participants and regulatory agencies to better address inter-RTO coordination and develop market based incentive systems for transmission expansion.

Finally, the conference will highlight one of the important, but little noticed successes of the Eastern ISOs, which is the explosive growth in the PJM and New York financial rights auctions.

Electric Risk Management 101 Workshop

And

Portfolio Optimization for Electric Utilities Conference

January 22-25, 2001, New York City, NY

OVERVIEW

In the current environment of volatile energy prices and deregulation, it has become increasingly more important for the electricity industry to learn how to manage price risk. EUCI presents two events formatted for the beginner to the expert in price risk management. The first Workshop is designed for the beginner with no prior experience in risk management and introduces the basic vocabulary and concepts in a concise and easily understandable format which forms the foundation for the more advanced concepts applied in the second event (Conference).

Transmission Expansion and Systems in Transition Conference

Feb. 6-7, 2002, Miami, Florida

OVERVIEW

This conference will examine the business and regulatory challenges to U.S. electric systems in transition in effectively expanding transmission capacity to meet new demands in the larger and more competitive regional markets emerging under FERC's RTO initiatives. The conference will review the parameters of these challenges and possible solutions to them. It will examine technology options and new business models for transmission expansion. It will analyze emerging proposals for effective transmission planning and pricing, including market-based pricing alternatives to FERC's traditional pricing methods. The conference will also discuss what it will take in legislative action and regulatory initiative to achieve an efficient regime for ensuring that the nation has a reliable grid and regional trading system.

Mark --

William Rhode weighed in with his questions for Jeff. I'd like to go over these with you, as I have my ideas about answers but am concerned about the project overall.

As a new market maker in derivative markets, what do we offer that banks don't? What is it like being a non-financial entity going into these markets? What kind of tangible commitment are you making to derivative markets? Does your activity outside of core energy impact your stock price and make you a riskier investment?

Mark, I'd appreciate the opportunity to zero in on this tomorrow morning if possible.

Hi Mark,

Although I suspect that you have been quite busy lately given the situation at Enron, I would like to follow up on our conversation of a few weeks back. Is there a time that is convenient for me to call? Otherwise, I will give you a call later this week and try to set something up. As always, I appreciate your willingness to give some time to me. And if your schedule is too hectic now, please suggest some future dates that might work better for you.

I hope you saw the Spartans beat Michigan Saturday. What a great game! And to top it off, Tom Izzo signed another blue chip basketball recruit from Flint. There are many smiling faces here on campus.

I assume you received my information packet and look forward to talking to you. Thanks again for your time.

Dear Mark, I hope you are doing well. You may be getting a call from JoAnne Pinkett regarding a proposal for future funding of the BEAR program. There has apparently been some difficulty in communication between the BEAR board and our board.

Any proposal has to make its way through the Children's Services Committee then the Executive Committee. It is then put before the whole board for a vote. I thought that you would be an idea person to advise the BEAR representatives as to how to structure the proposal to the Children's Committee to ensure that it is given a fair and expeditious review and decision - a proposal that would be comprehensible to board members who are not directly involved with the BEAR program. I also thought you could give this advice without having to commit a great deal of time (including travel time for meetings).

I think everyone agrees that it is a great program and that we should be supportive of such public-private partnerships. There is probably some difference of opinion amongst the board as to how much support (and at what pace) we should give the program. I would deeply appreciate your helping the BEAR folks make the clearest proposal possible. I, for one, want this program to succeed. As good as its current work is - I think it holds even greater potential for benefiting the children we serve. Thanks for your help, Ernest

As requested by Mark Evans, I attach the letter that West LB want us to issue in relation to Enron Corp rescinding the letter of credit request sent on Monday from Houston, which stated that we could not make the material litigation representation, and now issuing an unqualified letter of credit request form. I have attached an email containing the original request form for your information.

Please note that West LB have specifically demanded the inclusion of the last sentence to the first paragraph. They are unfortunately now very sensitive to this issue and may still want oral confirmation on our change of tack.

It should be noted that West LB is a party to the Enron Corp revolver (although through their New York branch, whereas this Facility is with West LB London Branch) and thus privy to the drawdown request given last week.

Dear Mark, I hope you are doing well. You may be getting a call from JoAnne Pinkett regarding a proposal for future funding of the BEAR program. There has apparently been some difficulty in communication between the BEAR board and our board.

Any proposal has to make its way through the Children's Services Committee then the Executive Committee. It is then put before the whole board for a vote. I thought that you would be an idea person to advise the BEAR representatives as to how to structure the proposal to the Children's Committee to ensure that it is given a fair and expeditious review and decision - a proposal that would be comprehensible to board members who are not directly involved with the BEAR program. I also thought you could give this advice without having to commit a great deal of time (including travel time for meetings).

I think everyone agrees that it is a great program and that we should be supportive of such public-private partnerships. There is probably some difference of opinion amongst the board as to how much support (and at what pace) we should give the program. I would deeply appreciate your helping the BEAR folks make the clearest proposal possible. I, for one, want this program to succeed. As good as its current work is - I think it holds even greater potential for benefiting the children we serve. Thanks for your help, Ernest

Accounts Payable Processing Status Update

Sender	dortha.gray@enron.com
Recipients	[]
File	haedicke-m/notes_inbox/68.

On May 1st, iBuyit Payables was activated for all organizations supported by the Houston Accounts Payable Processing Center. Since this transition, over 30,000 invoices have been successfully processed by this on-line tool. This is an exciting step towards transitioning all of Enron to the on-line processing of invoices.

Despite this initial success, I want to take this opportunity to address some of the concerns that we have been hearing about this new tool and the processing center.

I sent an invoice to Accounts Payable a while ago, but the vendor still has not been paid. The goal of the Accounts Payable Processing Center is to route the invoice through iBuyit Payables for coding and approval within 4 business days of receipt of the invoice by Accounts Payable. As with the introduction of a new process, Accounts Payable is experiencing transition issues and this process time is currently 8 to 10 business days. Accounts Payable is working very hard to overcome these issues, and expects to achieve the normal processing time of 4 business days within the next 9 business days.

When I call the Accounts Payable Call Center, they are unable to locate my invoice. This again is a result of the current backlog. Between the time that the Accounts Payable Processing Center receives an invoice, and the time that the invoice is scanned and entered into iBuyit Payable, it is very difficult to locate that invoice. Once normal processing time is achieved, this 18 period will be no more than 4 business days. In the meantime, it is critical that invoices are not resubmitted until you are certain that they have not been received by Accounts Payable.

What can I do to help process my invoices in a more timely manner? Vendors should submit invoices directly to the Accounts Payable Processing Center (PO Box 4734, Houston, TX 77210-4734, ATTN: Enron AP) and should indicate the company number and name, contact name, and coder, EID. Currently:

* 90% of invoices are received outside of the Accounts Payable Processing Center * On average, invoices received by Accounts Payable are already 37 days past due * On average, 40% of invoices received by Accounts Payable do not have the correct company number Submitting invoices directly to Accounts Payable with this information will dramatically increase the speed and accuracy of processing.

Providing you with efficient, accurate, and friendly service is very important to us. We appreciate your patience as we work to achieve normal processing levels of service. More importantly, we look forward to working with you on future enhancements that will enable iBuyit Payables to play a valuable role in your invoice payment activities. For invoice payment status please call the AP Call Center at (713) 853-7127 or toll free (866) AP ENRON, or send an e-mail to <mailto:iBuyit.payables@enron.com>.

If you have additional questions regarding Accounts Payable, please contact Judy Knepshield.

Thank you,

Bob: I am going to pass on the playoff tickets. Thanks. Mark

To: "Haedicke, Mark (Enron North America Corp.)" <mark.e.haedicke@enron.com>, "Rob Walls (E-mail)" <rob_walls@enron.com> cc: Subject: Rockets Playoff Tickets - Response needed this week.

Mark and Rob:

Rockets have been looking good (despite the recent slump) and have a chance to make the playoffs. (I heard on the radio this morning that Hakeem may be back.)

So the Rockets have sent out invoices for playoff tickets. We are supposed to respond by this Friday, March 30.

This year (perhaps because they know there's a decent chance they won't make the playoffs) the Rockets are invoicing playoff tickets in two installments. The first installment covers rounds one and two, and the second covers the Western Conference Finals and the NBA Championship.

I can't tell whether if you commit for the first two rounds you have a legal obligation to buy the second and third if they make it to the Western Conference Finals, but I assume that doesn't matter (we should assume that a commitment now means a financial commitment for the entire playoffs).

Rounds 1 and 2 encompass 6 games. $549 per seat, or $2,196 total. That's two games in Round 1 at $88.50 per ticket, and four games in Round 2 at $93.00 per ticket.

Rounds 3 and 4 (which we wouldn't have to pay for until later) are $916 per seat, or $3,664. I assume that Rounds 3 and 4 will include 8 games.

For the regular season I had 6/44 of the tickets, which is 13.6%. That's approximately 1 ticket in Rounds 1 and 2 and 1 ticket in Rounds 3 and 4. I'd be glad to spring for that, although if you all want all the playoff tickets that's fine also.

So I suppose how much it's going to cost each of you depends on whether my ticket is Round 1 or 2. If it's in round 2 each of you would pay $912 for the first two rounds, and if it's in round 1 each of you would pay $921. If the two of you want all the playoff tickets, each of you would pay $1,098 for Rounds 1 and 2.

This year the Rockets are saying that if the tickets are not used you can ask for a refund by the same means that you paid. So what I would propose to do it put all the charges on my credit card and if they don't make the playoffs that charge will be reversed; and it may not even make it on my bill if they don't make the playoffs.

Since I will put it on my card I won't need your money until about the 20th of April.

So please let me know if you want to commit and whether you want me to take a ticket out of each of the sets of rounds. (I'm fine either way)

Mark,

As a practical matter, I believe that it will be difficult to maintain an updated inventory of confidential information on an ongoing basis. That conceivably could be someone's full-time job, given the vast amount of confidential and proprietary projects at issue just within EWS.

I do agree that we need to put some protocols in place with regard to how Enron handles different levels of confidential information (including trade secrets). Rather than have an ongoing commission guided by outside counsel, I would suggest that Pete, Scott Tholan, the IT security team, internal corporate security, as well as legal subject matter experts get together to put forth guidelines on how information should be retained and protected. Those guidelines would describe the type of information at issue and the corresponding security measures to put in place to protect that material. For example, trading positions and curves would have one standard for access and disclosure, while personnel information would have a different one. The benefit to this approach is that we can set the guidelines and manage on a periodic basis to make sure that they are followed, rather than create updated inventories.

It also presumably would save on outside counsel fees. I would not view this type of approach as requiring much, if any, assistance from outside counsel.

Let me know your thoughts.

Pete Van De Gohm of EES has again raised the topic of inventorying our trade secret protection which has been discussed from time to time. I have visited with Jim Derrick about having a legal/business committee representing your major groups. It would function in a similar manner as our Y2K committee did. We would have Fulbright & Jaworski give our people general instructions, our business people would canvass our companies to determine what we considered proprietary trade secrets and if we were not protecting our proprietary information appropriately, we could address that issue. Fulbright could also be used on an ad hoc basis. Costs would be shared proportionately between the major groups except special fees attributable to a specific operating group.

I believe we need this inventory. If we try to enforce our non-competition agreements and we can't prove that we kept such information on a need to know basis and properly secured, we could lose the law suit.

Jim asked that I contact each of you regarding this to see if you were in agreement with the proposed plan. Please respond as soon as possible if you agree so we can get the project off the ground.

Eric ? Here are the main questions I would like to pose to Tim. Beyond these specifics, I would like to know how he thinks the California situation has affected energy trading in general. Please let me know if you or he would like more information. ? Thanks for your help - Dwight ? 1) How have energy trading contracts held up under the stress of the California crisis? 2) Does Enron use its own contract, or does it use the EEI-NEM master agreement? 3) Have traders changed any provisions in the contracts, or added clauses, to better deal with the market's price volatility or increased credit risk? 4) Last year there was concern over the adequacy of trading contracts after Cinergy's force majeure claim. Is there similar concern in California? 5) Are the remedies for failure to deliver or supply adequate? 20 6) Is the market now comfortable with the definition of force majeure? 7) Do you feel the contracts adequately protect energy trading concerns from 20 lawsuits and/or regulatory (e.g., FERC or PUC) interference in California? 8) Has the very high level of price volatility caused the firm to change how it hedges its own trading inventory? How important is it in this environment to own physical supply? 9) Has the high level of counterparty credit risk (e.g., PG&E) caused your firm to change its credit risk policies or hedging strategies? 10) Does having a sophisticated credit risk trading entity (Enron Credit) under the Enron umbrella help the energy trading desk deal with counterparty credit issues?

"Western Power Markets" and Other Events

Dear Electric Power Industry Colleague:

Soaring natural gas prices, heat waves, plant outages, low hydropower availability, capacity shortages many unexpected factors combined to send Western power prices upward last summer. In addition to fundamental factors, flaws in market rules and market power are also considered by many observers to have been significant causes. Western power markets continued to hold surprises in the fall and winter, as lower load levels did not result in the expected moderation of prices. Unprecedented gas market price spikes, and credit crisis due to the near-bankruptcy of California utilities, were added to the complex mix of market drivers.

Electric Utility Consultants, Inc. (EUCI) is organizing a conference to address these complex issues "What to Expect in Western Power Markets This Summer." The conference will bring together market forecasters, system operators, regulators, monitors, buyers, sellers and other industry experts to present and discuss the latest facts, policies, and forecasts. Presentations and panel discussions will cover supply, demand and price forecasts; how the Western markets work when capacity is short; changes to ISO rules and regulatory policies; and FERC's price mitigation measures. In addition, a session will cover longer term developments in the western markets.

Attend EUCI's timely conference, "What To Expect in Western Power Markets This Summer" to get as clear a picture as is likely to be available.

Transmission Grid Expansion and System Reliability Conferences =20

May 21-25, 2001, Denver, Colorado

Overview =20

The conferences focus on the Regulatory Issues and Pricing of Transmission= . =20 The conferences also have a strong focus on enabling transmission =20 technologies. These advanced transmission technologies promise market =20 participants speed and flexibility towards achieving their goals of=20 enhancing system capacity, responding to price incentives and increasing= =20 system reliability.

In the post FERC 2000 era, the industry participants are looking for clear= =20 guidelines on regulation and pricing. A well defined regulatory and pricin= g=20 structure would allow them to pursue their business models without=20 compromising the reliability of the national electric grid. The crisis in= =20 California reinforces the need for these clear guidelines. While the rules= =20 of the game are still not as clear as many would like it and while there a= re=20 vast differences in approach in different regions, some areas of consensus = =20 have emerged among market participants and regulators. The industry experts= =20 participating in this conference provide a focus group for identifying area= s=20 of consensus. The conference participants will also be able to form opinio= ns=20 on areas where regulation is not addressing the issues and need to be=20 addressed. Participants will also come away with a good appreciation of wh= at=20 is technologically feasible to meet their business goals.

The brochure for the conferences and associated workshop is attached=20 herewith. The registration information is included in the brochure. Please= =20 print the brochure and fax the registration form back to us. =20

The latest from the ABI:

California PUC Likely to Abandon Electricity Deregulation California's Public Utilities Commission (PUC) will vote today on a measure that could strip away one of the last vestiges of the state's failed experiment with energy deregulation, which was widely blamed for rolling blackouts and ballooning bills, according to the Associated Press. Deregulation would be replaced with a system dominated by the governor, a new public power authority and three troubled utility companies. The vote comes as other states are backing away from the experiment that was supposed to revolutionize the energy industry. Today's vote could wipe out consumers' ability to choose their electricity provider and buy power directly from retailers. T rumpeted at its creation in 1996 as a way to stimulate competition and lower electric rates, deregulation foundered after a year of soaring wholesale electrical prices and customer bills, the bankruptcy of the state's number one utility (Pacific Gas & Electric), and energy shortages that led to rolling blackouts.

California Renewable Power Plant Owners Fight Edison Bankruptcy A bankruptcy proceeding for Edison International's regulated utility subsidiary, Southern California Edison (SoCal Edison), would have severe negative consequences for the renewable energy community and for all Californians, the Renewable Energy Creditors Committee announced yesterday, Dow Jones reported. The association said it was responding to media reports that other creditors are on the verge of forcing Edison into bankruptcy. "Such a filing would raise the cost of doing business in California for years to come," the group said. "Those who finance bonds to carry out capital improvements will place risk premiums on California projects, if it is demonstrated through the bankruptcy of both of the state's largest utilities that default on debt is an acceptable option."

In March, several members of the Renewable Energy Creditors Committee came close to initiating an involuntary bankruptcy proceeding against Edison, but a key court decision and the movement of some funds to the generators staved off the move. "The committee will not take action for now to force Edison into bankruptcy as long as a legislative solution to take care of back payments and encourage the use of renewable energy remains possible," the committee said.

Long Beach, Power Suppliers May Force SoCal Edison Bankruptcy The City of Long Beach, Calif., is mulling over a plan to join two large power generators in a move to force California's second largest utility into an involuntary bankruptcy proceeding, Dow Jones reported. Mirant Corp. and Reliant Energy Inc. have been in contact with the city about joining the two companies to force Southern California Edison (SoCal Edison) into involuntary bankruptcy. It takes three creditors, who are owed a combined $10,000, to force such a proceeding. Long Beach has a lawsuit against the Edison International unit, claiming it's owed $19 million for power it supplied to the utility in which it was never paid. The council is expected to decide on its next course of action at its meeting next Tuesday. Mirant and Reliant's top executives said they are trying to recruit one more creditor in hopes of pushing the utility into bankruptcy this week. The companies already have the bankruptcy filing prepared and are looking for one more signature, executives said. The generators are owed more than $500 million, of the $1 billion SoCal Edison owes to power generators. The companies have also been trying to recruit small power producers, the state's so-called qualifying facilities, to join in an involuntary bankruptcy proceeding. Ted Craver, chief financial officer for Edison International, said the company would vigorously fight an involuntary bankruptcy proceeding.

As I reported at the Operating committee meeting Monday morning, we are developing a dedicated team to address EES/ENA coordination issues. Jim Keller will head the team from our perspective. We all recognize that last week's events were unfortunate, and are developing processes and procedures. Several meetings with ENA legal have occurred and more are planned. We will keep you posted and in the meantime, feel free to call Jim or myself. We know how important this issue is to the organization.

Hope that you are both in the loop with Richard Z. as he tries to lead some of this tie-breaking. (This is still the California piece). Clearly, at least the optics around this demonstrate a need for evolving legal processes around our changing internal approval relationship with ENA. I should have an update around noon today from the deal team.

Richard, I have forwarded to you a copy of the Sysco California contract marked to show comments made by ENA. Although ENA was very responsive, I did not find their comments substantive but rather style/preference oriented. Given that this was the first time they had seen this document, I was somewhat surprised. Jim Keller (who worked with Debbie) and Debbie reviewed them and took some of their suggestions and ignored others. I don't think ENA completely understands the retail business as some of their comments were more wholesale oriented. Debbie can give you her view as well as information on the "process" the two legal departments used to work through the document. I do not know what conversations Don Black had with ENA legal.

I think what frustrated Hector and me so much was the number of people who had to review the contract, make suggestions, the suggestions had to be incorporated into the document (which, remember, Sysco had already seen once), then re-reviewed by the person making the suggestion. I realize that we are breaking new ground and that it is a California contract but there needs to be a better, less time consuming and smoother way.

I have listed below most of the people who reviewed the contract (to the best of my memory). Several of these individuals were difficult to corner as this was not really their responsibility but given the state (California), were asked to do so.

Debbie Asmus - lead attorney Mike Smith - commodity Jim Kellar - commodity California Counsel - enforceability issue for Calif. Elizabeth Sager - ENA legal Paul Peppitone - Andrews & Curth - outside counsel - drafting Beth Apke - tax Don Black - commodity Neil Bresnan - California curves Sean Holmes - Nina Nguyen - mark to market Denise Furey - credit Chris Riley - commodity structuring Mary Sapalio - account services Hector Gutierrez - Chuck Randall

I reviewed the information below and the current functionality of the=20 website. Basically, eLaw is a shopping center for legal information. =20 Currently only information related to Labor & Employment is available, but= =20 construction efforts are focused on many other areas including Antitrust,= =20 Corporate Securities, E-Commerce, Environmental and Intellectual Property. = =20

Since it is a shopping center, it basically works like any other shopping= =20 site. You search for the information you want, whether it is an article,= =20 legal brief or form document related to the desired topic. Once you find= =20 something you want, you move it to your "Briefcase" (or shopping cart) and= =20 continue searching. Once you have finished searching, you go to the check= =20 out screen and, after checking out, download the information, via e-mail, = to=20 your computer.

As with the legal education site I have been looking at, the central questi= on=20 is the integrity of the information. Though it may have been developed by = a=20 reputable source (e.g., Baker & Botts, Baker Hostetler, etc.), concerns as = to=20 age, reliability, and specifically direct applicability, would always=20 prevail. The information would be useful as a base or building block, but= =20 there may be additional work to do in order to verify the information or=20 tailor it to the specific need (especially if the need has specific jurisdiction requirements).

I would be more than happy to further review the product if you wanted to pursue it. However, as I indicated, usefulness at this time may be somewhat limited given the limited topic areas covered.

Mark,

The Austin Ventures people in Austin who have invested in eLaw have had the people contact me. Curious for your perspective of the business plan in the attached Executive summary which I excerpted the following:

eLaw is partnering with some of the worlds leading law firms to build comprehensive databases of proprietary legal analysis and work product that are accessible online by attorneys.

By leveraging quality, branded work product -- including agreement forms, briefs, memoranda, pleadings and checklists to a much wider audience than has previously been accomplished, eLaw is creating profound new economies of scale in the area where a majority of attorneys spend most of their billable time: legal research and document drafting of transaction and litigation oriented material. By using material in the eLaw libraries, eLaw users can: ? Accelerate the research and drafting process by directly accessing a volume and quality of materials that have previously been available only within large law firms ? Increase productivity and efficiency and avoid reinventing the wheel (or paying outside counsel to do so), saving hundreds of dollars per hour ? Reduce fees paid to outside law firms by in-house counsel

Would you please give me a call when you have had a chance to review.

Thanks,

Steve Horn

Mike,

thanks for the note. London lawyers already participate in a Houston legal trading forum at which these issues are being dealt with. I will check that there is no other forum on which Mark Haedicke needs our input.

There is also an ongoing effort in the UK, headed by Anna McAndrew and Richard Sage, contributed to on the legal front by Mark Elliott.

Mark,

Below are files regarding a presentation to the Management Committee on distressed debt and bankruptcy exposure. In the middle of last (most recent) email it discusses a legal effort in Houston to better understand rights upon counterparty bankruptcy.

Do we want someone from London to be involved on the legal end? I would imagine so since laws are quite diverse but I don't know the specific questions being asked. Is there someone I can put in touch with Michael Tribolet and Mark Haedicke (or their assigns)?

Thanks

I wanted to follow up to your questions:

Pasted below is the presentation for the Management Committee. Rick Buy indicated there were no substantive comments. The list is updated as new bankruptcies occur (which is almost daily). I would imagine there will be enhancements to the format, but the one attached is what we are initially rolling out. We are meeting every two weeks to review the list for missing fields.

I have a meeting tomorrow with Mark Haedicke to try to formalize our legal effort/team. Currently, we tend to have some of the same originating attorneys involved. Where we have had problems has been in the determination of termination rights upon bankruptcy. It would make sense in Houston to have one (or two) Enron Corp attorneys that can quickly and regularly make this determination.

We need to push the data collection responsibility into each business unit. We would then take their reports and paste it into one company-wide sheet. While Molly has drafted a cogent process, the implementation at the business unit level has been choppy thus far. More to come.

Regards,

Michael

Mike,

Can I get a copy of whatever the final distressed workbooks / presentation looked like? Thanks.

Also, do you have any plans going forward? When is the next summary (special effort / reconciliation) required? Do you have any changed formats or requirements since Buy's discussions with management?

Absent any changes you note we will continue to update and institutionalize (regular reporting system) information along the lines of that provided last week.

Mark,

in the light of this, I am feeling uncomfortable about asking my staff to fly to Houston for the conference. Several of them have already spoken to me about this and expressed their nervousness.

Can we talk about this this pm on our call.

Thanks

Business Controls@ENRON Sent: 20 September 2001 02:12 To: All Enron Worldwide@ENRON Subject: SECURITY TRAVEL UPDATE

As we return to our regular business activities following last week's tragic events, we wanted to disseminate as widely as possible the following information on security and travel. Updates will be posted as necessary under "bulletins" on the Corporate Security website located at www.home.enron.com.

We do not believe that any terrorist groups will target Enron's employees or facilities. As a precautionary measure, however, we have increased security in and around our facilities. We urge all employees to maintain a heightened sense of awareness and to immediately report any suspicious activity to Enron Corporate Security in Houston at (713) 345-2804.

All non-essential business travel should be postponed until further notice. Airline schedules and flights will be disrupted for some time - and bomb hoaxes, false alarms, and increased security measures will result in additional delays and disruptions. In addition, all carriers, particularly U.S. carriers and those of U.S. allies such as Israel and NATO member countries, may be at risk for copycat hijackings.

We realize that, as Enron conducts its business, some air travel is unavoidable. Enron employees who wish to discuss their travel options should contact Corporate Security at (713) 345-2804 or via email at CorporateSecurity@enron.com.

U.S. military action in retaliation for the terrorist attacks may result in violent Islamic extremist reactions in a number of countries, particularly in Afghanistan, Yemen, and Pakistan, as well as in Egypt, Iran, Iraq, Israel, Gaza/West Bank, Jordan, Kuwait, Lebanon, Libya, Saudi Arabia, Sudan, Syria and Tajikistan. Reactions could take the form of acts by individuals or organized groups against U.S. government or commercial facilities. All travel to or through these countries should be canceled.

Most of the U.S.' busiest airports have implemented the FAA's stepped-up security measures and are open and operating, with the exception of Washington Reagan National Airport. If you are traveling by air, allow plenty of time to check in under these new security procedures. Contact your carrier directly to find out about flight schedules and specific boarding requirements. You can find more information on the new security standards as well as a list of airports that have certified they can meet the new security standards on the FAA's website at <http://www.faa.gov>.

Dear Mr Mark Haedicke:

Lions, tigers and bears and another conference . . . oh no! WAIT - don't be like me and just put this one with all the other junk e-mail you receive and we know where that goes. Take a look and see what's in store for us this year at CBI's 3rd Annual Financing US Projects Conference. Believe me, I know what you are thinking. Several conference brochures come across my desk every day and admittedly I have seen and heard too many of the same people speak about the same thing. CBI, however, always seems to be able to bring something new and interesting each time they organize this conference. Last year was a great success. If you didn't make it last year, come see what you have been missing. If you did, come back and hear and explore some of the latest developments in financing power projects.

Before assembling their agenda, the Center for Business Intelligence makes a concerted effort to speak with professionals in our industry to ensure that the most popular topics and issues are addressed so that people like you and me can do our business better. This year, CBI has assembled an excellent round of speakers who are experts in their fields and who will provide you with a first hand view of their experiences.

Besides being an excellent networking opportunity, CBI's 3rd Annual Financing US Projects is assured to provide you with an opportunity to get an update on many interesting areas of financing power projects from both a debt and equity perspective. Join your colleagues at an event, which could once again be one of the most informative conferences of the year.

In a market like today, one cannot miss a conference like this! This year's conference takes place in New York City on November 15-16, 2001. What better way to round out the year and support a city struck by tragedy to emerge and lead our us all into a political and economic victory. I hope you can join me and all of your other colleagues, bankers and consultants so that we can all share our views and experiences in a market, which appears to have no boundaries for creativity. For more information or to register, call CBI toll free at 800-817-8601 (781-939-2438 outside the U.S.), e-mail cbireg@cbinet.com <<mailto:cbireg@cbinet.com>>, or visit <<http://www.cbinet.com/>>. Hope to see you there!

Sincerely,

Eric L. McCartney Head of Project Finance - the Americas

P.S. This e-mail entitles you to a $300.00 discount off the conference registration fee. Please call CBI at 800-817-8601 (781-939-2438 outside the U.S.), e-mail cbireg@cbinet.com <<mailto:cbireg@cbinet.com>>, or visit us at <http://www.cbinet.com>. Mark: As noted in the few attached e-mails, we have been asked to give some general advice on municipalization to the City of Bakersfield, CA. I assume that this is not an issue from a conflict perspective, but because it "touches" CA I had raised it with Vicki just in case there was something that I was not aware of. Could I bother you to Reply to this and just let me know if you see any possible problem with us doing this work? Thanks.

It was good to catch up with you briefly on Friday. It sure seems like everything is going very well for you. With everything you have going on, both domestically and internationally, I appreciate your taking the time to get together. I'm sure we will be speaking in the not too distant future as the CA developments continue to unfold over the next few weeks.

Thanks.

John

Vicki: I assume this is not a problem from a conflict, but just wanted to double check since it "touches" CA. As you may know from the trade press, a number of cities, etc. have been looking into the possibility of forming their own municipally owned utilities in light of all the CA problems. This will undoubtedly be a long and arduous process by any city that pursues it and probably will not go anywhere, at least not in the short term. Nonetheless, I just wanted to check. I assume we are still on for this afternoon at 2:00 p.m. Thanks. John

John,

As mentioned in my E-mail, I have been contacted by the City Attorney of Bakersfield, Cal., a city of about 150,000 concerning our ability to advice the City concerning it operating its own electric utility. I told him that because of our work for Enron that I would need to check whether we would be in a position to be of assistance.

I would appreciate your thoughts. Bakersfield is in P G & E's service area.

You have been designated as a member of the Resource Group for purposes of the Enron Wholesale Services (EWS) Chinese Wall policy, which is currently being revised to reflect the new EWS organizational structure.

The Chinese Wall policy serves to reduce the risk of insider trading liability by keeping material non-public information walled off from our equity trading personnel. The Resource Group acts as a sort of filter so that certain information may pass through the "wall", under appropriate controls. It is critical that we enforce proper compliance with the Chinese Wall policy. Without this policy, Enron would not be able to engage in equity trading activities.

Early next year, the ENA Legal Department will conduct training sessions on Chinese Wall policies and procedures for our equity traders, Resource Group members, and other appropriate employees. A larger group of employees will receive the newly revised policies and procedures and be asked to certify compliance. In the meantime, please feel free to call Lance Schuler at 35419, Bob Bruce at 57780, or me at 36544 should you have any questions concerning the policy or the role of the Resource Group.

Enron has had a very good year to date and we at Enron Europe have played our part in this. However, if we are to maintain growth levels, we need to focus very closely on our cost base and create more efficiencies in the current round of Enron Corp. budget reviews.

We are analysing much more closely exactly which businesses we derive our earnings from and concentrating our resources on those areas. We will be taking decisions to put some projects on the "back burner" and reduce the scope of others.

This will inevitably mean that we need to reduce our headcount both in commercial and commercial support groups as we seek to identify the best mix of skills to keep us on our earnings growth track. To this end we will be seeking to cut our headcount in Europe by between five and ten percent, but we will aim as far as possible to achieve this through a program of voluntary severance. Details of this program will be made available by Monday 8th October. We hope to complete this exercise and communicate the outcome as quickly as possible in October so that everyone knows where they stand.

Please feel free to contact either of us, but also talk to your supervisor about any specific concerns you may have and remember that you can also make use of the LifeWorks confidential counselling service that is available on 0800 169 1920.

We firmly believe that if we work hard together now to achieve these short term goals, we will create a stronger, more flexible team at Enron which will be better placed than ever to grow our business in Europe.

Dear Mark and Lance:

I know it's a challenging time over there right now for all of you, and that the last thing you want is another pitch. However, I wanted to let you know that we're still thinking of you and eager to do whatever we can to assist in the transition process. In that regard, several of us got together yesterday to meet and discuss areas where we could provide some assistance to Enron as it moves forward. That list is as follows:

Divestitures. As you know, we certainly have a close familiarity with Enron's various businesses. While it's presumably too early to know what Enron will keep and what it will dispose of, we are certainly well situated to assist in those transactions.

Restructurings. We are also well-positioned to assist you in any debt restructurings which Enron chooses to pursue. I will separately send you some additional information regarding our banking and lending practice, and loan restructuring practice.

Securities Litigation. While I know Enron retained Wilmer, Cutler & Pickering for most of the securities litigation, we do have some unique capabilities in that regard, and would like to explore either serving as local counsel in some of that litigation, or representating some of the Enron affiliates that are named in the litigation. Again, I will separately send some information regarding our securities litigation practice.

Commercial Leasing. I imagine that Enron's office space situation will change fairly dramatically. We have extensive experience in leasing and subleasing matters, as well as real estate work-out matters.

Labor/Employment. We can offer targeted and deep expertise in any aspect of labor and employment law that may be implicated in the Dynegy/Enron merger, from review and analysis of employment agreements that may exist with key Enron employees to assisting with any adjustment of the workforce of the combined companies. I will send you more detailed information about our practice in this area.

Mark and Lance, this list is intended merely as our best guess as to areas where Enron may need some assistance--it is not meant to be exhaustive. We want to help you in any way that we can, whether it's in areas that we've discussed above, or in other areas that we haven't thought of. The key point is that we are here to help. Call me when you get some time and we can discuss this in more detail. My direct line is (713) 226-1143.

Very truly yours,

Bill

Alan, Thanks for your note. I will be in Houston Wednesday-Friday if you wish to meet and discuss. Unfortunately, I don't have market data with me, but should be able to gather some information from McLagan by the end of the week. One issue that needs to be addressed is the unenforceability of fixed term employment contracts in Japan. Under Japanese law, a fixed term contract which is longer than one year binds only the employer - no obligation is created on the part of the employee beyond the first year of the contract. I have some ideas as to how we might address. Let me know if you have time to meet later this week. Thanks, Caroline

Last week I spoke with Mark Haedicke (who I report to within Legal), Mike McConnell and Joe Hirl about offering to Jane McBride a two-year employment contract. All three are on board with this idea. Mark will be in Tokyo later this week and early next week (he will be in the Tokyo office on Monday I believe). I want to work with you (and Sheila Walton/Kathy Neal of HR here in Houston) on the contract details. Our internal HR lawyer, Michelle Cash, would also need to be involved in the drafting of the contract working with Japanese outside counsel. Currently, we were thinking about a signing cash amount as well as some stock options at signing. In light of the market, do you have a feel for what those numbers should be?

Please feel free to contact me here in the office (713-853-3214) or at home (713-667-0525) as soon as you get this message so we can discuss further.

Pat Holmes -----Original Message----- From: Zimmer, Michael J [mailto:Michael.J.Zimmer@BAKERNET.com] Sent: Wednesday, October 31, 2001 3:22 PM Subject: E-Notes: Risk Considerations for Enron Counterparties: Failure to Exercise Rights May Constitute Waiver

<<...OLE_Obj...>> E-Notes provides regular briefings on new developments in global energy and public utility law. October 31, 2001 RISK CONSIDERATIONS FOR ENRON COUNTERPARTIES: FAILURE TO EXERCISE RIGHTS MAY CONSTITUTE WAIVER The reduction by Moody's Investor Service Inc. of Enron Corp.'s senior unsecured long-term debt to Baa2 from Baa1 this week may be an issue of concern for companies that are counterparts to Enron obligations. This downgrade may have immediate consequences under existing transactions with Enron given that its current credit rating is now two levels above non-investment grade. Any further downgrade into non-investment grade levels could seriously affect relationships between counterparties and Enron, and possibly Enron counterparties and their counterparties. Enron is the principal in nearly one-quarter of all electricity and natural gas trades in the United States. For Enron's power and gas trading counterparties, a credit event such as a downgrade by Moody's may precipitate certain obligations under the terms of their trading transactions. For example, any downgrade, not just a downgrade resulting in a sub-investment grade rating, may entitle a counterparty to require Enron to provide additional credit in support of Enron's purchase obligations. Counterparties should examine all power, gas or other commodity purchase and sale documentation to confirm whether they possess this right. The failure to exercise this right may constitute a waiver and foreclose access to critical performance and payment assurance, threatening to alter the risk assessment and mitigation considerations upon which the transactions were originally based. Furthermore, a failure to declare a credit event or default against Enron could cause a default on the part of the counterparty itself in collateral or ancillary arrangements, such as its financing. The potential for a domino effect, causing defaults or credit events in a series of transactions, is considerable. It is uncertain whether Enron's efforts to obtain new lines of credit will be sufficient to overcome the current difficulties. Regardless, it is prudent to review the terms of existing transactions with Enron or its affiliates, including any guarantees or other forms of corporate credit support. It is also advisable to examine the terms of transactions dependent on, or otherwise ancillary to, transactions with Enron or its affiliates to avoid any consequential effects of the Enron credit ratings downgrade. Rob has asked me to collect legal department views on the attached statement of principles regarding Security and Human Rights that Enron Corp is considering endorsing. These have been worked out over the past several months by a task force of the US and UK governments, along with representatives of industry (including Enron) and NGOs (including Amesty and Human Rights Watch) under the auspices of Secretary fo State Albright and Foreign Secretary Cook. As a result, we really don't have the ability to change the text, which is fixed.

As you know, Enron is very concerned about human rights issues because of their intrinsic value and their community relations impacts. These guidelines would be in addition to the Human Rights Policy Statement the Enron board adopted last year, which really do not touch on security matters as such. I have sent this to each of your since your business units are those that have the most extensive operations in the developing countries in which these issues are of primary concern. (I am separately collecting comments/concerns from within EES and EECC.)

The Enron effort on this guideline project has been lead by Lauren Goldblatt of the Corp. PR group. Lauren has run the attached drafts past Mike Hicks and Pete Vandergam at Corp. Security for their views of whether this can be implemented by Enron. We as the legal department have been asked to express our view on are the following:

(a) Are there any show stoppers that would argue that Enron should not publicly express its "endorsement" of these polices? (b) If Enron were to express its endorsement of the policy statement, what if any material problems do you think your business line might encounter in implementing the policy? (c) Do you see any unintended practical or legal consequences that might arise from Enron publicly adopting or endorsing this as policy?

Please take an hour few hours to read through the materials, or have one of your lawyers do so. You might need to consult with your operation personnel for their practical views as well. I would be grateful if you could express any concerns you may see with the guidelines by November 7 (Wednesday) so that I can coordinate comments and get the responses out. (The deadline for Enron and other companies to express their endorsement of the policy has been extended from the November 8 deadline expressed in the attached to November 15. To allow time for Enron to deal with responses, we have been asked to get our feed back to Lauren by November 8 (Thursday).)

You cane-mail your comments or phone them to me at 713-646-6309. If I get suffucient expressions of interest for a conference call by Monday, I will set up a call in number for Wednesday morning US.

Thanks, I appreciate your views and comments.

John, Rob and I have talked and Rob would like you to take the lead on this. Deborah, I need you to work with John S. to see how our international EES business (Europe, Mexico, etc.) might be affected by this and whether we take this position. I am sure Rob and JOhn will have the history and expert opinion as to how this should be handled, and my guess is, this issue primarily affects EECC at this time. Maybe one of the Apache lawyers can take the lead for the traditional EES business. Rob will be in next week and then going out of town and I will pick up for him then. ----- Forwarded by Vicki Sharp/HOU/EES on 10/26/2000 09:56 AM -----

Rob and Vicki:

Over the past few months we have participated in an initiative aimed at developing a voluntary set of guidelines governing human rights and security arrangements. I would greatly appreciate your thoughts, review, and sign off on the guidelines.

Should we agree to endorse the principles, we must send a letter to the U.S. State Department by November 8, 2000. I have attached a fact sheet as well as the revised principles for your review.

The principles and signatories will be announced by Madeline Albright and Secretary Robin Cook in November.

Thank you for time and consideration on this. Please do not hesitate to call with any questions. I can be reached either by cell phone (917) 821-0724 or by voicemail at 212-702-3916.

Best Regards,

Lauren
