Dear Nicolas:

I am pleased that you found the Cancun meeting to be a good experience. My wife and I also thought it was a very enjoyable couple of days.

With reference to contacting the appropriate people representing Enron in Mexico, you should contact either Jaime Alatorre or Max Yzaguirre. Either one of these individuals could entertain a discussion of how we might be able to work together.

Best regards,

Ken

Here is a three page summary of Amory Lovins project at the Rocky Mountain Institute. You recall you were going to have someone at Enron look it over to see if you had any interest in supporting it. Whoever gets the task is free to talk with Amory, Kathleen Moazed at the Kirsch Foundation and the Center for Innovative Policies, or me.

Compaq Merger Interview with WSJ Today

Sender	grace.trent@compaq.com
Recipients	['kenneth.lay@enron.com']
File	lay-k/inbox/542.

Ken - Michael will be talking with this reporter tomorrow but he'd be grateful if you could make 10 minutes to be our Board Voice for this important interview in the Wall Street Journal. I know you are only available today at 4:30 p.m. so i am waiting for a response. Here is the background on the interview. Let me know if you have any concerns or questions. Thank you in advance. -- Grace Trent

Holman Jenkins at The Journal is working on his column "Business World" which will run next Wed on the editorial page. He would like to capture your view on why the merger is the right next step for Compaq and Compaq shareholders.

Holman would like to present a Compaq rationale for the merger story and his groundrules are to run "near word for word" the business case with a working title of "Why this deal is the right next move for Compaq and Compaq shareholders." He will then weign-in as to whether he "buys into" our rationale or not. He is starting from a good/seemingly fair mindset. The reporter has a reputation for having strong personal ethics and we have no reason to believe this will be a negative story. In fact, Holman said that "he is inclined to think this was a move made for all the right reasons but for some reason the street hasn't understood."

Ken - we need your help to underscore Michael's tenure, track record and ability to get the integration done; all-the-while being careful that we don't paint a picture of Compaq's future that leaves the reader with a sense of concern if the merger is unsuccessful. We know there is a risk of the headline being "the end of an era" or worse, the end of a great brand." But instead of the end, it is actually the beginning of something great -- a better, strong company -- and as Carly said in the Houston Chronicle last week, "While Compaq will not be the enterprise-wide brand for very pragmatic reasons, it does not mean the end of the Compaq brand." Holman's Takeaway: While we won't make this a point by point on the new HP Compaq vs. IBM it is likely that his takeaway is that this deal is about creating a viable alternative to IBM and why that is a good thing for the industry, the customer and our global competitiveness. Lastly, chemistry is important with Holman and this will be more of a conversation than an interview. There could be issues that come up that you'd like him to understand but won't want attributed to a Compaq spokesperson. In that case, they should feel free to let him know you'd like to share your thinking but would like to do so off-the-record. I am specifically referring to the EU and regulatory landscape which he'll have to ask about and we'll obviously want the public record to reflect a somewhat humble comment about both companies commitment to go through the entire process and address any concerns they may have.

Thank you very much for your kind words on the recent tragedy in Lima, specially in a day like today. We at the Consulate appreciated a lot. Please find attached the letter we sent just now to the Mayor's Office for Economic Deelopment & International Trade, asking for humanitarian assistance. If you could circulate the lleter it will help a great deal. We sure can receive donations of medicines at the Consulate. In case people would like to send money please mention to issued checks to "Consulate General of Peru" .

Sincerely,

Carlos Velasco, Consul General

Mr. Ron Bernstein Director of the Mayor's Office for Economic Development and int. Trade Dear Mr.Bernstein,

As you may know by the news last Saturday occurred a great tragedy in Peru, related to a large fire in downtown Lima, which killed nearly 300 persons and caused 700 injured.

The authorities of the Government of Per? are requesting urgent humanitarian assistance in medicines for burns and medical tolls to treat the injured. Due to the magnitude of the situation the Government has declared a two days of official mourning.

Although this tragedy is no match to the horrendous terrorist attacks of September 11th. in New York, there is a great need for help and cooperation to pale the suffering of the victims.

In this sense, I would appreciate very much if your Office could mobilized any local agencies or private corporation to make donations in humanitarian aid to be send to Lima in the next days.

On our part, the Peruvian community have organized a gathering to collect money and buy medicines to be held today at Marthas's Golden Palace (1755 W. 48th. Avenue) for the New Years Eve.

Thanks in advance for your cooperation,

Sincerely,

Carlos Velasco Mendiola Consul General of Peru

Hi Mr. Reed -

I left a message on Thursday evening for Rosemarie, but was out Friday, so was too busy to follow up today, but having said all that, Ken Lay wanted me to let you know that he would like to have the TFA board meeting at the Enron building. Please let me know if that will be possible.

Gentlemen,

Technology For All (TFA) received today our 501(c)(3) exemption letter from the IRS. This letter gives us the opportunity to vigorously pursue new funding opportunities and also validates what we have known all along. TFA is a charitable organization serving the underserved in communities across the US.

We thank Jack Clark, our general counsel, for his arduous pro-bono legal work over the past 15 months that helped make this happen. THANKS JACK!!!

On another note, each of you should have received word from Rosemarie Foster, TFA's Administrative Assistant, regarding a Technology For All Board meeting scheduled for Tuesday, May 8, 2001 at the University Hilton on the University of Houston Campus. The meeting will take place at 2:00 PM and conclude by 3:30 PM. It will take place in the context of an all-day Technology For All sponsored conference "Digital Divide: A Call to Action". Each of you will receive an complimentary invitation to the activities of the day. Ken Lay will be hosting a CEO breakfast at 8:00 am. Our purpose there will be to tell the TFA story and invite the CEO's present to make a commitment to help TFA eliminate the digital divide across Houston and beyond. At lunch, Greg Priest, CEO of SmartForce, will be speaking. SmartForce recently gave TFA access to all its online eLearning content. This gift will allow TFA to provide workforce training opportunities to half a million persons over the next three years. We will thank SmartForce during the luncheon for their enormous gift which has a retail value that could be as high as nine figures (depending on the number of courses utilized).

Regards,

Will

Consumer Welfare Benefits from Bell Company Entry into

The Consumer-Welfare Benefits from Bell Company Entry into Long-Distance Communications: Empirical Evidence from New York and Texas

JERRY A. HAUSMAN Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT) ; National Bureau of Economic Research (NBER) ; Lexecon, Inc. GREGORY K. LEONARD Lexecon, Inc. J. GREGORY SIDAK American Enterprise Institute (AEI)

Abstract: For years, the effect of entry by the Bell operating companies (BOCs) into in-region interLATA long-distance markets has been the subject of conjecture and debate. Although economic theory suggests why substantial price reductions will occur upon BOC entry, many regulatory economists nonetheless conjectured that such entry would not benefit consumers significantly. Now that regulators have issued the first authorizations for BOCs to commence in-region interLATA service, it is possible to test that conjecture empirically. In this Article, we report empirical findings that BOC entry has produced substantial consumer-welfare benefits in New York and Texas in the form of lower prices for long-distance service. We find statistically significant evidence that BOC entry enabled the average consumer to reap a 9-percent savings on her monthly interLATA bill in New York and a 23-percent savings in Texas. In addition, we find statistically significant evidence that competitive local exchange carriers (CLECs) have a substantially higher cumulative share of the local exchange market in states where BOC entry has occurred. This empirical evidence is highly relevant to the BOCs' many remaining applications to provide in-region interLATA service in other states. That evidence also reveals the extent to which the framework used by the Federal Communications Commission and the Department of Justice to evaluate BOC applications for in-region interLATA service has failed to account fully for the interests of consumers. This framework has assumed that BOC entry would not significantly lower long-distance prices. But the empirical evidence has demonstrated that this assumption is incorrect. In an attempt to remedy a perceived market failure, the FCC and the DOJ produced a regulatory failure whose losses in consumer welfare run into billions of dollars annually.

Mr. Kenneth L. Lay Chairman and Chief Executive Officer Enron Corporation

Dear Mr. Lay:

The Earth Times/Conference News Daily has been invited to publish daily print and Web editions at the upcoming Ministerial Meeting of the World Trade Organization in Doha, November 9-13, 2001. These daily editions--which will supplement WTO and Qatar's extraordinary efforts to ensure the success of the meeting--will be distributed to delegates each morning at their hotels, and also at the Doha Conference Center. As you know, this critical meeting will consider the admission of China, and also decide on launching a new round of trade talks. It will attract thousands of top officials from government, industry, diplomacy, as well as media representatives.

We will also simultaneously publish daily editions in New York, as the United Nations General Assembly reopens its fall meeting cancelled on September 11, and hosts heads-of-state from November 10-16. President George W. Bush will lead world leaders in signaling a renewed drive against terrorism and launch a new initiative to jump-start global economic growth.

Our newspaper will be the paper of record at both the WTO and General Assembly meetings. It is guaranteed to reach all participants, many of whom are eager readers from our coverage of major international conferences for more than a decade, including UN gatherings and the annual meeting of the World Economic Forum in Davos, Switzerland. Our not-for-profit newspaper has made a mark as an independent, nonpartisan editorial voice on international economic, environmental and social issues. Our Chairman and Publisher is Mr. Theodore W. Kheel, the eminent lawyer and mediator.

We plan to publish a total of ten daily editions in print and on the Web from November 8 through 17. We would very much like to invite Enron to sponsor these special editions either fully or in part, and to use our publication as an effective means of conveying your position on the critical issues that will be discussed to the audiences in Qatar and New York in a position to do something about them. Our overall budget for both the WTO and General Assembly meetings is US$150,000.

Enron could contribute any amount it wishes. In exchange, you will get front-page mention each day, plus a four-color ad in every issue.

I would be most obliged for your consideration. Please be assured of the utmost cooperation of our newspaper and myself.

With thanks again for your continuing support, and my highest personal regards,

Yours sincerely, Pranay Editor-in-Chief and President

Ken: Please note that Mr. Lars Uno Thulin has asked to meet with Bob Fisher of Hills and Company and I on Friday, December 1 while we are in Oslo to promote our campaign to get energy services support in the WTO. This meeting and others in Brussels and Dusseldorf earlier that week had been requested by the USTR as part of the grass roots outreach program. Considerable support for energy services has been building according to USTR although our own people indicated to Bob Fisher and me several days ago that Enron may not want to provide funding for the Energy Services Coalition beyond December. Further, with my pending retirement in March, there is a question as to who from industry will lead the coalition. Bob Fisher gave Rick a paper on developments and funding for the future although I submitted in my 2001 budget proposal fully funding the effort.

Do you have any advice regarding a possible meeting with Mr. Thulin?

Joe

PS Perhaps you have seen my letter to Boyden Gray indicating an interest in a position in a Bush Administration. I also indicated my interest in assisting Boyden in his transition work.

Dear Joe Hillings,

Please find enclosed a draft programme for your visit to Oslo. It is meant as a proposal only, and we would like to hear your comments, and how this might suit your needs and wishes. May I add a few practical and explanatory points: * I understand that you will be coming in on Wednesday afternoon. From the Airport there is an express train that takes you to the down town area in less than 20 minutes, considerably quicker than by car. I would be happy to meet you at the Grand Hotel in the evening for an informal talk, unless you have other plans. I would also be happy to accompany you throughout the programme. * The people that you will meet in the MFA will basically be those dealing with the WTO-negotiations, and who are all familiar with the proposals on energy services. So we could talk on how to deal with the issue in the ongoing and coming negotiations. * You will meet key personalities in the Ministry for oil and energy * Director General Arne Walther is host for a luncheon - he is currently holding the positions as Chairman of the Board of the International Energy Agency (IEA) * You are invited as Key Note Speakers at a workshop on energy services in the house of The Federation of Norwegian Business and Industry, which will invite a selected group of leading personalities throughout the energy business sector in Norway. * I understand that you will host a dinner in the evening; I would be happy to advise you on participants, as appropriate; I presume that you, i.e., will invite representatives from your company and the US Embassy * I talked to the CEO of STATKRAFT, Mr. Lars Uno Thulin, who is a good friend of mine, and who also is well acquainted with the President of Enron, Mr. Ken Lay. He would appreciate an opportunity for a private conversation, and suggests a breakfast Friday morning as an option. Please let me know if this is possible.

I wish you and Bob Fisher very welcome to Oslo!

Yours sincerely

Dear Ambassador Froysnes:

I called this morning to introduce myself and to see how we should proceed to extend invitations to attendees at our workshop and lunch at the Grand Hotel in Oslo, Thursday, November 30th. Ken: I am writing to seek coming back to Enron. I chose retirement in April this year at age 57 because we all thought the stock was going to $120 or thereabouts. We know what happened. I was your VP of Engineering for EE&CC under Larry Izzo. You might remember me, we last met at your Marco Polo awards dinner, my wife, Brenda, was the one in the Red wheelchair talking with Mr. Kissinger. I could help bring some intellectual capital back to Enron and help the company succeed. My resume is attached. I appreciate any consideration you can make. Thanks, Dennis Alexander

Dear MaryAnn,

I was very disappointed to learn today that the Enron Body Shop will be raising its rates to $25 per month. While this may be in line with some benchmarking study, one would hope that Enron would seek to outperform its peers, given its goal to be rated #1 as best place to work. Our cross-town competitor Williams, where I worked for almost 12 years, has a facility that is at least as good as Enron's, and there is no charge whatsoever. Why charge for the use of a facility that promotes Wellness?

I hope you reconsider this increase, but at a minimum provide a lower rate for the occasional user such as myself. Given my busy schedule I am lucky to get there a few times per month, and would happily pay the greater of $5 per visit or the $25/month fee. A $25/month fee will simply discourage occasional users.

Please terminate my membership, effective September 1. I hope that I am not alone in voicing my unhappiness with this increase.

Dear Mr. Lay,

It's rare that I write fan letters, but I just saw your interview on CNBC Squawk Box. I was very impressed with your positive message and enthusiasm about Enron's e-commerce platform.

Thank you for the informative exchange, it was a pleasure to hear your refreshing outlook this early in the morning. Those folks at CNBC can be tough on CEO's.

Prompted to visit your web site, I was impressed with Enron's worldwide diversity. A Texas Aggie '69, I'm proud to see a Texas company with such powerful skills and resources.

Congratulations, you represented your company very well to a worldwide TV audience.

KLAY@ENRON.COM Invited CE World authors,

Many of you have heard by now that ASCE is hosting the 1st Virtual World Congress for Civil Engineering, CE World (www.ceworld.org). The call-for-content was issued earlier this summer and the deadline for submission was September 27, 2001. Although this deadline has passed, we are still accepting contributions. Go to "Submit Abstracts" on the CE World web site.

As Content Area Manager for the Geo-Technology area, I invite you to visit their website to find out more and to submit a contribution. Most content is expected to be in the form of papers, although you are challenged to "think outside the box" by including other forms of media. Remember this is a virtual conference-you do not need to attend; you visit the Congress from the web. This is a good opportunity to show case your work without having to travel to present it.

If you are interested in obtaining additional information on CE World, you can contact me at jtinucci@pantechnica.com or 952-937-5879. Alternatively, you can contact CE World Content Manager, Walter Marlowe, at ceworld@asce.org or 703-295-6294.

I hope you will consider this invitation.

An Enron Employee's Perspective

File	lay-k/inbox/1865.

Dear Mr. Lay,

It would be difficult for me to describe the excitement I experienced when I first knew that I was soon to be an Enron employee over a year ago. I came into Enron in EES August 2000 as an Account Manager in the Costa Mesa office. I asked for the most challenging assignment available and was given the opportunity to manage the relationship and contract execution between EES and the majority of our marquis national customers (Owens-Corning, Suiza, Quebecor, General Cable, Packaged Ice etc). I really loved that assignment and (according to the PRC) was excellent at what I did.

I (like many others at Enron) left a very lucrative job to join EES and I have turned away several opportunities since joining the company. I had envisioned being a part of something as exciting and innovative as Enron as more rewarding than following more lucrative job offers. Now, I find myself in a position that I would have never dreamed of: * I'm uncertain about my job security * Like so many others, I've lost significant personal wealth * I'm not proud or excited to tell others that I work for Enron * I fight with my instinct to leave hoping that I can be a part of something good coming from all of this.

I don't understand how this could have happened. So many decent, hard working, loyal, honest people are being devastated by the results of questionable management, a lack of leadership and the appearance of abject greed among Enron Sr. executives. This is a truly sad state of affairs that will be the subject of so many "B" school projects most of which will focus on our mistakes.

So, what can a guy so far down the food chain do these days to help right the ship? I am here, I do not want to abandon ship and I am ready willing and able to make a difference. Mr. Lay, there are some brilliant employees buried below layers of management that have proven little more than incompetence. Consider finding time to visit the troops in the field and solicit input. I believe you can find more hope for resurrection out here than behind the filters that exist between you and your real employees.

My prayers are with you,

You ALL must work very very hard till Monday morning NONSTOP to help Enron, stockholders, Employees and all....by taking these steps 1) Get Warren Buffet/ and kind to take a position.....even a token one....it will boost lot of faith 2) Disclose the impact of the financial partnerships ...1 billion, 2 or what?...a specific bottom-line.....with maximum cap...the investment community is begging you to say something 3) Speak up.....Engage media into positive news..... some thing positive about Enron's business and future wall street hates solence....no matter what your lawyers are telling you/.....you must make strong positive statements 4) Please talk to Royal Dutch (Shell)/Duke and competition about possible merger and stuff 5) see if u can get an upgrade from a broker...who really sees the value in the stock.....in spite of problems....talk to wall street/barrons 6) If someone can claim the responsibility.....this is the time....and lets move on with the right foot forward 7) Ask emploeyess/management to buy stock to support it 8) Your 2 worst enemies are the people who are shorting the stock & one who are saying bad things about Enron..... REQUEST people to stop shorting & saying irresponsible statements about the company....They are truly driving a great company to the ground..... thats not easy or conventional, but it can help people understand where the real decline is coming from and the true problems are much smaller than what media will like it to be 9) work harder..overtime.....long hours..to improve business.....starting from top.....practically 7 days a week....to show the world..that when going gets tough..neron does everything it can....beacuse it believes in ultimate sacrifice.....and commitment 10) Calculate the asset and liabilities worth and show the world..what you are truly worth.....even on a conservative business an open advertisement or interview resources....assets.....liabilities.....amount of sales.....profits.....small interesting facts.....you can give it in a informal interview to a Houston paper...cnbc....or CNN.....it will do you good so people can understand your story better and lastly, i am born in India and live in USA for 31 years.....i know the culture and i can help you with the negotiations in India.....i am very good at this and want you to call me to get my input i have over 73000 shares of Enron and i am hurting like many others....so i want to do everything to help you Kul Kapoor 22676 Shady Grove Lake forest, Ca 92630 949 581-3000 949 500-2644 (cell)

RALLY AGAINST TERRORISM

Sender	fatimapr@softcom.ca

MEDIA RELEASE FROM: THE FATIMA CENTER, 266 Elmwood Ave., Buffalo, NY 14222 CONTACT: Coralie Graham, 905-871-7607 or coraliegraham@softcom.ca OR WEBSITE: www.fatima.org 26 October 2001 - FOR RELEASE: IMMEDIATE

"RALLY AGAINST TERRORISM" SET FOR NEW YORK Mid-November prayer campaign targets 6 million Catholics

Thousands of Catholics in New York and around the world believe that the terrorist attack against the World Trade Center was prophesied by the Blessed Virgin Mary to three shepherd children at Fatima, Portugal, on July 13th, 1917. A Rally Against Terrorism, to be held at New York's Hotel Pennsylvania, from Saturday, November 10th through Monday, November 12th, will offer New Yorkers the chance to do something positive to make world leaders listen to the Fatima Message. The Blessed Virgin Mary said, "If My requests are not granted ... the good will be martyred, the Holy Father will have much to suffer, various nations will be annihilated." According to Father Nicholas Gruner, the "Fatima Priest", this foretells tragic events like those of September 11th. "This is it!", he says, "This is what Our Lady tried to warn us about." The Rally Against Terrorism is being held in New York because, the organizers say, of the nearly 300 million Americans who are at risk of annihilation, New Yorkers should be the most aware of the death and destruction which can be rained on us from the skies or delivered through the mail. The only thing we can do to protect ourselves, they say, is to pray and campaign for obedience to the Message of Fatima. Attendees at the rally will hear seven distinguished speakers, including Father Gruner, explain the simple, step-by- step instructions Our Lady gave us for averting an even worse disaster. "Everything else has been tried," the Fatima Priest says. "We have nothing to lose, and world peace to gain, by insisting that the Pope and all the bishops do what Our Lady of Fatima has commanded." Participants will be urged to play their part in making this happen. There will also be opportunities to join in Masses, Rosaries and other prayerful devotions offered up in remembrance of those who have died and for the protection of the living. Admission to the Rally Against Terrorism is free. Sessions are scheduled from 8:45 a.m. until 5:30 p.m. on Saturday, Sunday and Monday, November 10th through 12th, at New York's Hotel Pennsylvania, 401 - 7th Avenue, between 32nd and 33rd Streets. Further information can be found on the Fatima Website: www.fatima.org. - 30 - NOTE TO MEDIA: We especially invite members of the press-- including electronic media as well as print- to attend and cover the Rally Against Terrorism. For more information, contact Arthur Skinner or Coralie Graham at the Fatima Center, telephone 1-866- 871-7723, or, outside North America, +1-905-871-7607, or e-mail Coralie Graham, coraliegraham@softcom.ca.

BACKGROUND The Fatima Center is the largest worldwide Fatima Apostolate dedicated to promoting the full Fatima Message. It campaigns tirelessly for: the release of the complete Third Secret; and the Consecration of Russia to the Immaculate Heart of Mary. It is home to The Fatima Crusader, a quarterly magazine with a circulation of 500,000 copies per issue. The Center's outreach also includes book publishing, a website, radio and television. YOU ARE INVITED: "Public Health vs. The Nanny State"

File	lay-k/all_documents/544.

Dear Ken:

News stories abound almost daily over the alleged need for governments to proscribe various foods, beverages, cell phones, and much more. Yet, Americans are healthier and live longer than ever. So, what is the real story here?

As a result, I am very pleased to invite you to attend the upcoming Independent Policy Forum reception and seminar, "PUBLIC HEALTH vs. THE NANNY STATE?"

<http://www.independent.org/tii/forums/001026ipf.html>

This program will feature syndicated columnist and Reason Magazine senior editor, JACOB SULLUM, author of the book, FOR YOUR OWN GOOD, and economist THOMAS DiLORENZO, co-author of the new book, FROM PATHOLOGY TO POLITICS.

The program will be held Thursday evening, October 26th, from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m., at the Independent Institute's conference center in Oakland, California.

For your review, I am adding below an invitation with further details on the program. Since seating is limited, please make your reservations as soon as possible. For further information, please contact me or the Institute's Events Coordinator, Ms. Nichelle Beardsley, at 510-632-1366 X118.

We hope to see you on October 26.

PUBLIC HEALTH vs. THE NANNY STATE? -- Next Independent Policy Forum (10/26/00)

<http://www.independent.org/tii/forums/001026ipf.html>

Barely a day goes by without some news of the latest public health "threat." Serious health hazards, we are told, lurk around every corner -- in water supplies, air, soil, beverages, fast food, second-hand smoke, cellular phones, and food irradiation, just to name a handful. And yet, Americans today live longer than ever! Are markets and private decision-making providing the answers? Or are these dangers real, immediate, and a legitimate mandate for government control? Can we reduce or eliminate health risks without government dictates? How does politics distort perceptions about public health? Will Americans succumb to or rebel against the growing Nanny State's neo-Puritanism and attack on individual choice and responsibility? JACOB SULLUM and THOMAS DiLORENZO will discuss these timely and important issues.

SPEAKERS:

- Jacob Sullum (Syndicated Columnist and Senior Editor, Reason magazine; Author, FOR YOUR OWN GOOD)
- Thomas DiLorenzo (Professor of Economics, Loyola College of Maryland; Co-author, FROM PATHOLOGY TO POLITICS: Public Health in America)

WHEN: Thursday, October 26, 2000 Reception and book signing: 6:30 p.m. Program: 7:00 - 8:30 p.m.

WHERE: The Independent Institute Conference Center 100 Swan Way Oakland, CA 94621-1428 For a map and directions, see http://www.independent.org/tii/tii_info/about.html#map

TICKETS: $30.00 per person: includes one copy of either Jacob Sullum's book, FOR YOUR OWN GOOD, or Thomas DiLorenzo's book, FROM PATHOLOGY TO POLITICS. OR, admission without a book is $10 per person ($7 for Independent Institute Associate Members)

About FOR YOUR OWN GOOD:

"Sullum is meticulously logical, and his conclusions are implicit in everything he argues. FOR YOUR OWN GOOD has made us think about totalitarianism in this most unlikely context." - NEW YORK TIMES

"Intriguing and worthwhile, this book marshals an impressive array of facts and arguments. Thoughtful and articulate." - NEW ENGLAND JOURNAL OF MEDICINE

About FROM PATHOLOGY TO POLITICS: Public Health in America:

"FROM PATHOLOGY TO POLITICS argues that public health has become a bureaucracy that feels the need to perpetuate itself by expanding into new areas that are more often than not, just plain 'politically correct.'" - WALL STREET JOURNAL

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

NEWPOWER LAUNCHES ONLINE ENERGY SAVING CENTER

Residential Consumers And Small Businesses Can Learn How to Reduce Energy

Usage And Costs; Purchase Full Line Of Energy Efficient Products

PURCHASE, NY, October 29, 2001 ? The New Power Company, the first national residential and small business energy provider, today announced that it has launched the Energy Saving Center, a group of online tools to help residential consumers and small commercial businesses reduce energy usage and costs. The Energy Saving Center can be found on www.newpower.com

Key elements of the NewPower Energy Saving Center are the Home and Business

Analyzers. These on-line audit tools, which are free to all www.newpower.com visitors, provide a top-to-bottom analysis of energy usage, and offer specific recommendations on behavior modification and products that can save energy. The products can then be purchased through the Energy Efficient Products On-line Store

The Home Analyzer allows residential consumers to learn how much money people in homes similar to theirs spend on energy. They can also uncover specific energy saving opportunities in their own homes. Using the Business Analyzer, small businesses can choose to analyze one facility or multiple sites. The tool examines each aspect of a business' energy use (including which appliances or systems use the most energy), and provides customized analyses, recommendations, and a means to track their progress.

The NewPower Energy Saving Center is just one way that energy restructuring is leading to technological innovation and efficiency. Competition among energy marketers ? like NewPower ? encourages cost savings and new and better ways to consume electricity and natural gas.

Enron Situation and Technology For All: A Note from Will Reed

Greetings Technology For All Board Members:

Several of you have seen the announcement today that Enron received notice from Dynegy, Inc. that it is terminating the merger agreement between it and Enron. In addition, Standard and Poor's, Moody Investors Service and Fitch, Inc. downgraded Enron's long-term debt to below investment grade.

Technology For All has been the recipient of significant support from Enron as a national sponsor. We are grateful for Enron's support and the support of Ken Lay. We acknowledge the enormous credibility that support has given us to expand our vision and mission. We now have direct supportive relationships with 200+ Community Technology Centers in 15 U.S. cities including our local TFA affiliates in Houston, Denver and Cleveland, Ohio. We estimate that 30,000-50,000 persons each week are positively impacted by these program partnerships.

With the Enron announcements today in the press, I wanted to inform you of my actions in response to these developments.

Enron's commitment to Technology For All was a commitment of three items over three years: Cash, Connectivity on the Enron Network and in-kind contributions of hardware and/or other services. The commitment was to expire at the end of 2002. Therefore, 2/3 of the cash commitment has been received by TFA. We have received some in-kind contributions, but never finalized the provision of connectivity on the Enron Network. To date, continuing connectivity has generously been provided by FYI-Net, a privately owned company of which Scott Yeager and members of his family are the largest stockholders. Therefore, while significant to TFA, the Enron developments will not shutdown our vital mission to bring technology to underserved communities. Our vision continues to be focused on using technology as a tool with the disadvantaged and underserved to bring about sustainable and meaningful change in their communities.

Over the past several weeks as Enron situation has unfolded, we have done and are doing several things to preserve our core missional focus.

1) In expectation of reduced revenue, we have been cutting expenses significantly and will be announcing several layoffs in the next few days. I have taken a voluntary 10% reduction in income and Douglas Caldwell has taken a voluntary 5% reduction in income.

2) With the assistance of a "Capacity Building" tool developed by McKinsey & Co. for the Venture Philanthropy Partners Group out of Washington DC., we are in the midst of strategic planning effort that will help us rewrite our business plan. This effort will help us focus on the capacity building activities most vital to our core mission and develop a "go forward" plan.

3) We are intensely developing other relationships with corporate and foundation funders that are project specific and results oriented. Almost all of my time will be focused on fund raising activities. We have several potential relationships under development. The diversification of our donor basis is critical to the future of our mission. To set an example for potential donors, in addition to the reduction in salary, my 2001 gifts to TFA equal 1% of my annual income.

4) I have named Douglas Caldwell to serve in an expanded position of leadership as the Chief Operating Officer. As the COO, Douglas now has responsibility and authority for the day-to-day operations of Technology For All and also for Technology For All-Houston. This decision was made in consultation with Jack Trotter, Scott Yeager and Jack Clark. As some of you already know, Douglas brings many skills to this new role. In addition to his numerous contacts with potential funding sources, he is able to see the big picture of our common vision while at the same time is also able to drill down to the details required to accomplish it. He is also a person who manages resources well. While this is always important, this is especially important during this time of economic uncertainty. We must be good stewards of our available resources.

5. It is my recommendation to the TFA Board that we establish advisory boards in each TFA city and at the national level to help carry the TFA banner and to raise the dollars necessary to support our core programs and activities. The TFA-Houston Board of Directors unanimously affirmed this recommendation for Houston. I solicit your support of this recommendation on a national level and your suggestions of persons who may be potential advisory board members.

6. We are in the final stages of preparation for a larger three year proposal for a Houston Workforce Development Initiative that will utilize our SmartForce content in collaboration with over 100 of our community program partners. It is our intent to pitch this first to Houston's Brown Foundation for a three year commitment. The support of our board will be vital to the success of this proposal. Mr. Valenti, I will be calling you and others to assist with this.

Please call me if you have any questions regarding my plans. I look forward to your comments and reflections.

Regards,

Will

Dear Dr. Lay:

Today was Diwali, the festival of lights. As I sat and prayed this evening my thoughts turned to you and I said a small prayer for all of my friends at Enron.

I have as you would expect been following the events of the last few weeks with concern. I wish you all the strength and resolve as you commit yourself to leading Enron through these difficult times. You have always been a leader to those who have worked closely with you and have surely faced more difficult times than these and successfully.

Best Wishes from all of us at THOT Capital,

Dear Ken:

I of course still keep very close watch of how Enron is doing. I am very sad to see the problems you are facing today particularly since you were really looking forward to slowing down a bit and spending more time with your family.

I sincerely appreciate the kindness you showed me while at Enron and the continued assistance and blessings you have sent my way since leaving Enron. I will never forget what you have done for me.

Please, if there is any way that I can help you please let me know. I am willing to help you in any way you see fit. When you have a moment of time I would like to sit down with you and talk to you about some of the areas that I beleive Enron lost its way and would like to see where you think I could help you re-establish your vision for Enron.

Please do not consider this note simply kind words. I sincerely want and believe that I can help.

Best regards,

Mr. Lay,

Per my conversation with Rosie, I wanted to inform you of a couple of items regarding the Houston 2012 Olympic Committee. Yesterday, I received a call from Susan Bandy (Executive Director, Houston 2012) advising me that she and George DeMontrond came to meet with you regarding your potential involvement and role in the Houston Olympic bid effort.

I wanted to make you aware that Mark Frevert and I are on the Board of the Houston 2012 Olympic Committee. When I joined Enron in 1999, I was asked by Joe Sutton to replace him on the Advisory Board Committee. We've been involved with the organization since then, and this past June, Mark Frevert became a member of the Board of Directors. I would like to offer my services to you at any level possible with this initiative, from coordination/development of activities to attending meetings or researching opportunities. If you need any additional details concerning our involvement with Houston 2012, I would be more than happy to do a full briefing.

This is just one of many initiatives we are working on. We continuously keep members of the executive committee and office of the chairman through M. Frevert, engaged in our efforts. If we can be of assistance to you on this matter or any other related to sports, sponsorships and event marketing items, please don't hesitate to call.

Thank you.

In light of Jesse Greene's acceptance of the SVP, Strategy position, we have re-examined his option opportunity for 2001. As you recall, we deferred a decision on his option grant in December 2000 pending a decision on his status.

Now that Jesse has accepted this new role, we are recommending a grant of 125,000 stock options, which is comparable to the December 2000 grant to other 16b officers in staff positions. As a point of reference, below are the option grants made to 16b officers in December 2000:

Blackmore - 375k Winkler - 350k Larson - 275k McDowell - 250k Elias - 150k Jackson - 175k Siekman - 155k Napier - 155k Fox - 125k Milton - 100k Clarke - 75k (received additional grant of 175k options upon appointment to CFO) Walker - 60k (received 250k new hire options in September) Robison - 0 (recently received new hire grant)

If you have any questions or concerns about this proposal, please let Yvonne or I know. If it is acceptable, please advise and we will provide a unanimous consent for your signature to formalize. Thank you!

Gentleman, Thanks for your assistance and support at the recent TFA board meeting.

In the good news department we have several items....

1. Houston Endowment committed $200,000 payable in two installments (June 2001 and June 2002). Thanks to Jack Trotter for asisting with this grant request.
2. Letters are going out to corporate leaders following the recent breakfast. We thank Ken Lay, John Duncan, Scott Yeager and Jack Clark for their assistance on the letter. We especially thank John Duncan and Jack Trotter for their assistance with suggested contribution amounts. Contributions will go to support TFA activities in Houston and beyond.
3. I was in Colorado last week. We have successfully negotiated the support of the Jared Polis Foundation for Technology For All-Colorado. Jared Polis has made a three year commitment totaling approximately $750,000 to support TFA-Colorado as a project o the Foundation. Mr. Polis is a 29 year old entrepreneur who sold the online business of Blue Mountain cards to Hallmark for around $800 million. He is very interested in education and technology issues and has essentially agreed to fund the work of TFA-Colorado for at least three years as additional community support is developed. We will "co-brand" the web presence of TFA-Colorado with the Foundation.

THANKS TO EACH OF YOU....

What if the terrorists had succeeded in flying an airplane into the Capitol, killing or incapacitating many members of the House of Representatives and the Senate? Our Constitution and laws have only makeshift and incomplete provisions for Congress to convene, do business, and make laws under those circumstances. This is no academic problem: among the last things the United States needs in the aftermath of a terrorist attack is the enduring absence of national leadership. At this event a panel will discuss the security and constitutional issues surrounding a deadly attack on Congress. Norman J. Ornstein will discuss issues raised in his recent pieces on the subject in Roll Call (<http://www.rollcall.com/pages/columns/ornstein/>) and the Washington Post. Congressman Brian Baird will present his recently introduced constitutional amendment to allow Congress to function under such an emergency.

As you are aware, there are many families that have been affected by the recent layoffs at Enron. I along with two other ex-employees (Karen Cutler and Sue Nix) have been working on a project which will provide assistance to ex-employees of Enron. We wanted to do something to help our fellow employees and also provide a tool that others could use to provide assistance to ex-Enron employees. This week, we've been working with an attorney and a local bank. An account has been set up where people can make contributions. All the money will be given back to ex-Enron employees that need assistance with basic necessities, such as money for food, rent/mortgage payments, and utilities. We've contacted the local media with the information so that the community can be made aware of what we're doing. Our ability to provide assistance will be based on the response we receive. As you can see, we're using our values from Enron to help others, and would appreciate your assistance with communicating this information to the current Enron employees. Please send this information in a general announcement to the current Enron employees so they can be aware of a way to help their fellow ex-employees. If you need to speak with me or have any questions, I can be reached at 281-812-2466. Gene and Jim, incredibly, and just today, I received from my previous law firm's home office in New York your letter dated January 25, 2000 inviting me to be one of the 35 participants in the Center for Houston's Future. When my previous firm closed it's Houston offices at the end of last December, all mail was collected and forwarded to New York for sorting and redistribution. The mail from January that should have been sent to me was apparently sitting in a corner all these months in the New York mail room of Curtis, Mallet (my previous firm), and was delivered to me yesterday, including your letter. You can imagine what my reaction was to my previous firm's management concerning this nine month delay. I am most distressed, however, to have missed the opportunity to participate in the Center for Houston's Future's endeavors, which I most certainly would have, and am somewhat surprised that my failure to respond to such an important effort never came up in conversation among us?--- we've been around each other innumerable times since the letter was sent. My apologies to the both of you and to the Board of Directors of the Center. I care deeply about this city and region, and would have felt privileged to have participated. The following is the Board approved statement in response to Walter Hewlett's letter to the Board.

We plan to distribute on the newswires momentarily.

Grace

December 13, 2001 TO: Mr. Walter Hewlett FROM: Compaq Board of Directors

_____ This is a response to your letter of December 12, 2001. We and the Compaq management team strongly disagree with your conclusions. The Board of Directors of Compaq has carefully analyzed the short-term and long-term impact as well as the strategic implications of the proposed HP-Compaq merger. We are disappointed that both the Hewlett Foundation and the Packard Foundation have decided to oppose the transaction. We continue to believe that the combination of HP and Compaq will provide better market coverage, significant synergies and higher profits than either company would achieve on its own. These benefits will lead to the creation of long-term value for both Compaq and HP shareholders. On that basis, we believe that this merger is well worth the effort and that our employees, shareholders and customers will be better served in the long term. Therefore we will continue to vigorously encourage shareholders to vote in favor of the transaction. In addition, we are confident that over the coming months, the shareholders of both companies will recognize the value of the merger and give their approval. The Board of Directors of Compaq is pleased with the execution of the company's present strategy and with its market momentum. We intend to maintain this positive momentum and bring an even stronger Compaq to the merger. Dear Sir or Madam,

Free Trade vs. States' Rights: Globalization and the Challenge to Local Democratic Government

Tuesday, 26 June 2001, 12:00 p.m.

Wohlstetter Conference Center, Twelfth Floor, AEI, 1150 Seventeenth Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036

Even as America is experiencing a revival of states' rights, globalization has begun to strain domestic federalism arrangements. State policymakers are finding their authority constrained by the rules of international trade organizations. At the same time, the states' increasingly active role in foreign policy is making it more difficult for the United States to project a single, coherent policy in the international arena. Are federalism and globalization headed for a collision? How should we reconcile the conflicting values of economic efficiency, state autonomy, and democratic governance? How should states respond to the challenges of globalization? What role should the federal government play in ensuring that international organizations (such as the WTO) and global capitalism do not undermine state autonomy? Mark Gordon - whose paper "Democracy's New Challenge: Globalization, Governance, and the Future of American Federalism" will soon be released by Demos - will be joined in the discussion by Michael Greve and two distinguished guest panelists.

India Issues -Catching Up

Sender	sanjaybhatnagar00@yahoo.com
Recipients	['kenneth.lay@enron.com']
File	lay-k/inbox/253.

Dear Dr. Lay:

I am writing this message to you after a few days on the ground in India. The news from India continues to be grim and I have several things that I want to discuss with you.

1. The news on the oil and gas front is not good as u probably have heard by now. There is little chance that BG will get its request for operatorship approved for various reasons that I can explain. If u like, we can do the deal on similar terms with another party and close the same very quickly. I have been contacted by a few people and could deliver the same to you if there is an interest.

2. On the Dabhol front, I would like to urge that we meet and discuss a few ideas that I have. I know that you are extremely busy at this time but maybe next week I could come to Houston and we could find some time to meet. I know that there might be a difficulty in non-Enron especially ex-Enron people working this issue when u have a full internal team already on the job... but I think that it maybe useful and appropriate to put those concerns aside and see if a solution could be found using any and all available resources. There maybe ways that would prevent the equity from taking a big write off at this time and get everyone moving towards finding a solution.

In the meantime, there is a strong effort in India along the judicial enquiry front to use it to derail the arbitration. Our friends there can help us only if we are on the ground and give them some hope that a solution is going to be found. The Indian government is not terribly motivated at this time and if Enron does not creat options, it will not result in a terribly good result for Enron either financially or from a PR perspective.

Again, I know that with several issues occupying you at this time, this may not be the most burning one. However we have had limited success at a resolution so far and some other alternatives maybe worth considering. If you permit, I would love to discuss them with you.

HEALTH POLICY DISCUSSION The OxyContin "Crisis"-Who's to Blame?

Thursday, February 7, 2002, 10:30 a.m.-12:30 p.m. Wohlstetter Conference Center, Twelfth Floor, AEI 1150 17th Street, N.W., Washington, D.C.

The pharmaceutical drug OxyContin is a potent pain reliever, often the only help for hundreds of thousands of patients who suffer serious, relentless aches. The drug has recently been in the spotlight for its use as a street narcotic, sold on the black market and responsible for addiction and overdose deaths. In nearly all cases OxyContin addicts are established substance abusers and not patients suffering from pain. In order to obtain a heroin-like high, these addicts crush the pill to make it more powerful and fast-acting. The Drug Enforcement Administration and several state attorneys general are blaming "aggressive marketing" by OxyContin's manufacturer (Purdue Pharma) for what has been called an "Oxy abuse epidemic." Trial lawyers are filing class action suits against the company. Who is responsible for the abuse of OxyContin? This AEI discussion will include:

HEALTH POLICY DISCUSSION Is the Pharmaceutical Revolution Paying Off?

Tuesday, January 29, 2002, 10:00 a.m.-1:00 p.m. National Press Club - Ballroom 529 14th Street, NW - 13th Floor, Washington, D.C.

The American Enterprise Institute for Public Policy Research and the National Pharmaceutical Council invite you to a discussion about the costs and benefits of pharmaceuticals.

Over the past several years, questions about the value and appropriate use of pharmaceuticals have intensified nationwide. Are they worth it? Can we afford them? Federal and state policymakers need better insight on these issues as they consider ways to expand access to prescription drugs. So do employers, insurers, consumers, and health care providers who are weighing the costs and benefits of pharmaceuticals.

Discussion topics will include the effects of pharmaceutical expenditures on longevity and morbidity, as well as on depression treatment costs, and the effect of newer drugs on medical outcomes.

Please join us to learn more about recent research on the costs and benefits of pharmaceutical innovation and to discuss the economic impact these prescription drugs are having on our health care system. During lunch, an expert on pharmaceutical research will discuss the revolution in science and medicine, particularly in genomics.

Additional Info for Harry Clark

Ken, it is my understanding the Harry was recommended to us by Irwin Setzler and is going to talk to our Advisory Committee and maybe the Management Committee at the end of the month in London.(I think that Steve organized this at your request?) I had breakfast with Harry in D.C. and while I don't know a lot about him, I was impressed by some of his initial thoughts and the "totality" of his thinking as it relates to rebuilding our image and reputation.

He told me he had spent some time talking with Steve, Mark and Greg in an attempt to prepare his presentation but, as noted below, he would like to have some additional information. I want to be careful here as I am not officially involved and I do not think Steve knows I met Harry, therefore I thought I should check with you before sharing our internal survey with him, or the external "image" study.

Again, only a first impression, but he may be able to fill a role for us that I suggested to you that Shelly Lazarus might, in terms of educating our folks on what makes up a company's image and why it matters. Please let me know how you would like me to handle this. Thank-you, Beth ----- Forwarded by Elizabeth Tilney/HOU/EES on 10/05/2001 10:19 AM -----

"Harry Clark" <hwc@cwnyc.com> on 10/04/2001 09:09:33 AM To: etilney@enron.com cc: Subject: thanks/offer of further information

Beth,

Delighted to spend some time with you in Arlington earlier today. Your insights and historical perspective are invaluable. I certainly hope we'll have other opportunities to jointly figure out how to get the Enron engine again running on all cylinders...and to get the mechanics all working together!

You mentioned some recently completed employee research which has resulted, initially, in some performance review process changes at the company. I'd appreciate having a look at the research findings and anything else you think might inform my thinking about the evolution of the company's reputation among any of its constituencies. Feel free to e-mail, fax or mail.

Please call if you have any other observations or suggestions that might make my London discussions at the end of the month more fruitful. Many thanks.

The Center for Houston's Future -- Capital Campaign

Susie Lewis in Exxon-Mobil's Public Affairs Department called me today for an update on The Center's capital campaign.

Terry Koonce has just passed on to her The Center's funds solicitation packet for consideration and Susie wanted to know how corporations, other than Enron, are responding to The Center's request.

I indicated to her that the follow-up calling was just beginning and that as soon as I could give her an update, I would. I tried to get information from her regarding Exxon-Mobil's take on the request. She hesitated a bit. I said that the request was for an effort of the business community that was unprecedented in the history of Houston. She agreed and said that Exxon-Mobil has two guiding factors in funding any effort: 1) the potential for impact on E-M business 2) the philanthropic value. She went on to indicate that attracting workforce to the Houston region was a key necessity of E-M. She also agreed that unless this region had a plan, it would be left behind. She was upbeat, asked intelligent questions and appeared genuinely interested in and enthusiastic about The Center's efforts. She has asked that I call her back next week.

In addition, Dennis Winkler, Manager, Community Relations - Houston for Shell (and Partnership liaison for Steve Miller) approached me at the Partnership's board meeting on Tuesday to chat about The Center. He mentioned the fact that Steve Miller had asked him to go to Shell's Foundation and put Center for Houston's Future in line to receive funding. Note: Dennis did this prior to our solicitation packet being mailed.

I asked Dennis if Steve had received The Center's solicitation packet and if so, had Dennis heard any comment. He said that he didn't know, but asked for a copy of the packet. This was sent to him. I am setting up a lunch with Dennis next week at his request to talk about The Center.

Please let me know how to proceed. At this point, I have not received the final list of your calling preferences. If I can fill-in or customize the list for you to facilitate your follow-up telephone calling effort, please let me know. I would be more than glad to help. Thank you for all of your help.

Request for meeting -- Subject: short speech to US Olympic Commit

Sender	vmartinez@winstead.com
Recipients	['kenneth.lay@enron.com']
File	lay-k/discussion_threads/904.

Ken,

Houston's bid for the 2012 Olympic Games is entering the final phase of the domestic bid process. This summer, the United States Olympic Committee (USOC) will conduct initial site visits and evaluations of the eight U.S. bid cities with the goal being to cut the number of cities to three or four. This cut will occur in December of this year. The USOC will be conducting Houston's site visit July 16-19, 2001.

This site visit is critical to our ultimate success in bringing the Olympic Games to Houston. Over the four-day period in which the USOC site evaluation team is in Houston, two days will be devoted to venue tours and presentations. There are eight presentation topics predetermined by the USOC, one of which is International Strategy. Simply stated, this is where we show why we think Houston can win on the international level.

As a Port Commissioner and a board member of Houston 2012, I will be part of the team that presents this section to the USOC site evaluation team. As arguably the most identifiable international corporate leader in Houston and as the Chairman of the 1990 Economic Summit and the 1992 Republican National Convention, both of which you left with a positive surplus (very important to the Olympics), you are in an excellent position to discuss Houston's international status.

George DeMontrond, Susan Bandy (the Houston 2012 Exec Director) and I would very much appreciate 15 minutes or so of your time to update you on Houston's bid efforts and discuss your potential participation in the upcoming site visit. You are our first and only choice, and I'd like the opportunity to show you how important this is for Houston. We expect the number of U.S. bid cities to be reduced to four finalists by this December as a result of these meetings. I will call Rosalee to schedule a time for a visit at your offices. All the best and I look forward to catching up with you soon. I'm attaching my bio, which details the last few years of activity I've been involved with, most of which emanated from your support for me on the UH Board of Regents, the 1990 Economic Summit Host Committee, the 1992 RNC Convention and later the GHP. Thank you for everything you've done for Sarah and me -- hopefully I've reciprocated by doing a good job for you each time.

Dear Dr. Lay,

We are looking forward to your participation at the upcoming "Markets in Transition" symposium at Rice University on January 10, 2002.

Invitations to the event were sent approximately two weeks ago. The invitations listed the agenda and speakers. We have completed incorporating the biography and photograph that you provided into the program brochure.

During the event, we have allocated 20 minutes, beginning at 1:40PM, for your remarks on Markets in Transition. We expect your remarks to be broad in scope and to provide your views on how the economic and market factors of recession, technology evolution, and heightened security are impacting the business landscape. Our hope is that your remarks will be generic in nature -- Markets in Transition is a concept that applies to virtually all industries.

We understand that you will make no reference to Enron. Furthermore, there will be no question and answer session after your presentation. We will take measures to ensure that the press has no access to you before or after your remarks.

Please return the speaker logistics form (requested separately) at your earliest convenience.

We look forward to your participation. Please contact me or Brad Burke, Associate Director of the Rice Alliance (713-348-6136), if you wish additional information. Thank you.

Sincerely,

AEI Conference What Should the Government Do about the Transition to Digital Television?

Friday, October 26, 2001, 9:30 a.m.-Noon Wohlstetter Conference Center, Twelfth Floor, AEI 1150 Seventeenth Street, N.W., Washington, D.C.

In 1997, the Federal Communications Commission determined that the deployment of digital television was in the public interest. Since its official launch in November 1998, consumer demand has been slow to develop and numerous technical and practical problems have arisen, leading commentators to call it a "transition in trouble." Despite all this, the issue has received limited attention in Washington, and there has been little public debate to frame the FCC's decisions throughout the transition period. This conference brings together speakers of various backgrounds who are involved in the transition and aims to further an informed debate on the role of government in the transition to digital television.

Gentlemen,

In keeping with our tradition, please come to tomorrow's breakfast meeting prepared to write down some of your New Year's resolutions, seal them in an envelope (which will be provided) so that they can be mailed to you mid-year. I suggest dividing resolutions into categories that are spiritual, mental, physical and social.

Under "spiritual" examples of resolutions could be daily prayer time and Bible reading or attending certain classes or reading certain books to gain in Christian maturity. You may even want to set a goal of mentoring a younger Christian as they develop in the faith.

I look forward to seeing you tomorrow.

M U is ranked number 3 in the ESPN coaches poll, number 2 in the better poll (AP).

Our Saturday opponent, previous match:

Iowa is ranked number 11 with a 6 win and 2 loss record. One of those losses was a defeat at the hands of M U on the day before Thanksgiving.

Was it a close game?

Let's step back in time ...Iowa is up 77-71. Kareem Rush ties it with TWO three pointers. Now 41 Seconds left. Clarence Gilbert drives down court, shoots for two, and is fouled.

Gilbert at the free throw line. Iowa calls time out. Ready Gilbert ?..No Iowa calls a second time out. Gilbert misses the first shot. Iowa calls another time out.

With eight - tenths of a second remaining Gilbert makes the free throw.

Final Score M U 78 , the other team 77.

More History:

Last week the headline was Stokes Sinks St. Louis with his final shot at the buzzer. Final Score, MU 69, St. Louis 67

And last nights game excerpt from the Maneater at <http://www.themaneater.com/story.cgi?id=12400>

'TIGERS TAME JAGUARS

Coach Quin Snyder said he wanted more output from his preseason All-American Kareem Rush. He got it from Rush, but he got even more from his lone senior, Clarence Gilbert.

Rush scored 25 points in 22 minutes, and Gilbert added 29 in 23 en route to a 117-67 victory over the Southern Jaguars. The 117 points were sixth for MU all-time high scores, as the Tigers scored 100 points or more for the third consecutive home game.'

Kovair Software, Inc. Strategic Customer/ Relationship Managem nt

Kenneth,

Key Customers, Partners, and Suppliers are your company's most valuable strategic assets as they account either for a majority of the revenues (80/20 rule) or carry significant investor mindshare. The problem today is that these crucial relationships are complex to manage, involving multiple people, systems, information, and processes that cross company boundaries. As a result, studies show that sales teams are spending upto half their time managing day-to-day account coordination - taking valuable time away from selling.

The question is - How can you successfully foster strategic relationships while lowering account management costs?

Our CEO faced this problem when managing relationships like these for a leading high-tech company. She realized, in frustration, that there was no infrastructure to manage strategic relationships consistently and proactively. There were front-office automation and CRM applications that improved forecasting, sales support and other internal processes, and there were personalization applications that pushed information to customers, but there was no application that provided a comprehensive customer-driven view of strategic relationships.

So, we developed the Kovair VIPCenter -- a relationship-centered application that crosses company boundaries and consolidates all the touchpoints in a strategic relationship (people, applications, information, and processes).

Each VIPCenter is a bi-directional, relationship-specific Web portal that fosters long-term collaboration and deeper intimacy with each of your strategic partners, suppliers, and customers throughout the relationship cycle.

VIPCenter has a unique extensible application architecture. Out-of-the-box, VIPCenter has all the core applications needed to manage strategic relationships so you can be up and running quickly. And, it is built on Kovair's patented SRM platform, providing seamless interoperability with CRM and ERP applications, enterprise-class scalability, and extensibility.

Simply put, Kovair's VIPCenter allows you to build more intimate long-term relationships with these key customers, suppliers and partners, while lowering account management costs.

I have attached a Product Data Sheet, Technical Architecture Overview, and a White Paper from the Aberdeen Group illustrating the importance of Strategic Relationship Management.

I know it can sometimes be difficult to understand a solution from a simple email. For a demonstration, or for more information on how we can help you maximize the value of your strategic relationships, please contact me at your earliest convenience. I can be reached at 408-546-2014.

Labor Conditions and Worker Rights in China and Hong Kong

Monday, January 28, 2002, 3:00-5:00 p.m. Wohlstetter Conference Center, Twelfth Floor, AEI

China's supply of cheap labor has drawn textile and electronic manufacturing jobs from the United States and many developing Asian countries. These jobs have not necessarily brought prosperity to the majority of Chinese workers-in fact, discontent has grown. An excess of unemployed rural workers and an increase in laid-off workers from closed or privatized state-owned enterprises has produced an angry and demoralized workforce. Worker demonstrations have been mounted in all parts of China, many regarding corruption in factory management. Some China watchers view this worker unrest as a recipe for instability and eventual chaos. The members of this panel suggest a possible solution: independent worker organizations in which workers can protect their own interests and contribute to the solution of some of the nation's economic problems, particularly corruption, through a democratic process. Panelists will also address related issues in Hong Kong.

ADV: Pay-As-You-Grow Networking

This message is from Harte-Hanks on behalf of Array Networks.

Challenge Running a web site has never been more challenging. The high volume of traffic and customized content has placed unprecedented demands on your network to achieve desired web site performance.

In the past, the solution has been to acquire more servers and software to handle such tasks as load balancing, caching, SSL acceleration, and security. Unfortunately, traditional approaches employ multiple pieces of hardware from a variety of vendors that are not only difficult to implement and support, but are also exceedingly expensive. With many IT budgets being frozen or reduced, chances are you can't afford what you need.

Until now

The Array family of Web traffic management appliances integrates the following seven essential features into a single, powerful device: Server Load Balancing, Caching, SSL Acceleration, Global Server Load Balancing, Webwall for Web Security, Content Rewrite and Clustering. Array appliances offer four distinct product platforms and different pay-as-you-grow solution packages, so you can choose the hardware features, software capabilities and pricing that meet your requirements. More importantly, only Array provides a built-in upgrade path and lets you quickly and economically add capabilities with just a phone call-avoiding expensive service calls to add hardware or install other devices.

Savings Over a period of 3 years, an Array 1000 can reduce your Total Cost of Ownership by as much as 78%. * Hardware costs reduced by as much as 73% * Operations costs cut by up to 68% * Maintenance costs cut by as much as 78% * Power consumption (part of operations costs) trimmed by up to 87% * Rack space (part of operating costs) conserved by up to 68%

Performance Ziff Davis' e-testing labs confirmed in September 2001 that the Array 1000 performed 4,312 HTTP requests per second using a pool of nine Web servers and delivered 131 percent to 185 percent more HTTP requests per second than Cisco's Arrowpoint CSS 11800 and Nortel's Alteon 180e. Impressed? The bottom line is even better: The Array Networks 7-in-One solution costs nearly half as much as Cisco's single box solution.

1. Thank you for all your support on the Arena Proposition. 2. The following article reminded me to pass along a note about a PR/PA firm in California who Baselice & Associates worked with this year in passing Prop 35 (a contracting out initiative). The firm is a full service firm named Woodward & McDowell. They have been active in California legislative and initiative battles for some 20 years and I highly recommend them if Enron is in search of support with the electric deregulation fight out there. November 8, 2000 Calif Regulators, Grid Oper In Turf War Over Generation By JASON LEOPOLD Of DOW JONES NEWSWIRES LOS ANGELES-California's electricity regulators and power-grid operator are locked in a turf war over who has the authority to order new power plant construction next summer to ensure the state has enough juice on hand when demand soars. The California Public Utilities Commission says it can bring emergency power on line at a fraction of the cost that the Independent System Operator is expected to pay independent power producers for the same service. Under its plan, PG&E Corp. (PCG) unit Pacific Gas & Electric Co., Edison International's (EIX) Southern California Edison unit and Sempra Energy's (SRE) San Diego Gas & Electric Co. were ordered to submit documents by the end of November stating whether they can build and operate "peaking" plants by June 1. The utilities weren't immediately available to comment. On the other hand, the ISO - which is on the verge of signing contracts for 440 peaking units with between 20 and 91 megawatts of electricity - says the commission's meddling could endanger any chance of additional resources coming on line in time. "Any further interference on the state level could destroy the plan altogether," said an ISO source close to the issue. "There is no guarantee the utilities will be able to pull this off by next summer. And if the whole project is scrapped, you can expect there will be blackouts." Interference by federal regulators has already cost the ISO two participants and nearly 600 megawatts in its peaking program. Calpine Corp. (CPN) and Enron (ENE) initially agreed to build peaking plants for the ISO next summer, but withdrew their offers after the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission proposed capping the clearing price for California's wholesale electricity market at $150 a megawatt-hour. The ISO, which operates one of the state's wholesale power markets and manages most of the high-voltage transmission grid, has already solicited and received bids from merchant generators for 1,800 megawatts of new peaking power for next summer. Burned by the summer's power crisis and facing an 8,000-MW shortfall next summer, the ISO put out a request for bids in August. The ISO's board voted Oct. 30 to enter into the contracts, which it estimated would cost about $250 million a year for three years. The state's Electricity Oversight Board, which oversees the performance of the ISO, and the Public Utilities Commission protested the decision on the grounds that the contracts were too expensive. The commission is also questioning whether there is even a need for peaking power next summer and, if there is, whether the ISO should handle the solicitation. "The question also arises as to whether the ISO - which is empowered only to operate the state's transmission system and which does not represent the state or its consumers - is the appropriate organization to plan, solicit and pay for the construction of new power plants across the state," the commission wrote in its Nov. 2 order. And the end, the decision is up to state regulators. If utilities can come up with a cheaper alternative and if the regulators determine that additional generation is needed by next summer, then they will follow through with the utilities proposal.

We understand that you may be heading to an auction of the wind business. We would like to speak to you about this strategy. An auction seems to us to be unnecessarily costly and inefficient. We stand ready, willing, and able to negotiate a purchase with you, and don't believe that a lengthy and cumbersome auction process will serve anyone's best interests.

We have a key meeting on December 20 with those interested in putting the financing together with us for this deal. Appreciating the demands on your time, is there any way that we could get on your schedule for even 15 minutes some time prior to the 20th? Ken,

After numerous efforts to secure an audience with President Fox, we have been successful in scheduling a lunch with him on the 27th of June. In addition to our usual reasons for taking this very important one-day trip, I have been advised by Presidencia (equivalent for our "West Wing") that during this face-to-face meeting, we would have the appropriate opportunity to invite President Fox to visit Houston. I have just received written confirmation of the 2:30 p.m. luncheon meeting. I will be going to appropriate GHP Boardmembers and major investors to determine who would be available to participate. I wanted to give my leadership heads up and request any thoughts or ideas that you may have on this subject matter as well as to determine your availability.

Potential solution

Sender	suketu.patel@enron.com

File	lay-k/inbox/760.

Dr. Lay,

Sir, I am almost positive that all avenues have been pursued to get Enron out of the hole we are in. However, I wanted to inquire if a reverse stock split (perhaps a 12 to 1 or 15 to 1) was a possible option. My knoweledge in terms of Enron's debt and who we are indebted to is limited to what I have heard through the media, but as I see it, many creditors are at a great risk to lose billions of dollars. Would banks such as JP Morgan or Citigroup or others potentially affected such as Janus Funds or Lehman Brothers be willing to invest in equity rather than pump in more debt? From my understanding, we need an immediate $4 billion, and I think this may be a potential solution to get instant cash, and then we can turn our interests to building customer and investor confidence.

I hope I am not wasting your time with this, but this is not the time for any of us involved with this company to remain silent. Thank you for your time.

Sincerely, Suketu Patel

2. Will I see you there?

Hope all is well and that I will see you in Philadelphia. I am staying at the Sheraton University City as a member of the California delegation. 215-222-2910. I am also wearing my Blackberry for 24 x 7 real time wireless email access.

November 1, 2001 Dear Ken, A lot has happened since our conversation in snowy Washington at Joe Hillings's retirement reception. Unable to identify a mutually agreed upon challenge for me, I retired from Enron with the objective of providing business leadership elsewhere. Many others, including Jeff Skillings, have since departed as well. Reflecting on the events of the past several months, I would like to talk with you regarding how my extensive experience in managing and divesting Enron's foreign and domestic businesses and assets could be utilized by the company on an interim basis. My goal is to assist your efforts in restoring investor confidence in and shareholder value of Enron, which has been an integral part of my life for 30 years. Ken Bentsen deserves your thanks and a note or a phone call from you. (see below for phone number and address). I called Congressman Bentsen yesterday to express the Partnership's support on the Trade Promotion Authority (TPA) bill. Yesterday, the bill passed in Congress by one vote (215 to 214). Ken Bentsen's vote made the difference. When I spoke with him, he told me how difficult it would be for him to make that vote, and that he had been lobbied hard by the labor unions, the Cabinet and the President. I urged him to vote for the bill and told him what the impact would be to Houston and the region*. In the final analysis, the bill passed thanks to your fellow Houstonian and Congressman, Ken Bentsen. He made the difference. The Congressman, the Partnership and you had an impact on that vote. Hope to see you on Tuesday, December 11 at the Houston Club for the final board meeting of 2001. *U.S. exports support 12 million U.S. jobs, including one-in-five manufacturing jobs, and account for almost one-third of real U.S. economic growth over the past decade.

Dear Ken:

These are very difficult times for all of us, but I know that you and those who work closest with you are under unbelievable pressure at this time. It's difficult for all of us, but you and your staff need to know that you have a great deal of support within the company. Since I started with EDC in 1996, I have often felt that this is the best job that I ever had. In good times and not-so-good times, the work has been interesting, challenging and even fun! Now that you are "back" many of us are more confident of the future -- even at this time when things appear to be so bleak.

Enron has treated me very well in the past, and although we face an uncertain future, I will continue to support the company and especially you. Your gestures toward the employees are much appreciated. I have always admired your kind and respectful attitude toward all who work for Enron, never more than now. You have been our best representative and our best supporter, not to mention what you have done for the city of Houston. No matter what happens, I will always feel privileged to have been a part of this organization.

Most sincerely,

Hi Rosalee-- I just wanted to thank you so much for your extra help on our inquiry to Ken. We understand completely that the April 25 slot following his return from vacation is not the most ideal arrangement. I think it's always easiest for someone like him if he knows that a speech given recently can easily serve as the basis for a new request. I wanted to remind you of my previous suggestion that his keynote presentation in Montreal last May to the World Forum on Energy Regulation would accomplish most of that, and we would work with Rob and others to minimize any effort required to add new content. Hopefully, this will help with the decision this week. As I mentioned the other day, Ken is really the most authoritative figure when it comes to the idea that economic concepts can be used to build energy markets and business enterprises that lead to better societies! Ken,

I was pleased to have an opportunity to meet with you and Linda in April to discuss the Library/Honors campaign. To date, over $12.3 million has been raised and we have several proposals outstanding. I'm writing to ask your help with Jack Trotter, a trustee of the Vivian L. Smith Foundation.

Earlier this year you indicated that you would be willing to sign a letter to Mr. Trotter on behalf of the Library/Honors building project. Enclosed is a draft of the letter. A proposal for $250,000 was submitted to the Foundation in May, the trustees are scheduled to meet on June 15. Mr. Trotter is a trustee with both the M.D. Anderson Foundation (which has already committed $1 mil to the library/honors project) and the Vivian L. Smith Foundation. The Smith Foundation provided a grant of $500k to the KUHT/KUHF Melcher building that opened last fall.

Please let me know if you have any question regarding the enclosed letter. Also, please fax or e-mail the final letter to me at the address below.

Thank you very much.

U.S. CLIMATE POLICY: WHAT'S NEXT?

In a move that stunned the world, the Bush administration withdrew U.S. support for the Kyoto Protocol that addresses climate change. The protocol, which was never submitted for Senate approval, would have limited greenhouse gas emissions from developed countries. The question is what to put in its place. This note is to invite you, your employees and friends to join us on Tuesday, September 25, for the introduction of the uniforms and cheerleaders for your Houston Texans. This event will take place at the south entrance of the Wortham Theatre on Texas Avenue from 5:00 - 7:00 p.m. Our theme will be patriotic and our goal is to create a Texas-sized showing of community pride and spirit. As I mentioned, we will be introducing the uniforms and cheerleaders of the Texans on this day; but, more importantly, we will be gathering as Houstonians, Texans and Americans to show our togetherness. A celebrity team consisting of Mary Lou Retton, Clay Walker, members of ZZ Top, Eric Dickerson and others will join us for the event. We will also feature the Houston Firefighters Bagpipe Group and other musical entertainers that will focus squarely on patriotic and community minded themes. We would appreciate your help in spreading the word about this uplifting event. We encourage your participation and also the participation of your employees and friends. If you have any questions, please e-mail them to me by hitting the "Reply" button. We are all proud to be Houstonians, and proud to be Texans; but, more importantly, we are all proud to be Americans. September 25th will provide us with a platform to demonstrate the spirit that bonds us together and makes our country great. I look forward to seeing you on September 25th. Go Texans!

We have an outstanding group of confirmed speakers and panelists including many individuals that I assume you know as colleagues and friends. I will be sending you more information on the Forum in the next few days. I am going to send you the preliminary agenda this morning.

You will be speaking at a critical time in the Forum; that is, just after panels on power problems and policies and just before the final session linking power and energy strategies to environmental objectives. It would be great if your talk to the participants in the Forum could help them see the relationship between power and energy related objectives and environmental issues including GHG emissions. You should feel free however to focus your talk in a manner of your choosing. Again, I will send you the prelim. agenda soon. Could you send me a title however for the final agenda's purposes? Paul and I met with Frank Savage, President & CEO of Alliance Capital Management International in NY today to see if he might be a good prospect for the RFF Board. Ken Lay arranged the meeting - Ken is on the board of Howard University (where Frank is chair) and Frank is on the Enron board. Frank also knows Linda and John Deutch (from the Council on Foreign Relations.)

We had a very good meeting - brought him upto speed on RFF and how we are trying to expand our visability,esp in NY and in the financial community, through events, the Council, etc. Frank was very receptive to our plans, thought we needed to focus on specific topics of interest to the financial community and actions we could ask people to help with. He said he would love to come to Dod's breakfast in Feb.and learn more about RFF.

Howard U. is clearly his biggest passion. We need to send a letter from Paul to him documenting previous conversations Paul has had with folks at Howard about our fellowship programs and our desire to have more African Americans apply. He will show it to the President and encourage him to act on it.)

Next step: Lesli ask Ken Lay to call Frank, see what he thought of us, tell him more about his involvemnt on the Board, and see if Frank might want to consider the Board over the next couple of months.

Rosalee indicated that you are available to meet at the Center on May 24th. the day before the Board of Trustees meeting. May I suggest that we invite some members of the Steering Committee to join us on the 24th to review where we are, the political environment, and continued Center involvement in this program area. As you are aware we have had discussions with the Turner Foundation on a Leadership Forum and have developed several projects which have each received partial funding commitments from the federal government or private foundations. Thursday, June 14, 2001, 10:00-11:30 a.m. Wohlstetter Conference Center, Twelfth Floor, AEI

In response to the recent electricity price increases in California, Gov. Gray Davis has called on the federal government to cap electricity prices in the western United States. However, price caps have traditionally led to shortages and other negative economic consequences. At this seminar, leading economists will discuss the causes of the crisis and will debate policies that have been proposed to combat the soaring energy costs and frequent power outages associated with the crisis.

Electricity restructuring

FYI. A paper prepared for the 20th Annual Conference, Center for Research in Regulated Industries, Rutgers University, May 25, 2001, is available on my web page at: <http://www.ksg.harvard.edu/whogan20> or www.whogan.com .

"ELECTRICITY MARKET RESTRUCTURING: REFORMS OF REFORMS" Abstract: Electricity systems present complicated challenges for public policy. In many respects these challenges are similar to those in other network industries in providing a balance between regulation and markets, public investment and private risk taking, coordination and competition. As with other such industries, naturally monopoly elements interact with potentially competitive services, but electricity has some unusual features that defy simple analogy to other network industries. Following a reversal of a long-term decline in real electricity prices, the last two decades of the twentieth century were for the United States a time of reform, reaction, and reforms of reforms in electricity systems, moving slowly towards greater reliance on competition and markets. Changing technology, new entrants in the generation market, and a legislative mandate to provide access to the essential transmission facility accelerated a process that required major innovations in institutions and operations. Complete laissez faire competition is not possible, and the details of an efficient competitive electricity market are neither obvious nor easy to put in place. The benefits of reform may be substantial, but they require careful attention to market design. A review of the past identifies some choices on the road ahead.

Mr. Ken Lay, To explain further , I put $25,000.00 in Enron Capital Limited Life company 8%PFD cumulative guaranteed monthly income preferred shares. CUSIP# P37307108 bought 11-04-1993 in name of Sue Diviney Hester through A.G Edwards acct. # 42-323-160. In reading the prospectus dated Oct. 25, 1993 page S14 under General , second paragraph . The entire principal amount of the loan will become due and payable upon the date which Enron is dissolved , wound up or liquidated or the date upon which Enron Capital is dissolved or liquidated. There is more that I won't refer to at this time . I do hope you can find a way to repay this debt under some of these provisions , please give it your attention . I know this is small stuff and you are busy but I need your help Mr. Lay . Maybe I can count on you to find a way out for me so I can continue to be able to support myself.

What about our medical benefits, can it possibly continue ? I have had cancer as well as an incurable lung diesese . I can not see any way I will be accepted in other plans .

I am holding 200 shares in Northern Borders Partners LP unit partnership interest since 9-23-1993 CUSIP 664785102 at First Chicago Trust . Acct #8124-27264. It looks like it maybe holding its value now but will it be effected by what ever happens to Enron ?

Enron was a great company, I was so proud of it. You made it that and you can do it again if given half a chance. I Pray someone will put enough confidence in it so it can remain a company to build on and become a lot better than it was with out the selfish greed that has brought this on us.

Hi Rosalee-- I just wanted to thank you so much for your extra help on our inquiry to Ken. We understand completely that the April 25 slot following his return from vacation is not the most ideal arrangement. I think it's always easiest for someone like him if he knows that a speech given recently can easily serve as the basis for a new request. I wanted to remind you of my previous suggestion that his keynote presentation in Montreal last May to the World Forum on Energy Regulation would accomplish most of that, and we would work with Rob and others to minimize any effort required to add new content. Hopefully, this will help with the decision this week. As I mentioned the other day, Ken is really the most authoritative figure when it comes to the idea that economic concepts can be used to build energy markets and business enterprises that lead to better societies! Talk soon, and don't hesitate to ever ask for a "quid pro quo" from us.

Dear Ken,

We regret that your schedule did not permit you to visit with us this week to discuss the Center's Global Change Program. We do understand that the White House probably has priority.

Rosalee indicated that you are available to meet at the Center on May 24th. the day before the Board of Trustees meeting. May I suggest that we invite some members of the Steering Committee to join us on the 24th to review where we are, the political environment, and continued Center involvement in this program area. As you are aware we have had discussions with the Turner Foundation on a Leadership Forum and have developed several projects which have each received partial funding commitments from the federal government or private foundations. Paul O'Neill, Tim Wirth, Bill Miller, Teresa Heinz and Michael Oppenheimer are my suggestion of Steering Committee members to join us. Please give me your thoughts.

Client Companies Visual Bridge - The company is negotiating content/streaming transactions with two Latin American clients. Expect to close one or both transactions by year end. Initiated discussions with EBS to review technology for EBS clients. Cynet - Expect to close sale of fax broadcast business by December 15, but will have to finance $3.5 mm of $7.0 mm purchase price. We are evaluating alternative structures to address collateral issues and pay down a portion of our existing preferred position. Illusions Screen Printing - Moore Business Systems (an Enron Vendor) is very late on a significant receivable for the company. We are working with Enron personel to address the issue. American Communication Services - Increasing SWB agency business and developing prime contractor relationship with SWB. Treasury Connect - The company is having limited success in fund raising. Currently the company is negotiating with TH Lee, Softbank and Reuters for investments. Paribas has committed to a private label portal transaction and Deutsche Bank is reviewing a proposal. With no new revenues, the company will run out of cash at the end of January. If currently anticipated consulting and private label transactions are completed, the company should be able to operate through March without additional financing. Cabo's - Indicated that their liquor license had not been issued yet because of delays caused by a background review of one of the limited partners. Expect to have this addressed shortly.

New Transactions Urban Financial - Expect closing December 15. Our client negotiated a significant reduction in the purchase price, in large part, because of an equity funding shortfall. Capital ratios for the bank will remain strong and the new bank has already received indications of commitments from State of Connecticut agencies. Custom Feeds - Omni Bank is preparing their documents. All other documents have been drafted and are being reviewed. Wilson Financial - Received financing term sheet from Chase Bank.

If you have any questions, please call.

Thanks, mark

Ken, we are working with a team that is building ethanol plants throughout the Southeast and the Midwest, and we are in the process of arranging the right capital partner as well as identifying the right strategic partner for that endeavor. The other players in this ambitious project have relationships into Enron, but I thought that you might be able to shove me in the right direction of the person to talk to there.

I hope all is well with you, and one day when you are in the DC area and have nothing better to do you will let me have the opportunity to visit over dinner and reflect on how many years it has been since you and we created the Natural Gas Clearing House. We are having a lot of fun putting together large private equity deals and you might find that aspect of what we do as possibly interesting as well. We have expanded into the energy and utilities space as telecomm and technology have had their share of problems. In any event, would appreciate the input and look forward to a visit in the not too distant future. Best regards, Tom

I would greatly appreciate your assistance in helping to strengthen a relationship EES has with Sysco Corporation.

EES and Sysco began discussing a wide array of business opportunities with one another in the Fall of last year. On June 30th of this year, we entered into a 10 year electricity supply contract for all of Sysco's California facilities. We are currently pursuing two important Q4 transactions with Sysco; an electricity supply contract for their Texas facilities and a demand

Ken,

I hope all is going well at Enron. I know you and/or your people have been discussing with Glenn Yago our so-called Emerging Domestic Markets Project. It is an exciting one and we look forward to Enron's support, involvement, participation and leadership. Glenn will be in touch as the project unfolds.

Now I am contacting you about our upcoming Global Conference, March 8-10, 2000 in Los Angeles. There are two issues.

First, I am sure you are aware, we are holding our third annual Milken Institute Global Conference March 8-10, 2000 at the Beverly Hilton Hotel in Los Angeles. A copy of the program is attached. This year's event will have a heavy contingent of institutional investors, corporate leaders, and technology, media and policy people in the audience. On the program, we have nine Nobel Laureates, several CEOs of major corporations, and other heavy hitters. As you can see, there is a major technology slant to this year's program. It will be a great event. We would love to have some representation from Enron in the audience.

Second, we are still accepting corporate sponsorship for the event. I have attached a copy of our Sponsorship Opportunities brochure that describes the various levels ($10K - $100K), and the benefits of each sponsorship tier. This is a great program to be associated with - both high-quality speakers and a prestigious audience. Mike Milken and I hope to be able to count on your organization for support.

We anticipate a global audience of 1,500 - senior people from the financial sector, business, technology, academia, the policy community and all the major media. In just two years, our Global Conference has become a significant and influential gathering for discussion, debate and networking on key business, economic, financial and policy questions.

I hope we can count on you.

PRACTICAL STEPS TO SPECTRUM MARKETS

Why is it that wireline bandwidth is traded as a commodity while federal regulation effectively blocks the formation of similar markets for wireless? Given the key role of wireless technologies in today's telecommunications sector, the Joint Center will convene a group of experts to discuss this pertinent policy question. Panelists will debate reforms such as liberalization of wireless licenses issued by the FCC, streamlining methods to resolve interference disputes, and other practical steps to enable market allocation of radio spectrum.

Prescribing Ritalin: Who Decides?Doctors or Lawyers?

Monday, June 18, 2001, 9:30 a.m.*Noon Wohlstetter Conference Center, Twelfth Floor, AEI

The medical community has undertaken a vigorous debate about attention deficit hyperactivity disorder (ADHD). At one extreme are doctors, psychologists, and others who question whether clinicians are "medicalizing" childhood. At the other pole are doctors who eagerly prescribe medications for youngsters at the slightest hint of trouble. Nonetheless, while over diagnosis and over prescribing are legitimate concerns, the consensus among mental health professionals is that ADHD exists and that stimulant therapies like Ritalin are effective. A legal debate has now been added to the medical one. Trial lawyers representing a class of parents whose children were diagnosed with ADHD have filed lawsuits in several states against the maker of Ritalin and the American Psychiatric Association. They allege that the two conspired to "create" a disease to hype the benefits of the drug. This conference will include an overview of the ADHD controversy and an examination of the implications of the ADHD litigation, followed by a question and answer period.

Current Policy Issues in Securities Regulation

Wednesday, May 30, 2001, 9:00 a.m.-3:30 p.m. Wohlstetter Conference Center, Twelfth Floor, AEI 1150 17th Street, N.W., Washington, D.C.

The basic structure for the public distribution of securities in the United States-which places limits on a company's communications before a final prospectus is available-was adopted almost seventy years ago, before the revolution in electronic communications and the advent of the Internet. The capital markets are globalized for institutions trading privately, but the access of U.S. residents to foreign securities is still restricted in various ways. The SEC's recent Regulation FD ("Fair Disclosure"), which requires companies to disseminate material information to the public at the same time the information is distributed to selected groups, may diminish the role of analysts as information intermediaries. Does the communications revolution require changes in the securities distribution process? Is there a responsible way to create truly globalized securities markets? Is Regulation FD soundly based in policy or academic work? This conference, sponsored jointly with the Securities Industry Association, will address these and other questions.

We need a utility/energy company referral.

We are an early stage e-commerce company that offers the world's largest selection of wildlife merchandise. We are ready to obtain our first round of financing. We would like to have 5 co-branding partners who would receive equity positions in our company. We would incorporate their logo throughout our site and include their PR materials with each order shipped. Target partners would include the utility and energy companies. Since your company is active in this market, you may know of someone who can assist us.

We see utility/energy companies as a compatible fit because of their interest in projecting a positive wildlife/environmental image.

About our company:

WildlifeCollectibles.Com is a specialty catalog company featuring wildlife merchandise. We have the world's largest selection of wildlife merchandise. Currently in the wildlife merchandise niche there are no entities offering broad merchandise selections for each animal specie. We are filling this void by operating 22 "sub-niche" stores under the WildlifeCollectibles.Com brand. These 22 storefronts will represent 105 wildlife species. Seven of these storefronts are operational and the backend inventory systems are complete for the other 15. We are in the process of loading them on the Internet.

One major component not yet installed on our site is our "Facts About the Specie" page. We will have reference information available for every wildlife specie listed on our site. At present, there is no central repository of reference material available for most species. Britanica.com has reference information available for only 11 species. This will attract school age children with their parents tagging along.

We are looking for a total of 5 million dollars. In order to assist companies in purchasing an equity position/co-branded arrangement with us, we are willing to finance their investment. We will take $25,000.00 a month for 40 months from 5 corporate partners. This will allow them to budget the expense through Public Relations or Marketing.

I hope I have given you enough information to understand what we would like to do, so you can either assist us or point us in the right direction. We would pay a commission and provide a small equity stake in our company to the individual who signs on the utility/energy companies for us.

PASS THIS ON TILL IT REACHES EVERYONE BY ELECTION TIME

Our Senators and Congressmen don't pay in to Social Security, and, of course, they don't collect from it. The reason is that they have a special retirement plan that they voted for themselves many years ago. For all practical purposes, it works like this:

When they retire, they continue to draw their same pay, until they die, except that it may be increased from time to time, by cost of living adjustments. For instance, former Senator Bradley, and his wife, may be expected to draw $7,900,000, with Mrs.. Bradley drawing $275,000 during the last year of her life. This is calculated on an average life span for each. This would be well and good, except that they paid nothing in on any kind of retirement, and neither does any other Senator or Congressman.

This fine retirement comes right out of the General Fund: our tax money. While we who pay for it all, draw an average of $1000/month from Social Security. Imagine for a moment that you could structure a retirement plan so desirable that people would have extra deducted so that they could increase their own personal retirement income. A retirement plan that works so well, that Railroad employees, Postal Workers, and others who aren't in it, would clamor to get in. That is how good Social Security could be, if only one small change were made. That change is to jerk the Golden Fleece retirement out from under the Senators and Congressmen, and put them in Social Security with the rest of us. Then watch how fast they fix it. If enough people receive this, maybe one or some of them along the way, might be able to help.

How many can YOU send it to ??

Ladies and Gentleman,

Enron Public Affairs has launched a new initiative: ENRON UNIVERSITY AFFAIRS. The overall mission of Enron University Affairs is to broaden the depth and scope of our relationships with targeted universities through building Enron brand recognition on campuses, leveraging research exchanges of intellectual capital between Enron and the Academic community, and enhancing commercial opportunities for Enron. Additionally, this initiative will further Enron's efforts to hire and retain the world's most innovative employees.

I am leading this initiative, as Vice President, joined by Mike Rosen as a Director. Cindy Derecskey will also work with our team in conjunction with her position as public affairs coordinator.

Currently, Harvard Business School is developing a case study "to capture the evolution of Enron's business model and the underlying entrepreneurial culture, which made that evolution possible". A significant part of the research centers on how Enron manages its intellectual capital. Harvard Professor Christopher Bartlett, Daewoo Professor of Business Administration and Chair, Program for Global Leadership, is leading this effort, assisted by Meg Wozny, his research associate at Harvard Business School. Professor Bartlett and Ms. Wozny have already co-written case studies on General Electric and Microsoft.

Jeff Skilling has already met/interviewed with Professor Bartlett and Ms. Wozny, along with several other Enron Management members.

Cindy , Tom, Andy, Gene, Mark and Rick, we are trying to schedule one hour meetings with each of you Wednesday, October 11th, Thursday October 12th, or Friday October 13th.

Please reply with your preferred 1 hour time slot asap.

Please reply to me by e-mail or phone/voice mail @ 3-6117.

Additional information regarding the work, Enron management already involved, and Professor Bartlett's bio follow.

Thanks for your participation!

Hi Christie:

Prof. Bartlett and I would like to capture the evolution of Enron's business model and the underlying entrepreneurial culture, which made that evolution possible. A big part of our research is Enron's management of intellectual capital as a critical strategic resource. We'd like to understand how Enron attracts, recruits, motivates and develops top talent and how it creates the behavioral context that ensures that individual entrepreneurial initiative is incorporated into organizational bloodstream.

Prof. Bartlett has already met with Jeff Skilling and Greg Whalley. Jeff suggested Prof. Bartlett meet Ken Lay, Gene Humphrey, Mark Frevert, Andrew Fastow and Cindy Olsen.

I've met Mark Palmer and Steve Kean as well as Louise Kitchen (EnronOnline), Ken Rice, David Cox, Kevin Hannon, and Richard diMichele (Broadband Business). We are planning to take Enron's culture for a test drive in a separate case study on Louise Kitchen and EnronOnline launch.

Here are the dates that will work for us: October 10 13 October 18 20 October 26-27 November 20-21

Thank you for your help, and please let me know if you need any additional information.

Best regards, Meg

PS Attached is Prof. Bartlett's bio. I'm his research associate, and we've co-written case studies on General Electric, Microsoft and ResMed. - BartlettBio.doc ***** Meg Wozny Research Associate Harvard Business School Gallatin Lounge C Soldiers Field Boston, MA 02163

Re: RFF In The News

As one means of keeping the Board more informed about the increased attention being paid to RFF in the press, we are attaching an excerpt from RFF In The News. It is a rolling update of when, where, and in what context RFF scholars and RFF publications are cited by the media. We have created this evolving tracking mechanism and are still tweaking it to comprehensively capture citations of RFF in the print and electronic press, at a reasonable cost, and in a manner that is useful both internally and in promoting RFF via the Web.

We would welcome your reactions.

Mr. Lay,

I am trying to gather a list of FUMC members that work at Enron. Right now, you are my only source. The Membership manager has no "Work" field to query the members. I'd like to take advantage of the Enron Matching Program to raise money for the recent tragedy. I am a member of the Crosstrainers (young singles) group and we are organizing a fundraiser and need extra money for the entertainment. The Enron donations will go directly towards the NY & Washington tragedies. Please see the attachment.

Please let me know any FUMC members that work at Enron. I would like to notify them of the opportunity to come together to match contributions for fundraisers through FUMC. Thanks so much for your help.

Respectfully yours,

Dear Ken:

This is a brief note to thank you for taking the time to serve as a reference for me. Your continued support of both my professional and personal development is deeply appreciated. You are a fine role model and someone who continues to inspire me to strive further.

I have taken a job as President and CEO of ChainDrugStore.net, a web based B2B information exchange. We are based in Alexandria, Va. My boss and Chairman of our Board is Craig Fuller. You may remember that Craig was Vice President Bush's Chief of Staff.

Let's keep our fingers crossed on GW--looks good, but too close for comfort. I keep in regular touch with my friends Larry Lindsey, Bob Grady and Bob Zoellick--understand they serve on an advisory board for Enron.

Ken, thanks again for everything and keep my ESOP investment growing.

Hi Kenneth,

My name is Cole Albon. I work for Sigaba, a secure internet communications company and I'd like to get you started using our technology. We enable a "send secure" button in an existing email client so that your sensitive emails can be sent across the internet in privacy. Sigaba is extremely easy to use and works on both internal and external company email. I'd like you and your executive team to start using our software. Then, if it makes sense for you to use our encryption solution on a company wide basis, I'd like to present you with an enterprise solution.

Why? - When you send an email, it is sent through several servers on the way to its recipient. - These servers are not owned by you or the recipient, so many people can read the contents. - Given your position, you probably send information that you don't want others to read. - Sigaba can give you the technology to protect your emails without you changing your software or email habits.

My contact information is below and you can download our software at <http://www.sigaba.com>. If you'd like investigate further, please feel free to contact me directly or forward my contact information to your Manager of Network Security.

Thanks for your time,

Cole

Hey there,

I just called your dad and congratulated the "father of the bride" He was VERY cute and walked me through his conversation with JL and his thoughts on Florida...FUN FUN FUN - He is so proud of you and thinks so highly of JL - I can hardly wait to meet him.

All my love, Christina

YIPPEE - what fun...I have one more Florida suggestion - The Boca Beach Club. Here is the pitch.

* 2 easy airport to fly into: Miami and West Palm * The BBC compound has 4 hotels and at least five restaurants - with an amazing tower restaurant - which would be great for a rehearsal dinner * The four hotels include: Condos, tower hotel, old estate rooms, and beach front rooms. There is a water shuttle and complementary shuttle - that is very convenient to transport people around! * Beautiful Ball room * 2 Golf courses * Tons of tennis courts * Multiple Pools * Gorgeous entrance way

We have stayed there at least ten times and always have a great time. Just a thought!

Sir,

Before I start, let me introduce myself. My name is Thirumalesh Aedunuthula. I had the pleasure of interning with Enron, this summer. I am a MBA student at Louisiana State University and worked with Enron Tax department.

Over the past few weeks, things have changed for Enron at a faster pace than expected/imagined. To some, it is amazing how stock fell from $90 to 26 cents just in a year. People have been attributing lot of things for the fall, from California crises to international deals, without actually taking time to find out what went wrong with Enron .

As an intern, I had the opportunity to feel the work culture of Enron. I felt that Enron is making profits not because it is in Energy Industry but because of energetic people like you and Mr.. Jeff Skilling and many others. I strongly believe that greatest asset with Enron is its talent pool, which made the company what it is today. Today, we have a discussion on Enron's Crisis in class. I know, for sure, that many would be interested in voicing their opinion against Enron. I would go to class and take the side of Enron. I might be in minority. But that doesn't matter, as to understand what Enron is, one has to really experience it.

Hoping that Enron will really climb back, much faster than its fall....

Yours Truly,

Dear Ken, I was notified today that I am being terminated. According to a lady (Trina) that I spoke to in Benefits, I will have health insurance through December 31, 2001. Currently, my family is also covered by the Enron insurance. My daughter is a sophomore at NYU. I can get insurance for her through NYU. I will need, however, a letter from Enron, on Enron letterhead, indicating when my current insurance will expire. Once I have the letter from Enron, NYU will initiate the paperwork to provide insurance coverage for my daughter. I asked Enron Benefits to provide such a letter. The lady I spoke to said she would have to check with her supervisor. I have not heard from either of them as of yet. I realize you are very busy but I would be grateful if you could facilitate a letter being sent to me as soon as possible. My daughter is planning to study abroad starting in January. The Spanish consulate will require that we have adequate insurance. My wife will be visiting the consulate on either 12/10 or 12/11 to present the necessary documentation for my daughter's study abroad. It is imperative, therefore, that we receive the above mentioned letter from Enron as soon as possible. My wife will take the Enron letter plus the NYU documentation to the consulate to verify to the consulate that my daughter will have adequate insurance coverage. I wish you the best in rebuilding Enron and I hope you and your family have a wonderful holiday. Sincerely, Elton E. Smith 5715 Lodge Creek Drive Houston, Texas 77066 281-893-1530

"Theme Button" and "Budget Button" on CDPI Website Aimed at Helping Planners

Concept Design Productions, Inc. announces two new improvements to their 200-plus page website at <http://www.conceptdesigninc.com>.

The new Theme Button is designed to make event planners' jobs easier, offering more than 1,000 environmental elements and stage sets that are categorized by themes, i.e. Western or Patriotic, Sci-Fi or Gothic, among others.

With a simple click, planners can go directly to pages loaded with structural elements meeting the themed criteria they need. Once there, they can see just what elements are already constructed and ready to rent, or they can view dozens of fabricated environments available to them for a fraction of the cost of custom creation.

Also debuting on the CDPI website in 2002 is the new Budget Button, which allows planners with a set budget to immediately access only those scenic elements that fall within that budget. It is hoped that such advancements to the existing site will afford planners an easier, more cost-effective use of their time when planning events.

Concept Design Productions, Inc. has a 20-plus year reputation as an innovative leader in the event industry. If you would like more information, we encourage you to access our website, <http://www.conceptdesigninc.com>.

Mr. Lay:

Believe it or not I strongly believe in and practice the values listed below. I really did expect Enron to believe them and practice them as well.

What Enron did to us Monday afternoon is not in accordance to the values listed below.

I'm now on the brink of bankruptcy because I cannot find a job. I'm 49 years old and because I enlisted in the Navy during Vietnam, with 9 years service instead of going on to college, I do not have a degree. I have more experience than most anyone with a degree, but so far that doesn't help. Most times all they look at is that piece of paper.

I hope someday you feel what I'm feeling and understand what I'm going through. You guys that did this with your millions in reserve probably never will fully understand.

Sincerely,

John W. Harwood 1001 Bench Mark Drive McDonough, GA 30252 678-583-4160 jharwood@mindspring.com

This young lady was crowned Miss Rodeo America in Las Vegas , Nevada during the National Finals Rodeo this last month in December. I was honored to be one of 4 judges that decided she had "it". Now I know I was right. Just wanted to share this with you. She really is a genuine young lady! Straight from Athens, Texas. And she's an AGGIE! She was the 2001 Miss Rodeo Texas. Cheryl,

Things have been a whirlwind since the coronation, but I am loving every minute of it! I stayed for the entire Wrangler National Finals Rodeo and spent a lot of time talking to the media and the sponsors. I was asked on several occasions during interviews with the press about whether or not I am a person of faith, and I was very happy to have the opportunity to give my testimony. I told them that I knew that I would not have been awarded the opportunity to speak with them if the Lord wasn't at work in my life and that I had been very blessed with wonderful parents who had raised me in a Christian home. I am leaving tomorrow morning to go to Waco for the Texas Circuit Finals, and I will be flying to Denver next week. I am really excited that one of my first appearances is going to be in Houston so that I get to see all of you! Cheryl, again thank you very much. You are truly an inspiration to me. I will see you soon!

Love, Kara

Ken,

I feel terrible in writing this email to inform you that I am leaving Enron. The timing of my departure is purely coincidental to the timing of the recent events.

It has been a special and rewarding privilege to work at Enron over the past three and a half years. The integrity and high purpose you stand for is a personal inspiration to me. Seeing your leadership first-hand has been a real treat.

Receiving the Chairman's Award last year was an incredible honor. It is difficult for me to feel truly deserving of it because of the sheer numbers of amazingly dedicated, yet unrecognized heroes I have met at Enron. I have the greatest admiration of them and draw my inspiration from them.

One regret in leaving is that there will be those at Enron who will use my departure as more negative fodder to taint the company image. I wouldn't ever wish that on you, especially in light of the recent challenges you are experiencing. So I apologize if that does come to pass.

One factor in my departure has been my disappointment with personnel abuses I've observed with EES' origination management. There is a general feeling of despair because the management chain looks the other way and the concept of an "open door" is political suicide. H.R. is as much at fault in my opinion because they side with management as opposed to taking an objective view and judgement of the abuses. My words and credibility may not carry any weight as I too have been victimized by the character assassination that is all too common at EES.

Though my emotions run high when I think about the injustices to good employees (and lost potential benefit to Enron), I leave with no bad feelings toward the company and am proud to have been a part of Enron.

The shift in EES' business model had resulted in my taking on a new role this past spring. Being based outside of Houston (in the Chicago area), my career opportunities are limited. And as much as I tried, I was feeling stale and unfulfilled in this new role and decided that it would be better for me to move on.

Ken, I believe in you and wish you success and redemption through this difficult time. I wish that I could have done more.

If I can ever help, I hope that you won't hesitate to ask. Thank you again.

Respectfully,

mark markharada@aol.com home: 630-941-8092

Hello! Will and I decided this would be a good way to ask for assistance from the TFA national board members residing in Houston. TFA-H is enjoying incredible momentum right now--so much so that we are once again in dire need of computers. We have made contact with several companies and have some corporate proposals under consideration, but those are "down the road" relationships assuming they work out as planned. Please reach out to anyone and everyone to make them aware of TFA-Houston and how much the contribution of retired computers means to the disadvantaged neighborhoods and schools that we serve. We have a request in to Exxon Mobil Upstream Research as I understand Exxon is replacing 40K desktops with laptops. I haven't been able to make headway with Exxon Mobil yet--if you can assist with trying to obtain their retired computers, that would excellent. This could help our efforts across the country.

UPDATE: We have now assisted 74 organizations and have a backlog of demand. This Saturday, November 11, we will provide 75 computers to 4 organizations. This will deplete our inventory. We have several partnerships in the making that will greatly increase the demand for our services. This week I also participated in a meeting headed by the Mayor's office to bring the technology and economic providers of the Enhanced Enterprise Community together to see how we can effectively collaborate. Judging by the interest of my post-meeting conversations, this will also generate considerable demand for our services. We want to be able to deliver what we say we can since we are now moving to the forefront of digital divide efforts in Houston.

Thank you for your commitment and willingness to serve the cause of eliminating the digital divide in Houston! We are making a difference in the lives of thousands of children and their families--let's keep moving forward. I have attached an information sheet that you can use if you need it as well as a list of the equipment we can use. I have also included an update of the progress of TFA-Houston. Please email or call if you have questions.

Dear Ken,

I would like to thank you for the great experience that I had with Enron, and for the opportunity that you gave me three years ago. I joined Enron looking for a change and I have never regretted of my choice.

A lot of things changed over this time. In my first presentation to Gazprom in Moscow, I remember, that I pictured Enron as the largest gas pipeline operator in Americas aggressively looking for energy development projects in emerging markets. Two years later, I was talking to Microsoft executives in Redmond, who were looking for a partner to conquer a high-tec broadband world. I don't know any other company, which can offer such an opportunity for a change and growth, and which is able to change itself so much as Enron.

I am grateful that over this time you have been personally involved in my business career and introduced me to the Enron management team - Mark Frevert, Richard DiMichele, Vince Kaminsky and others.

I also would like to use this opportunity to admit some of my mistakes. As it was my first experience inside a corporate environment (not as CEO), it took me some time to develop relationships with people inside Enron. These relationships are critical to achieving success within the company. But Enron is a great place to learn, and in a culture that encourages innovation and risk-taking, some mistakes are inevitable. I am pleased that the deal that my team and I developed and managed to provide Microsoft (MSN) with broadband network was successful (you may remember we discussed this idea prior to my move to Enron Broadband Services).

This spring I took an advantage of your recommendation and graduated from the Harvard Advanced Management Program. It was a great experience and I learned professionally and personally. It was a very competitive group of executives from all over the world, and the program consisted of a three-month intensive academic curriculum. Together with one of my Harvard classmates and his Canadian telecom company, we are now working to start a new business in the US.

You have a challenging task to return Enron to its leadership position. I admire the steps that you are making. Without restoring integrity to internal and external relationships, it would be impossible to achieve this goal. I have no doubts that you and your colleagues will make this happen.

I wish you all the best and thank you again for the opportunity that you offered me. I hope that our paths will cross again.

Best regards to you and your family,

Boris Brevnov Tel. (540) 687-6763 PO Box 471 Middleburg, VA 20118

Dear Ken, The purpose of this message is to request a meeting with you at your convenience. In light of my work in the past with Enron, I hope this request is not presumptuous on my part; certainly, my intent is to be helpful. We met briefly five years ago when I was a director at McKinsey working with David Noble at Enron on leadership team and organization issues. Dave introduced me to you because he felt that my experience was particularly relevant to several of the challenges you were facing. However, we all concluded that it would be difficult for me to work with Jeff Skilling at that time because of his earlier junior/senior relationship with me at McKinsey. Shortly after that discussion, I retired from McKinsey on very friendly terms to form my own firm. Katzenbach Partners LLC specializes in organizational performance, leadership capability, and employee commitment issues. We have a particularly distinctive competence in helping organizations use cultural and value-based elements to build "peak performance" across important segments or all of the employee base. We believe we are unique in applying the intellectual creativity and analytical rigor of top strategy firms to these kinds of organizational and cultural challenges. Our firm now has over fifty highly qualified professionals, and we serve a range of leading and successful companies on these issues. Based on my previous recollections of some of the people challenges facing Enron and the leadership transition you are likely undergoing, I feel that Katzenbach Partners could be particularly useful to you and your organization right now. Since leaving McKinsey, I have continued to conduct extensive research in the areas of leadership, cultural change, and employee motivation. In addition, my firm has significant experience with leading companies helping them organize to establish new values and change cultural behavior to improve enterprise performance. Based upon our limited current exposure to Enron, the recent number of leadership changes appear very likely to create cultural issues and gaps that may warrant new, creative approaches to realign behaviors and commitment within the company. If you find these kinds of issues relevant and timely, I would be very interested in meeting to discuss and trade current perspectives. I will ask my colleague in Houston, Kenny Kurtzman, to call to see if it would be appropriate for us to get together. Sincerely, Jon R. Dear Ken,

Since you and I go to the same church and are on the Trustee Board together ( First United Methodist Church ) as well as serve together on the Greater Houston Partnership board ,etc, etc..I think I can imagine how busy you are. And I know how hard it is to contact you too.I am going to ask this very informally...but very sincerely... I have a LARGE favor of you...and I did not want to ask YOU in public last Tuesday at GHP Ex. Committee nor at lunch with Elizabeth Dole.

I am the new Chairman of the Theatre Under the Stars (TUTS) Board. I preface my request with that announcement so you will know how important this is to me as well as to TUTS and the city at large.

IT IS WITH ALL THE EXCITEMENT AND ENTHUSIASM AS WELL AS GREAT HONOR...that I tell you that President and Barbara Bush have said YES to being the Honorary Chairs of the May 18th,2002 Theatre Under the Stars (TUTS) Gala ...our opening night in the new Hobby Center for the Performing Arts .I know you (very gracefully) turned down my request to be a Theater Under the Stars (TUTS) Board member...but my favor NOW is asking you and your lovely wife to serve as Co- Chairs for that event along with George and Barbara. I have a few other prominent Houstonians that I will be asking to Co-Chair along with you.And if you have anyone you think would be appropriate to serve with you ...please let me know.

We have some grand ideas and need only your name and influence to make this a successful evening for TUTS!You and your wife may be as involved or not involved as you like!We would like to top the funds raised by this current year's event that was Co -Chaired by Chuck and Kim Watson .They helped TUTS to raise over $350,000. We want to raise the bar for this event as it is a World Premier Opening for an Internationally Reknown Organization....Theatre Under The Stars.The new theatre holds 2600 people.We want every seat filled for this event!

The Hobby Center -Music Hall Foundation Board will be having their own opening Gala...I am sure you have already heard about it...It will be in April or early May before ours as they are the landlord...we are the #1 tenant...they get to have their opening first ,of course!

Will you give this request real consideration and say YES!

I would appreciate your answer as soon as you possibly can give it. As we need to begin the next phase of the planning asap.

Again, Please forgive my informal way of presenting this very important Invitation!

Sincerely, Cheryl

October 13, 2000

This past Wednesday eveing, the cocktail party in honor of the National Audubon Society's Living Ocean, held at the home of W. Graham Arader III= at 1016 Madison Avenue, was a stellar event, drawing a crowd and raising awareness. The focus of the event was the launching of the =01&Just Ask=01= 8 campaign, aimed at protecting the creatures of the sea by expanding consume= r awareness about food from the ocean. Attendees sampled delicious recipes from some of the top US chefs, all of whom used fish recommended by the =01&Seafood Lover=01,s Almanac,=018 a beautifully designed, whimsical guide= to fish and shellfish that serves to help consumers become more familiar with the seafood they eat. . Edited by Ms. Mercedes Lee (with Suzanne Iudicello and Dr. Safina contributing), the Seafood Lover=01,s Almanac provides readers with crucial information regarding sea life: what is safe to eat, for example, and which species are endangered. Many seafoods commonly available today are much less plentiful than the average consumer might think. Consumers hold the greatest influence over the buying decisions of seafood wholesalers and retailers, and with the efforts of the National Audubon Society this issue will have a much greater chance of receiving widespread attention.

America=01,s top seafood chefs (and their spectacular creations) were in attendance, including Rick Moonen, of Oceana, New York; Todd English, Kingfish Hall, Boston; Jonathan Eismann, Pacific Time, Miami; Robert Kinkead, Kinkead=01,s, Washington, D.C.; and Terence Feury, Striped Bass, Philadelphia. The sampling of food ranged from Margarita Oysters to Dungeness Crabcakes with Chipotle Vinaigrette, Sesame Seared Tuna with seaweed salad, pickled ginger, wasabe and fried wontons, all served up in a= n irresistible fashion. Best of all, the chefs generously shared their recipes to all who wished to recreate these delicious appetizers at home.

Other notable guests included Jennifer Bogo, Associate Editor for The Environment Magazine; Barbara Fairchild, Editor and Chief of Bon Appetite; Mindy Fox of the Earth Pledge Foundation; Jennifer Herman of Martha Stewart Magazine; Ray Isle, Senior Editor of Wine & Spirits; James Rodewald, Senior Editor of Gourmet; and of course, Graham Arader, a long time supporter of the Audubon Society, who would not have missed the event for the world.

The evening was permeated by celebration and enthusiasm for the new =01&Jus= t Ask=018 campaign: a wonderful sign that support for the Audubon Society and= all of its fundamental projects continues to grow. Please do not hesitate to contact us if you would like information on how you can make a contribution to the invaluable efforts of the National Audubon Society.

All,

May 18th is Theatre Under the Stars Gala- 35th Anniversary and Inaugural event AT the new Hobby Center. The Hobby Center for the Performing Arts Foundation will be having their own (separate) fundraising events the week before the Theatre Under the Stars Gala...to actually open the building and to finish their building and operational funds. Please do not get these two events confused.

Contributing to one organization does NOT put funding into the other. They are separate organizations.

Theatre Under the Stars has been "homeless" for three years now and have not been able to produce full complete seasons of shows... as TUTS has used whatever facility we could squeeze into with the other Arts organizations in town. Thus we have a GREAT need to make the Theatre Under the Stars 35th Anniversary and Inaugural Gala very successful and to bring funding into Theatre Under the Stars so we can produce the world class productions you have become accustom to here in Houston from Theatre Under the Stars.

Please don't hesitate to call your friends and tell them to save the date now. After we have received your "friends" list the actual Save the date cards and invitations will be mailed .

Call me if you have any questions. Thank you.

Ken--

At the conclusion of our phone conversation, you indicated that I should get back with you if we were having any difficulty in pursuing our interest in acquiring the Enron wind business. Knowing the many demands on your time, I regret to have to come back to you. However, despite repeated attempts, we are still locked out of negotiations over the wind asset and have been unable to receive information we've requested. Our phone calls have been returned, but information and/or a seat at the table have not been forthcoming.

Can we discuss this again by phone? Alternatively, as I suggested in a note to you on Monday, we stand ready at any moment to come visit you in person about this if you might have even 15 minutes for us.

Again, apologies for coming back to you about this. But, it would be extremely helpful if you could assist us in being able to move forward on our interest in bidding on this business.

Many thanks! Katie McGinty

Dear Family, Heather and I were talking about NYC and thought we should make some reservations for dinner for the entire family on Friday and Saturday night. I am trying to get reservations for the entire family at Le Cirque 2000 for Friday night at 7:30 but we will be very lucky to get in. Does anyone have other suggestions or an objection to Le Cirque? I am attaching a review of the restaurant. It is definitely a little "Haute" but I've heard it is also a lot of fun. Heather is looking into Italian restaurants for Saturday night, as well.

This is just a suggestion but we were worried that we may have difficutly getting into a good restaurant if we wait too long. Also, I think I am just a little excited about the trip! Luv to all Liz

The Scene Uber-designer Adam Tihany's (Jean Georges, among others) surreal interior evokes simultaneous thoughts of the Sistine Chapel and "The Jetsons." Purple, one-armed velvet chairs, neon tubing and stainless-steel sculptures compete for attention with the soaring, gilded ceilings, pre-Raphaelite murals and bejeweled patrons. Ringleader Sirio Maccioni oversees a front-of-house that has won praise for softening the haughty edge that marked the restaurant's pre-Y2K incarnation.

The Food Still some of the most sublime haute cuisine around. Though longtime sous chef Sotta Kuhn is now heading the kitchen=01*having succeeded Sylvain Portay (who took over for Daniel Boulud)=01*the luxurious, truffle-and-foie-gras-studded fare remains as sharp as ever. The current menu includes the long-running paupiette of sea bass with Barolo sauce and leeks, as well a sauteed veal chop with bacon-wrapped asparagus. Patrons can take decision-making out of the picture entirely with the five-course chef's degustation menu, a bargain at $90.

Clients and friends:

Nonprofit organizations that maintain websites will want to know that the IRS is considering regulating nonprofit Web speech. Public comments are being sought by the IRS on these proposed new rules for nonprofits.

The Internal Revenue Service has released "Announcement 2000-84" soliciting public comment on possible new regulations for charities, think tanks and educational organizations.

Among the questions the IRS is addressing in its review of exempt organization's speech on their Internet sites is:

"Does providing a hyperlink on a charitable organization's website to another organization that engages in political campaign intervention result in per se prohibited political intervention?"

"To what extent are statements made by subscribers to a forum, such as a listserv or newsgroup, attributable to an exempt organization that maintains the forum?"

"Does a website constitute a single publication or communication? If not, how should it be separated into distinct publications or communications?"

House Majority Leader Dick Armey, R-Texas, has issued a statement condemning the IRS' consideration of new regulations for the Internet.

"The IRS has no business getting involved in whether a think tank has links on its website, or how often a charity's site is updated," he said.

"The idea of turning the tax man into a Net cop would have a chilling effect on free speech on the Internet. I'm glad the agency has not taken any regulatory action yet. But let's be clear about this. We will be watching what they do, and we will not tolerate any backdoor attempt to regulate the Internet."

The public comment period on this issue will close Feb. 13, 2001, according to the IRS announcement. Comments are to be directed to Judith E. Kindell, the principal author of the announcement, at the IRS, 1111 Constitution Avenue NW, Washington, D.C. 20224.

FANNY BRICE HIT MUSICAL AT WORTHAM JULY 10-22 AS 'BABY JANE' MOVES TO 2002

Theatre Under The Stars has rescheduled the World Premiere of "What Ever Happened to Baby Jane?" into its 2002-03 season. It will be replaced by the TUTS premiere of "FUNNY GIRL," the 1964 Broadway smash-hit that made a star of a little-known Barbra Streisand. The dates of "Funny Girl" will be exactly the same as for "Baby Jane, " July 10-22, at Wortham Center. "Funny Girl," which was later made into a movie for which Streisand won an Academy Award, tells the story of the legendary comedienne, Fanny Brice. Star of saloons, burlesque, vaudeville, movies, radio, and the Ziegfeld Follies, Brice had a tumultuous relationship with the gambler Nicky Arnstein. Their star-crossed love story and Fanny's rise to stardom are the basis of the musical.

With book by Isobel Lennart and a classic score by Jule Styne and Bob Merrill, "Funny Girl" boasts such popular songs as "People," "Don't Rain On My Parade," and "I'm the Greatest Star." Bruce Lumpkin, who recently staged TUTS' acclaimed "Miss Saigon," will direct and choreograph.

According to TUTS President/CEO Frank Young, "What Ever Happened to Baby Jane?" is being delayed for six months because of design problems. "A new work is always in the process of development through many stages," said Young. "At any point in the creative process, one or more elements may cause a delay. The creators and I firmly believe that a few more months of development are needed to put the show into its final, audience-ready form."

Single tickets for "FUNNY GIRL" are available on-line at www.tuts.com/boxoffice/ticketing.htm using TUTS E-ticket system, by phone at 800/678-4330, in person at either TUTS' box office, 2600 Southwest Freeway.

Production sponsors for "FUNNY GIRL" are the Humphreys Foundation, El Paso Energy, Mr. and Mrs. Geoffrey Roberts, and Humana.

ATTENTION TUTS SUBSCRIBERS: You do not need to do anything. Do not return your tickets. Just show up at the theatre with your "Baby Jane" tickets on your performance date and time and you will be seated for "FUNNY GIRL." No new tickets will be issued.

'FUNNY GIRL' SOUVENIRS AVAILABLE ON-LINE NOW

"FUNNY GIRL" memorabilia, including tee-shirts, nightshirts, songbooks, CDs and cassettes, are available now for purchase at Theatre Under The Stars' on-line boutique. Visit www.tuts.com/shop.html for these and other musical theatre-related items.

Mr. Lay:

I am Marilynne Haws one of your stockholders. I am 70 years old and was quite proud of my Enron stock.. Part of the stock I inherited and part I bought. I do not have a lot of money, so losing money is very terrifying for me. The dishonesty of Enron has been a disappointment to me. I put the blame entirely on you as you should have been watching the store instead of politicking. I still like to believe that in your case it was ego, not dishonesty that caused you to allow this mess to happen. I am ashamed of you as a leader of industry, as a Republican and I just hope that you are not a Methodist.

Dear Mr. Lay:

Here's the newly completed Enterprise version of our white paper, and the Service Provider version is being finished now. I'll send that along as soon as it's ready.

After you and your associates read it, I think you'll discover that we provide a VPN tool that eases provisioning of Nortel Contivity, Cisco IOS, Altiga and PIX, as well as VPN management and security policy auditing. This would compliment your existing solutions and greatly expand your ability to penetrate the market with your product offering.

Let me know technical questions you come up with and I'll get our CTO to answer them for you.

Networks VPN Initiative

Dear Mr. Lay:

Because you were recognized Business Week in 1999 for "taking Enron into the red-hot communications industry" by "developing an intelligent network platform to facilitate online business and building a market for trading bandwidth", we'd like to get your opinion on how we can contribute to your initiative.

TBD Networks is a Secure VPN Management software company here in Silicon Valley. We believe Enron could benefit from using our highly scalable software to manage VPNs Enterprise-wide by:

1) Speeding up the setup and provisioning time for tens of thousands of VPNs. 2) Uniquely Vendor-Independent: Supporting all types of VPNs (Remote Access/Site-to-site/Extranet), based on equipment, products and technologies from Cisco IOS, PIX, Altiga, Nortel and Check Point. 3) Reducing training and support needs by using our easy-to-use, web-based GUI based on high-level policies, hiding low-level, vendor-specific interfaces. 4) Providing significantly higher levels of security and control VPNs via advanced features such as random policy auditing and proactive service monitoring.

We would be very interested in meeting with someone at Enron to find out how you would like to proceed. Who would you suggest we contact?

I talked to your secretary today to see when you would be in Japan. She told me that you were already there. I was going to try to set up a meeting with our CEO. We decided that I was too late and, therefore, should introduce myself via email. Amdahl is a US subsidiary of Fujitsu. Amdahl has been working with EBS at a lower level on the Blockbuster partnership and the Portland to Houston data center migration. We have determined that there are many synergies between the two companies on a global basis.

Fujitsu is the second largest IT company in the world and Japan's largest computer manufacturer. In terms of US dollars, Fujitsu is about $52 billion. Here is a web site if you are interested.

<http://www.fujitsu.com/>

Fujitsu is a large consumer of electricity and broadband. I would like to get the executives of the two companies talking. I think there are major opportunities for Enron to sell "stuff" to Fujitsu, for Fujitsu to sell "stuff" to Enron, and to jointly develop products.

At your convenience, I would like to come by and introduce myself and see if you agree that we should have the two companies open discussions. I understand that you will be in Houston on Monday. I will try you then.

Dear Advisory Board members:

Dr.Mark Wheelis, PhD emailed the following:

Inhaling anthrax can be spread by aerosol only by droplets small enough to penetrate into the alveoli--approximately 5 micrometers diameter. Does not spread from person to person. HEPA filters will remove it, but not normal air filters.

From Reports from Russia, it is evident high temp. (air circulation) will kill Anthrax. I worked as Chief Engineer in Texaco and Shell buildings in Houston. I am familiar with filtration and heater systems. I request a discussion may be arranged among the interested Advisory Board Mebers to review this topic.

Subject: Forum Topic - HALFTIME & BEYOND

Just a few notes to give some thought to before attending our meeting this evening.

HALFTIME - an interval in a person's life where he or she explores ways to transform their success into significance.

What is it that you have always wanted to do? And why haven't you done it yet?

HALFTIME DRILL:

Answer the following questions to help you take stock of your first half as you prepare for a better second half. Be honest, and write down your answers.

- 1) What do I want to be remembered for? Write a description of how your life would look if it turned out just the way you wished.
- 2) What about money? How much is enough? If I have more than enough, what purpose do I serve with the excess? If I have less than enough, what am I willing to do to correct that?
- 3) How am I feeling about my career now? Is this what I want to be doing with my life ten years from now?
- 4) Am I living a balanced life? What are the important elements in my life that deserve more time?
- 5) What is the primary loyalty in my life?
- 6) Where do I look for inspiration, mentors and working models for my second half?
- 7) Peter Drucker says that two important needs are self-realization and community. On a scale of 1-10 (10 being the highest), how am I doing in these areas?
- 8) Draw a line that describes the ups and downs of your life. Or draw three lines, one for personal life, one for family life, and one for work life. Where do they intersect? Where do they diverge?
- 9) Which of the following transition options seems to fit my temperament and gifts best? (Evaluate each option on a scale of 1-10) a. Keep on doing what I already do well, but change the environment. b. Change the work, but stay in the same environment. c. Turn an avocation into a new career. d. Double-track (or even triple-track) in parallel careers (not hobbies). e. Keep on doing what I'm doing, even past retirement age.
- 10) What do I want for my children?

WHAT IS HOWARD TALKING ABOUT TODAY?

NBC4 Hosts Students in "Reality TV" Adventure

Eight Howard University School of Communications (HUSC) students will report to WRC/NBC4 today with bags in tow, all a bit anxious about the challenges their 13-week survival course holds for them. Their bags, however, will be book bags and this is no game show.

The students are enrolled in "Surviving Year One," a new course designed exclusively for the School of Communications by NBC4 Vice President of News and Operations Bob Long and HUSC Faculty Lecturer John Decker to foster the budding journalists' transition from the classroom to the fast-paced realities of TV news. Various NBC4 experts will teach one three-hour class weekly for the next 13 weeks, with topics ranging from "newsroom dynamics" to "auditions and agents." "Our students are extremely sharp," says Dean Jannette L. Dates. "This rare opportunity will make them even sharper."

Trustees Host Student Reception (01/17/02)

Howard University Undergraduate Trustee Breana Smith and Graduate Trustee Reginald McGahee invite all students to meet members of the University's Board of Trustees during a reception on Thursday, Jan. 17, at 7 p.m. in the Blackburn

Gallery Lounge. Inquiries may directed to Ms. Smith at 202-806-2250.

Theater Arts Plays "...Love Song for Mumia" (01/31/02)

Howard University's Department of Theatre Arts proudly presents Sybil J. Roberts' "A Liberating Prayer: A Love Song for Mumia" directed by Denise D. Saunders. The play, an unlikely love story, tells of the fateful meeting of a freedom fighter and a merchant who undertake a spiritual journey to find the wisdom and courage to fight to win the freedom of political prisoner Mumia Abu-Jamal. The production will be performed in the Environmental Theatre Space (ETS) from January 31 - February 2, 5 - 9 at 7:30 p.m. and February 2 and 9, at 2:30 p.m. For ticket information, call (202) 806-7700 or (202) 806-7050; or fax (202) 806-9193. ## FW: Silicon Valley Bank

Ken:

I called your office today and they informed me that the best way to get this matter to you was to send you an email. The negotiations between Silicon Valley Bank and eVelocity have pretty much come to a decision point. At bottom, Silicon Valley Bank will agree to renew the loan for six months in exchange for a $250k paydown and monthly interest payments for the next 6 months. The eVelocity folks tell me that this is slightly better (from a total cash outlay) than they had proposed, but it does require additional cash upfront. In addition to the funds that you indicated that you would be willing to provide, they have secured an additional $200k from other investors.

The eVelocity management tells me that the proposed plan gives them the liquidity they need.

I told them to proceed on that basis until I can get a response from you and that I would recommend the bank's terms to you.

May I have your agreement?

If you have any questions, you can reach me at 713-515-5686 throughout Friday and at 970-748-1643 throughout the weekend.

David:

Below is the latest from the Silicon Valley Bank, $250K up front and no principal payments to January 31, 2002. The deal we proposed to the SVB last week was $125K up front, $15K for September, October, November, December, $100K December 31, 2001, and $55K January 31, 2002. Total payments by eVelocity to January 31, 2002 were $340K, $90K less than the $250K up front.. Also they are not asking for warrants. We have for bridge financing, pending approval of SVB position, the following: $500K from K. Lay, $100K from Trillium, $50K from A. Bruce, and $50K from T. Nigrelli. I am hoping to get another $100K from Ruben Jeffery (runs Goldman Europe). Assuming we get only $700K for bridge, the Bank's proposed arrangement leaves us $450K to January 31, 2002 which will keep us cash positive.

Getting the $1 mil loan down to $750K appears to satisfy the Santa Clara, CA home office that this is a performing loan. We are anxious to move forward as the Company is close to profitability which will posture it for a long term fund raising.

Please let us know how Ken Lay feels about this.

Regards, Albert

I would like to note that Bryan, in error, has said that we would suspend interest payments. Interest would continue to be due monthly during the period between now and 1/31/02. Sorry for the confusion here. Mark

-----Original Message----- From: Bryan Jadot Sent: Thursday, August 30, 2001 5:57 PM To: Albert Sciaky (E-mail) Cc: Mark Pascualano; Jonathan Gray; Beth Gallagher Subject: Silicon Valley Bank Dear Albert, We have had an opportunity to read your proposal and supporting information and have considered your request for an extension of the line of credit. As mentioned during our several discussions, it is our inclination to

with eVelocity through these challenging times and ideally reach a mutually satisfactory solution to the issue at hand. However, our requirements as a lending institution would require that an immediate $250,000 paydown of the line of credit take place as the basis for a potential restructure. Assuming that such a payment is made and as a consideration to you, eVelocity and its shareholders, the Bank is willing consider the suspension of all principal and interests payments to January 31, 2002 along with an extension of the line of credit to this same date, at which point the remaining balance would be due and payable. In our opinion, this proposal allows eVelocity the time to complete the critical tasks outlined in your proposal and whose success could then serve as the basis for a longer term restructure and in turn would allow the Bank the benefits of a performing agreement. I would note that this proposal is the end product of several significant concessions on our part and hope that you will recognize its merits. Best regards, R. Ken: When things settle down and you can get away, Polly and I would love to host the Lays out here in the Sonoma Valley. The guest house is done on our Sonoma farm and we would love to see you. We realize that Aspen is always there for you, but if you want some sunshine and wine-tasting, please don't hesitate--and calling us at the last minute is just fine. Last weekend, we had a square dance for about 100 people in our large barn, with several former Texans who live here now in attendance, and the Texans pronounced the whole event as very authentic. We will be doing that again next Fall, when you will be invited, but don't wait that long. Contact numbers: cell phone w/voicemail 415.264.0054; office 415.477.0155; Sonoma Farm 707.996.0286; or email. Best regards, Gary Hultquist

Dear Kenneth, I was wondering if you could tell me if Enron is currently considering an IT department portfolio management solution, which is basically software that manages IT projects and the availability, as well as the skill sets, of your internal IT staff. If you would be interested, I can forward you information on our product, or arrange an onsite demonstration. Thank you.

Ken, Beau and I would like to share the family partnership and investment information with Bernstein to get their Family Wealth group up to speed. We think they can provide a perspective on diversification and they will do it at no cost and without an established relationship, unlike most of the investment banks. Painewebber needs your permission to release the information. Would you please send Rocky a letter authorizing Beau or me to release this information to third parties so we can move forward?

Thanks, Mark

Dear Ken,

Several weeks ago I sent you an email regarding the amount of money you owe me as a result of Enron's demise. Thus far you have not responded.

Based on today's closing stock price for Enron, the current amount you owe me and my family is now $1,171,968.00 which must be replaced in my 401K . This money you so callously destroyed was intended to pay for my children's education and provide a retirement fund for my wife and me. I worked for Enron for almost 19 years and I earned every bit of this retirement. Have you ever lived in Midland Texas where the dust blows so thick you cannot see or breathe? I experienced these conditions often when I lived there while I worked for Enron. Have you ever lived in Minnesota and cleared snow drifts 6 feet high when the wind chill was 100 degrees below zero so you could get your children to school? I did many times when I lived there and worked for Enron. I could give you more examples but I do not want to bore you.

If you have a shred of honesty or an ounce of decency left in your miserable skin, you will refund this money to me.

Sincerely,

Neal F. Shaw

Mr. Lay-

With all that is going on, a quick note to let you know that you still have an employee who is confident something good will prevail and not all may be lost. Though I have only been with the company for almost 2 years, I personally feel you are doing all you can to salvage what is possible. Your reputation precedes you and the many years you spent building this company up. I feel deep down that you wouldn't have done anything to jeopardize your name despite what the media and finance markets read. Responsibility is to be shared. Unfortunately, you have been left to do the clean up. I do believe in my heart of hearts that once Jeff Skilling and Andy Fastow were in the positions they were, greed took over. Unfortunately, they took advantage of your position and possibly lost sight of dealings going on with the presumption that these men were of the utmost, outstanding character.

Please view this email as simply a boost to your morale and not anything more than to simply advise you of what possibly many employees feel but have yet to convey.

Thanks -

"It is the spirit which can bear things, not simply with resignation, but with blazing hope; it is not the spirit which sits statically enduring in the one place, but the spirit which bears things because it knows that these things are leading to a goal of glory; it is not the patience which grimly waits for the end, but the patience which radiantly hopes for the dawn. It has been called "masculine constancy under trial." It has been said that always it has a background which is courage... It is the quality which keeps a man on his feet with his face to the wind. It is the virtue which can transmute the hardest trial into glory because beyond the pain it sees the goal." William Barclay

Bush Economic Team "Inept"

This is from a morning briefing that goes out to all of the Schwab clients:

So it's a near-certainty that more stimulus is coming from Washington. But the details change constantly, as trial balloons are floated and shot down day after day. Some quick highlights: ? In stark contrast to its foreign policy/defense team, the Bush economic brain trust looks inept, unable to coordinate its plans and apparently unwilling to provide much direction to Congress. ? Filling that vacuum are Republicans who want big tax cuts and Democrats who want to spend much more. ? This means the budget surplus in fiscal 2002 is in free fall. It's possible that the budget could go into deficit this year, but our guess is that it will be in the black by a little, probably under $50 billion. But these estimates aren't worth much right now - the big story is that the surplus is melting fast.

Senator Gramm,

I expect you have already considered these: 1. Rebate surpluses out of the Airline trust fund that is a collection of taxes on airline tickets. This in addition to stopping the taxes would provide needed liquidity to the airlines.

2. Accelerate depreciation, perhaps to two or three years, on all capital goods purchased before March 31, 2001. This would provide a very strong incentive for capital investment immediately.

3. Defer all corporate taxes due for the next six months and make them payable, with interest equal to AFR, over the next two years. This would effectively put the government in the position of lending to corporations at the federal government's borrowing rate. The net effect over two years is neutral, except for potential defaults, but the fiscal impact is significant.

Good Luck, we need more public officials of your ilk up there. Sorry that you won't be there much longer.

Regards, Mark

Dear Ken, I hope things are going a little better. I am convinced you are under a great deal of stress, but you are a great leader and will survive it. We just received some disturbing news from Enron. Photofete has served Enron for a year. Our contract was for one year, we met with Enron two months ago to discuss whether or not Photofete was meeting Enron's objectives. Marge Nadasky indicated that Enron was 100% happy. We talked about a new contract but Marge assured us that the time to process the contract under the new procedures was not worth it nor needed. Enron has given us notice that they no longer require the services of Photofete. We feel a little misled. We would have been happy to have renegotiated a new contract that met the financial and service needs of Enron, but were never given the chance. I have worked with Enron for over 7 years and I am shocked at this. I as well as anyone else who is running a business understand the crunch of our current economy. Everyone has to reduce costs. Marge indicated that she was happy with the service but had to make cuts which we understand. What we do not understand is why they starting replacing our service 2 months ago before we had the opportunity to re-negotiate another contract. We have already given one person notice and reduced our overhead, but we are truly disappointed. Please give me a call at 713-816-2412. Subject: Take it to them Last night, I opened up my Bible and found myself reading about King Hezekiah. The bullet points are these: 1. Hezekiah was the most Godly man, 5 He trusted in Jehovah, the God of Israel; so that after him was none like him among all the kings of Judah, nor among them that were before him. 2 Kings 18:5 (ASV) 2. The Assyrians surrounded his city with a great army. 3. He went to God with great faith and honored God. 4. God sent an angel 35 And it came to pass that night, that the angel of Jehovah went forth, and smote in the camp of the Assyrians a hundred fourscore and five thousand: and when men arose early in the morning, behold, these were all dead bodies. 2 Kings 19:35 (ASV) I don't know if he intervenes like this in corporate affairs, but if we seek His guidance, how can we lose. Take care of yourselves. Love, Mark P.S. If you think this would help Dad, please send it to him. Mark Lay 713-552-9518

Dear Mr. Lay,

I am one of many long time employees who has lost my life's savings and my kid's college fund.

Today I am receiving my 15 Years of Service Award and having my Anniversary luncheon. Would you like to attend? My Department would appreciate a candid picture of how this could have happened to such a great company. I have gone through tough times and many good times with Northern Natural Gas, InterNorth and Enron. I was always so proud to be a part of this company.

Should I have seen this coming? I was just another sheep following and believing everything our leaders, Skilling, said regarding the probability of Enron's stock splitting. I didn't play the market but looked at my 401K stock purchases as long term retirement and continued to put money into the 401K even when we (my family) were struggling to do so.

I too grew up on a farm in Missouri. I was raised under the same Midwest rooted values and the strict convictions of my father that you did not take charity or borrow money. He also preached that to sue was not the way to correct a wrong. I was always a little prideful that you too were a Midwesterner, with those rooted values of high integrity, compassion, and honesty.

Life goes on. I hope to continue my employment though all of this and will continue to be a great employee, only now for Dynegy. This is also a concern since I am in my late 40's. My job, my kid's education, and my retirement weigh heavily along with the atmosphere we are all currently living in.

This reality is a struggle with many unanswered questions and devastating concerns for the future.

I would appreciate your thoughts.

Respectfully yours,

Dear Mr. Lay:

In this trying time of second-guesses and angry shareholders, I wanted to let you know that I have appreciated working for you and share a quick story of how you shaped my view of Enron and the corporate world in general.

My second rotation as an associate was to write speeches for the Office of the Chairman. Generally, I was creating presentations for Jeff Skilling, but I did create a couple for you as well. The one I remember best was for the speech at Astro Hall for the Houston Energy Conference where we announced Enron Online. Not only did you let me lead the internal roundtable (I remember sitting at the table, trying to keep my composure as Greg Whalley, Dan Leff, Louise Kitchen and others asked specifics about the slides I created), but you also (generally) agreed with my answers and thanked me for a job well done. That night, I shared a bottle of champagne with my wife and truly believed I could do anything!!

So, as far as I am concerned, you have done a tremendous job. Everything happening now is unfortunate. It happened on your watch and thus is partly your responsibility. But you have stepped up to the plate, most likely saved more jobs than lost, and been accountable in more ways than one. Being a leader in good times and in bad, and more importantly affecting the lives of your employees on a personal basis, are truly attributes that I hope to continue in my lifetime.

I just wanted you to know that you have truly made a difference in one man's career. And I feel all the better for it.

My prayers go to you and your family.

Best regards,

Michael Harris

October 23, 2001 Osmar Abib Managing Director Kenneth Lay Chairman and Chief Executive Officer Enron Dear Kenneth: On behalf of Credit Suisse First Boston, I would like to invite you to join us for the PGA Tour Championship which will be held at Champions Golf Club in Houston from Thursday, November 1st through Sunday November 4th. The Tour Championship is an annual event which showcases the top 30 money winners and features one of the largest purses of the year on the PGA Tour. Champions Golf Club, which has also hosted the Ryder Cup, the PGA Championship, the United States Open and the United States Amateur, will once again host the Tour Championship, following up on the extremely successful 1999 and 1997 Tour Championships. The field this year should be very exciting, as it is likely to include Tiger Wood, David Duval, Phil Mickelson, Sergio Garcia and Davis Love III. We would like you and a guest to join us for the 3rd and 4th rounds of the Tour Championship on Saturday and Sunday. We will be hosting a private hospitality chalet adjacent to the 9th green, from which you will be able to watch the tournament or take a break from following your favorite players on the course. We sponsored the same chalet for the 1997 and 1999 Tour Championships, and it provided a wonderful setting to view the players up-close on the 9th hole, as well as provide a cool environment to enjoy some food and drinks. In order to assist us in our planning, we ask that you take a moment to respond via e-mail indicating your interest by Friday, October 26th. We will provide additional details upon your acceptance. We hope you will join us for this exciting event and we look forward to seeing you there. Sincerely, Dad, I know this has been more difficult than I can conceive, so I did what every good seminary student should and looked for something that might help a little. Solomon, when he was made king, asked only for wisdom and God gave it to him as well as many other blessings. The wisdom, as you well know, helped him to be a great ruler. There is no doubt God has already given you great wisdom and will continue to bless your life.

You are always in my prayers.

Love, Mark

5 In Gibeon Jehovah appeared to Solomon in a dream by night; and God said, Ask what I shall give thee. 6 And Solomon said, Thou hast showed unto thy servant David my father great lovingkindness, according as he walked before thee in truth, and in righteousness, and in uprightness of heart with thee; and thou hast kept for him this great lovingkindness, that thou hast given him a son to sit on his throne, as it is this day. 7 And now, O Jehovah my God, thou hast made thy servant king instead of David my father: and I am but a little child; I know not how to go out or come in. 8 And thy servant is in the midst of thy people which thou hast chosen, a great people, that cannot be numbered nor counted for multitude. 9 Give thy servant therefore an understanding heart to judge thy people, that I may discern between good and evil; for who is able to judge this thy great people? 1 Kings 3:5-9 (ASV)

29 And God gave Solomon wisdom and understanding exceeding much, and largeness of heart, even as the sand that is on the sea-shore. 30 And Solomon's wisdom excelled the wisdom of all the children of the east, and all the wisdom of Egypt. 1 Kings 4:29-30 (ASV)

Supply Corps Distinguished Alumni/Athens-Clarke County Power Plant

Dear Mr Lay-

May I re-introduce myself. Several years ago we met when you returned to the Navy Supply Corps School, Athens, Georgia to receive your Distinguished Alumni Award and recognition. My name is Bob Gregory and I am a retired Navy Supply Corps Captain, living in Athens. I am now the Vice President of the Navy Supply Corps Foundation and also direct the Distinguished Alumni Program. I do management consulting here in Athens.

I have read Enron Corp. is considering building a gas powered power plant here in Athens-Clarke County. From my understanding, the plant is to be built in an industrially zoned park. I believe the plant would be a natural for the area. The project appears to be moving though the county's planning bueracracy, however I note some of the votes have been close. As you can see in the attached article, the environmental folks are starting to raise their heads in protest.

I personally believe the plant is a great project and favor it enthusiastically. To me, it is a "no brainer". I do believe, however, Enron could make a public relations "coup de tat". The idea of a member of the Navy Supply Corps School's Distinguished Alumni deciding to build a major new plant here in Athens, Georgia, could bring a lot of good press for both the plant and Enron, Inc in particular.

I would be pleased to assist the Enron effort and help disseminate your Supply Corps connection here in Athens. I have discussed your Distinguished Alumni affiliation with Mayor Doc Eldridge. He is in full support of the power plant. He is a great supporter or the Navy Supply Corps School and your Supply Corps Distinguished Alumni-Athens-Clarke County connection Obliviously, I will not do anything further without acknowledgement and authorization from your office. I do believe we can quell the "natives" and dramatically reduce the environmentalist's influence against the project. Please advise. GO NAVY!!

FOR RELEASE: November 9, 2000

What Happens When a Presidential Election Is Too Close to Call? AEI's Definitive Guide to the Electoral College Explains It All

The ballots are cast and we still don't know who our next president will be. What happens next? The answer to this question and more is in the definitive guide to the electoral college published by the American Enterprise Institute. After the People Vote: A Guide to the Electoral College edited by Walter Berns (115 pages, $7.95) explains the critical workings of the electoral college, the process of presidential succession, and the interactions of the Constitution with federal and state statutes and party and parliamentary rules.

In addition to the distinguished scholar Walter Berns, contributors to this edition include Norman Ornstein (essays on disputed elections), Martin Diamond (on the electoral college), Robert Goldwin, Michael Malbin, Thomas Mann, Howard Penniman, Austin Ranney, and Richard M. Scammon.

To arrange an interview with Walter Berns, Norman Ornstein, or Robert Goldwin, please contact Veronique Rodman, AEI Director of Public Affairs, at 202.862.4871.

"The authors have produced the definitive electoral college." Frank J. Fahrenkopf, Jr., Former chairman, Republican National Committee

"The United States has the world's most successful system for selecting a chief executive. But Americans are remarkably, and dangerously, unaware of how the electoral college came to be what it is. Hence we have long needed an explanation of the college--its origins and evolution--as subtle and intelligent as the college itself. That need has now been met by the book which combines equal mastery of constitutional law and political philosophy." George F. Will, Columnist

"The best single source for information on the intricacies of choosing an American President." ROLL CALL

Ken,

My name is Neal Shaw and I worked for Northern Natural Gas Company in Midland, Minneapolis and Omaha in the Marketing Department of Enron's Gas Pipeline Group for almost 19 years. I left the company is December 2000. I have a major portion of my investment portfolio in Enron shares.

I just read an interesting article titled Sizing up CEO aplomb under duress a major concern. by Jamie Lareau. This article focused on how to recognize CEO's and CEO candidates who were not up to the requirements of their job and used Jeff Skilling as an example. I have agreed with views of this journalist for some time, especially since Jeff called a fund manager an "asshole". Publically calling someone is simply Not something any CEO should do and you and Enron's board should have done something about Jeff then.

My point is as follows: Where were you and the Enron Board during all this? Why have you let people like Jeff Skilling and Stan Horton virtually destroy all growth prospects for the pipelines and totally concentrate on trying to make money without an asset base? A lot of people believed Jeff's hype and many people have suffered! Has Jeff suffered?. I think not especially since he has left Enron with millions of our dollars in his pocket. Hopefully he will be able to afford the time off to "find himself".

Did you see the movie "Top Gun"? Toward the end of the movie, Tom Cruise, otherwise know as Maverick, blamed himself for the loss of his friend and simply disengaged from combat flying. However, when things got really rough, Maverick re-engaged the enemy and did what he was hired to do.

Do you know where this is going?

You are once again Enron's "Top Gun"! The enemy is Enron's depressed stock price. It is time for you to re-engage and live up to your title of "Top Gun" and CEO! I and the rest of Enron's stock holders need you to repair the damage Jeff did and STOP the damage people like Stan Horton are currently doing and get Enron back in the mix.

I sincerely hope you are still capable of doing a good job. If you are not, refund your salary since Jeff took over and step down.

Sincerely,

Neal Shaw U.S. Energy Services, Inc. Phone: (402) 861-9520 Cell: (402) 578-8897 Fax: (402) 861-0461

Dear Ms. Smith and Mr. Calme,

I am sorry you could not reach me for comment on today's article. I did not receive any messages from you on my home phone, cell phone, office phone or via email or fax, so I am not certain how you actually tried to reach me. Nonetheless, since you seem to have run out of stories to report and have decided to focus on transactions for 1997, I thought it would be helpful to address some of the facts that you did not present in your story.

Three other partners, David Cox, Edward Ondarza and Sean Shaub, started Paper & Print Management to develop a derivatives market for pulp and paper products. Mr. Cox and Mr. Ondarza were also brought into Enron when Enron purchased the rights to the company and gave me the contract you described. Mr. Cox received the same compensation terms as I did and Mr. Ondarza received slightly lower compensation. Both Mr. Cox and Mr. Ondarza are still with Enron. You may be familiar with Mr. Cox as he was featured in an article that Fortune ran on Enron a couple of years ago.

The $1 million payment was used to purchase rights to the business from the Southern Company, who had funded our startup costs. With the acquisition, and to this date, Enron is the leading market maker in pulp and paper derivatives. I believe they have transacted over $15 billion notional since they acquired our company. I do not have access to the specific P/L because I am no longer with Enron, but the pulp and paper trading organization at Enron generated enough profit to fully repay the cost of purchase, including the contracts provided to myself, Mr. Cox and Mr. Ondarza, inside of two years.

If I can answer any additional questions, please feel free to contact me. Email is best.

Take care, Mark

Dear Ken,

I am writing to you today RE: The proposed sale of Enron's India assets (non-core)-

FYI: I am currently an Associate/Manager in the Research Group at Enron. I have degrees in Mech. Engg & Finance, and will be graduating from Rice with my MBA in March of 2002. I have been following developments in the Dabhol matter since the summer of 2001, when I was asked to help put together a briefing/presentation for Ben Glisan, former Treasurer, Enron Corp.

I recently read with great interest the proposed Enron re-organization plan. I strongly believe given the opportunity, I can help achieve a successful resolution of the company's various issues in India. In my humble opinion, our current India project negotiation team is unlikely to get the best price for Enron's shareholders.

My background includes:

- 1) The Solicitor General of India is my brother's Father-in-Law.
- 2) Father currently holds the rank of Secretary, Govt. of India in New Delhi. He is a close friend/advisor to both Mr. Vajpayee(P.M.)and Mr. Advani (Home Minister) Mother was on the faculty of Univ. of Michigan,& best friend of Mrs. Indira Gandhi, P.M. of India.- she is currently Professor Emeritus (Intl. Law) Univ. of Delhi, UN expert & Member, Foreign Relations Committee.
- 3) My parents both earned Ph.Ds from the Univ. of Michigan,and have lived & worked in the U.S. for several years-
- 4) I have substantial, successful experience in Asia.- India & I am extremely familiar with the laws/regulations in India.
- 5) Born & raised in the U.S., I am a U.S. citizen. But I am fluent in Hindi and other local Indian dialects.
- 6) My previous assignments have included a successful stint as Country Manager in India(New Delhi) for Hyundai Corp. I successfully led a multi-national/cross-functional project team in addition to my executive responsibilities during this assignment.
- 7) Over 12 years of operating management experience with United Parcel Service. I have extensive experience in logistics and other transportation issues.

Given the current financial situation of the company and your efforts to marshall all the company's resources efficiently, I will stand-by to hear back from you.

Hope you and your family have a very Happy Holiday Season!

President Swygert asked I forward to you the information below regarding the acquisition of property by the University.

The University has a time-sensitive opportunity to acquire five parcels currently owned by a local Community Development Corporation (CDC). Four of the five properties are on Georgia Avenue Corridor encompassed by our LeDroit Park Initiative. Three of the parcels are of strategic importance as they are across the street from the Howard University/Shaw Metro station and comprise the southern gateway to the University. It is the University's intention to convert the largest of the properties (a new facility built as a nursing home) into a residence hall. It should be noted that the regulatory process to change the use can take a year to complete. The matter is time-sensitive because the CDC is on the verge of defaulting on two of their loans and the drop-dead date from the lender for their largest parcel is COB tomorrow. Chairman Savage asked that the Executive Committee be convened by teleconference Thursday, November 15, 2001, at 10:30 a.m. to discuss the resolution described below. Call-in information is provided to facilitate your participation if you have availability. The dial-in number for the call is 1-800-272-4152. The Host code number is 922892 and the Participant code number is 653172. Of course, should you have difficulty accessing the call, do not hesitate to call the office at (202) 806-2250.

Considering the shortness of notice for this meeting, if you are not available for the teleconference, you may indicate your approval or disapproval as appropriate below and return via electronic mail or facsimile to (202) 332-2961.

RESOLVED THAT, the President and the Officers of the University are hereby authorized to execute an Agreement of Purchase and Sale for the acquisition of certain parcels of property located in the District of Columbia, more particularly described as 1800 7th Street N.W.; 1850 7th Street, N.W. 2035 2nd Street N.W.; 1900 7th Street, N.W.; and 2908-2918 Georgia Avenue, N.W., Provided That, as part of the acquisition process the University shall conduct a thorough "due diligence" review of the parcels and shall not conclude any sale for the purchase of the parcels until the results of such due diligence are presented to the Committee and the Committee approves of all elements of the proposed transaction, including but not limited to, the sales price and the terms and conditions of available financing; and Provided Further, that the President in his discretion may incur such costs as he deems appropriate and fair to preserve the right of the University to purchase such parcels pending the Committee's consideration of the due diligence review.

A Harvard conference

Ken, we met a while back--'94 or so--when I was editor of Fortune. It's in my current incarnation, though, as Editorial Director for the Harvard Business School Publishing Co. and head of its publishing division--we publish the Harvard Business Review, HBS Press books (including Leading the Revolution from your friend and skiing companion Gary Hamel), and the best selling management newsletter in the country, among other things--that I wanted to put a proposition before you to see if we might interest you in what I think may be an important idea-development and publishing opportunity. HBSPC has become quite interested in the subject of corporate venturing, of how companies can invest in innovation and new organizational forms (but you know all about that) in a transformative way, so much so that we're planning to put on a couple of conferences on the subject next year. (The purpose of our conferences, in general, is to push ideas ahead and advance the thinking on a particular topic.) They will be smallish, half-day affairs--we're looking at an audience of perhaps 75 senior executives at each--one in New York in January, the second in San Francisco, probably the first week in February. As with the authors of the books and HBR articles that we publish, we're committed to having only top-flight experts on the program, mostly on panels. (For instance, we're talking with the Harvard Business School professors who teach the executive education course on corporate venturing about their serving on and putting together one of the panels.) And we, of course, thought of you and Enron--who knows more about the subject? As we've designed the conferences, we've concluded that a great way to begin the program would be to have a sort of a keynote from a CEO grounded in the real-world experience of making this happen. But we don't want to impose on your time, or that of your staff, to put together a speech. Our thought was to have the session be more like "A conversation with...", wherein an interlocutor (probably me, but maybe assisted by a couple of others) would put questions to you, and draw you out on the points you thought important. We could confer on the questions beforehand as much or little as you'd like. Ken Chenault of American Express has agreed to play this role at the New York conference. We'd wondered if there were any possibility of interesting you in it for the San Francisco conference? Enron has the best record of any company on this front, and my secret hope is that the conversation might serve as the basis of an article (or even the first step toward a book?) that HBSP might eventually publish. We know, too, that you have endless demands on your time, and if it would help you to think more favorably of using it in this way, we'd be happy to provide an honorarium for the charity or charities of your choice. I'm sure you're besieged with emails on your return from vacation, but if you have a moment to marinate on this, we'd welcome the chance to answer any questions you might have about the event. I have two offices and two phone numbers (New York, Monday, Tuesday, and most Fridays, at 212-872-9281, Boston the rest of the week at 617-783-7535) but the most efficient way for your office to schedule a conversation might be to have them be in touch with Maria Carnevale here in New York at 212-872-9285) or just shoot me back an email. Thanks for taking the time for this overlong email. Our eyes are beginning to open here to the landscape shaking, transformative possibilities of corporate venturing, as became clear to you long ago. We'd be grateful for the opportunity to help you share some of your wisdom with others. All the best, Walter Kiechel

Jeff, I wish you would have cleared this through me first due to the implications in India. Keep me in the loop on all further announcements. JOe

Jeffrey Sherrick@ENRON 10/13/2000 03:26 PM To: Kenneth Lay/Corp/Enron@ENRON, Jeff Skilling/Corp/Enron@ENRON, Joseph W Sutton/ENRON_DEVELOPMENT@ENRON_DEVELOPMENT, Cliff Baxter/HOU/ECT@ECT cc: Subject: EGEP Sale Announcement

Ken, Jeff , Joe & Cliff,

This is a copy a note I sent to PR(Steve Kean & John Ambler), IR(Mark Koenig) and Enron India(Sanjay Bhatnagar & Jimmy Mogal) regarding our internal announcement to EGEP/EOGIL employees in Houston and India on October 13, 2000.

On Friday (last night Houston time) we announced to employees Enron's decision to sell Enron Oil & Gas India Ltd. (EOGIL), our subsidiary that owns a 30% interest in the Panna, Mukta and Tapti concession areas. We now have bankers involved and a data room is being prepared in Houston which made it extremely difficult to keep the deal quiet any longer. There were numerous rumors circulating through the office, but the reality of the announcement was still a shock to most of the employees in India and Houston. Basically we said the following: 1) Selling assets or companies is a routine part of Enron's strategy to redeploy capital in the higher return opportunities. The company has exposure to a number of tremendous opportunities today that were not envisioned even twelve months ago. In line with this strategy, we are placing EOGIL in the market. 2) Depending on the success of finding an acceptable buyer for EOGIL, we will be reviewing the balance of our portfolio for transfer to other Enron entities or for sale as separate packages. We anticipate closing the EOGIL transaction and rationalizing the remaining portfolio by March 31, 2001. 3) Pending the success outlined in item #2, we will eliminate Enron Global E&P as an Enron business unit on March 31, 2001. 4) We announced some interim staff changes to facilitate the process. a) Jeff Sherrick would re-focus his time largely on the sale process b) Mike Stewart will be responsible for all India activity except the sale process c) Steve Harper will be responsible for EGEP's sale activity and coordination with our bankers and Corporate Development 5) Commented on the potential impact to employees in general terms. We told them it was pre-mature to outline all of the possibilities until we signed a PSA with a buyer. However, in general, there is a good likelihood that many people will either have opportunities for future employment with the buyers or through redeployment within Enron. Those people that do not remain with the assets or are not redeployed in Enron will be involuntarily terminated March 31, 2001 unless they are needed to close a transaction or to provide transition services to a buyer.

I would like to keep this as low-keyed as possible. Last year when we were for sale there were not a lot of comments, but you never know. If anyone in the media picks up on this I would expect it to happen early next week. Mike Stewart is currently in India in the Mumbai office (01191228395841) and can be reached at the Marriott after-hours(01191228577878). He is fully briefed on our position regarding the activities within EGEP and EOGIL. Mike will be traveling offshore and to Baroda over the weekend and on Monday. I will be available all weekend and next week at the following numbers; (work) 713-853-5934, (home) 281-320-2198, (cell) 713-569-4713. I would suggest talking with Mike or I before making any comments to the media if possible.

This afternoon I notified our partners and the Gov't of India of our intention to market our assets. I will be making a trip to India soon to visit with the appropriate people in these organizations within the next two weeks. While I wouldn't expect this to happen, please refer any inquiries from our partners (ONGC and Reliance) or the GOI to Mike or me. As you might expect, we want to be careful and consistent in our message to these groups.

I will keep you informed regarding any changes to the above. If you have any questions, contact me at the above numbers.

Mr. Lay, ? Your assistant contacted me a couple weeks back with the message that the attached was not an opportunity you could consider at this time.? Thanks very much, though, for taking a look at it. ? I have one follow-up question for you -- could you recommend another Enron executive that might be a candidate for such an opportunity?? ? To help you answer the question, the company is Juno Online?Services, Inc.?(NASDAQ: JWEB), a leading US ISP.? Juno is very interested in working with (and in advanced-stage discussions with) companies in the energy industry and working with them on strategic telecommunications and marketing partnerships. ? Information about Juno is available at "About Juno" on Juno's Web site <http://www.juno.com>.? I've also attached an executive summary to update you (or the relevant person at Enron) as to the current status of Juno's business. ? Thanks very much for your assistance, and I hope that this message finds you well. ? Best, ? Toby ? Executive Overview of?Juno --

The company finished 4Q00 w/ $56MM in cash.? Total net loss for 2001 was projected to be $10-$25MM, as the company focuses on billable services, continues to reduce expenses, and looks to develop advertising and other ancillary revenue streams.? The company is confident that it can meet or?beat the loss target and made explicit statements that on-hand cash resources are "more than adequate" to get the business profitable.? The company has not publicly given a time-line for profitability to maintain flexibility. The company controls one of the largest dialup subscriber audiences (4MM active subscribers as of 4Q00, 850K of whom are billable) on the Internet today and is the 4th largest US ISP (after AOL, ELNK, and MSN). 2000 revenue came in at $114MM, 65% of which was derived from subscription fees and 35% from advertising.? 2001 revenues are expected to come in between $100MM-$120MM, with the revenue mix moving toward 80% subscription and 20% advertising due to increased focus on billable services and the soft Internet advertising markets. Juno has announced broadband agreements for its Juno Express product covering all mainstream broadband transport platforms -- AT&T Broadband, Time Warner Cable, and Comcast (cable); Covad (DSL); Hughes (satellite); and Metricom (wireless). The company has announced wireless distribution agreements for it's Juno Mobile product with Palm and Sprint PCS.? Other agreements are likely to be forthcoming. The company has powerful proprietary technology assets that give it a competitive advantage.? The company has launched (internally but not publicly) a new business unit -- Juno Solutions -- to investigate the opportunity to license these technology assets to third parties both domestically and internationally.? The Juno Virtual Supercomputer Project represents another example of Juno's efforts to develop ancillary revenue streams.? This distributed computing initiative aims to leverage unused computer processing power from Juno's MMs of subscribers, aggregating it for sale to biotech, pharmaceutical, and computational chemistry firms.? <http://www.juno.com/corp/news/supercomputer.html>
