Your help in announcing this unique new product would be greatly appreciated. John

"PGS Energy Training Announces Breakthrough New Training Product for Energy Derivatives and Electricity Trading."

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

John Adamiak PGS Energy Training 412-279-9298 www.seminars-on-demand.com john@pgsenergy.com

Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania - October 10, 2001 - PGS Energy Training announced today the official release of its innovative new training product Seminars-on-Demand (version 2.1) for the energy and electric power industries.

Seminars-on-Demand is a completely new way to train employees in the critical subject areas of energy derivatives, electricity trading, and proper deal structuring techniques. It eliminates the time and distance constraints that frequently preclude live classroom training and enables employees to increase their value in a cost-effective and time-efficient manner. <http://www.seminars-on-demand.com/whatis.html>

"In today's marketplace, a well-trained staff is a firm's most powerful strategic weapon. This new product finally allows a company to deliver training across the entire organization in a cost-effective and timely manner", said PGS Energy Training CEO John Adamiak.

Seminars-on-Demand works by combining an innovative CD-ROM seminar presentation with a matching instructional manual and phone-based instructor/student interaction. Two-week, annual and unlimited corporate enterprise licenses are available.

Free Preview CDs are available by calling 412-279-9298, visiting www.seminars-on-demand.com, or by visiting the PGS Energy Training booth at PowerMart in Houston next week.

Established in 1990, PGS Energy Training delivers in-depth training programs in energy derivatives, electricity trading and gas-to-electricity arbitrage. In addition to its new Seminars-on-Demand CD-ROM based training, PGS Energy Training offers on-site classroom programs, open registration public seminars and confidential training for senior executives.

Scouting Report Special Edition---Where technology hits home.

Every year, the worlds most innovative electronics companies meet in Las Vegas to unveil their newest creations. The Consumer Electronics Show features thousands of new products and is attended by every major retailer in the world. Unfortunately, most of these retailers are limited by a lack of shelf space and convoluted distribution systems. By the time the newest technology makes it to their stores, it is not so new. That is not the case at TechnoScout.com, where you can find the latest, greatest, neatest and coolest products, often before they are available in stores. Here is one of our favorite products from this years show.

Your radio just got 5,000 new stations

The iRhythm Wireless Remote Tuner makes it easy to listen to the best programs in the world in high fidelity without hard-wired connections.

If you believe you have been missing something great from your PC and Internet connection, you may be right. It is radio from stations throughout North America and around the world in high fidelity. If you know about Net radio, you realize that hundreds of radio stations from everywhere in the world are broadcast over the Internet. The trouble is, you have to surf the Web to find them (that can take hours). Then you have to listen to them in front of your PC over small speakers. The iRhythm Wireless Internet Remote Tuner from Sonicbox solves both of these problems effortlessly. The system gives you the software and components to turn your stereo into a high fidelity receiver of Best of Planet TM Internet radio stations. Even more, you do not need a high-speed Internet connection, and there is no wiring necessary between your PC and stereo. Once you set up the iRhythm Remote Tuner you can dial up any station on the Internet without touching your computer as long as it is turned on. A handheld RF remote control lets you switch stations from anywhere in your house up to 100 feet away from your computer (through walls and floors), using the same kind of 900 MHz frequency used on cordless telephones.

Listen to the music with iRhythm <<http://offer.technoscout.com/cgi-bin10/flo?y=3DhLkf0CL8Se0Fs80OU50AD>>!

ATTENTION ALL PLANT OPERATORS , SHIPPERS AND NOMINATING AGENTS:

IMBALANCE PAYBACK GAS AND/OR OVER-DELIVERY RESTRICTION UPDATE

Due to continuing warm weather and operational issues, PSCo's restriction on imbalance payback gas and/or over-deliveries into the system will remain in affect until further notice. In order to avoid the need for upcoming weekday and/or weekend OBP's, it is critical that Shippers, Nominating Agents and Plant Operators do not schedule imbalance payback gas or deliver more than confirmed nominations during this period.

Plant Operators should restrict deliveries to confirmed nominations ONLY during this restricted period. If over-deliveries become a problem, PSCo will activate flow control valves on any plants involved.

Shippers/Nominating Agents should not nominate any imbalance payback gas to PSCo for the duration of the restriction. Any imbalance gas remaining on the system for this period will be cut to -0- by PSCo. Thank you in advance for your cooperation.

Sincerely,

As some of you might already know, I resigned today. I feel fortunate and blessed to have had this experience here at Enron. Not only have I learned a tremendous amount, but I also have met some very talented and unique people. I am not 100% sure what I will do at this point, but I will probably be heading up to NYC in January. I feel sad to end this chapter, yet excited as I begin a new one in my life.

As always, it has been a pleasure working with you! Keep in touch. I will be interested to see what happens.

E Source - Teleconferences on Retail Markets and Industry

E Source teleconferences on retail markets and industry restructuring Join us for two informative teleconferences designed to help you respond to highly volatile retail energy markets and shifting corporate imperatives. Please forward this e-mail to colleagues in other departments who might be interested in participating. Sign up by replying to this e-mail with the appropriate information completed below.

"Creating a Vibrant Retail Electricity Market" Tuesday, October 30, 2001, at 10 am (MST), 12 noon (EST) What key findings have marketing practitioners and restructuring architects gleaned from retail energy markets that have opened to date? If currently closed markets are to open successfully, what critical elements must be in place? Which stumbling blocks need to be removed? E Source has convened a panel of experienced players to distill what can be learned from recently opened markets and offer advice for incorporating these lessons into your strategic and marketing planning. The panel will include: <<http://public.resdata.com/htmlmail/telecon%20bullet.gif>>

Karen O'Neill, Vice President of New Markets, Green Mountain Energy

<<http://public.resdata.com/htmlmail/telecon%20bullet.gif>>

John Hanger, CEO of Penn Future and former Commissioner with the Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission

<<http://public.resdata.com/htmlmail/telecon%20bullet.gif>>

Joe Douglas, Marketing Manager with npower direct, one of the largest retail energy suppliers in the United Kingdom

"Is it Possible to Restructure Retail Electric Markets?" Tuesday, November 6, 2001, at 10 am (MST), 12 Noon (EST) The catastrophic failure of California's restructuring efforts, coupled with extremely low switching rates in overseas and various U.S. state markets, raises anew the debate over whether it is even possible to restructure retail electric markets. Is there something fundamentally different about electric markets that render them impossible to open? Over the past quarter-century, numerous once-regulated industries, such as financial services, airlines, and telecommunications, have been successfully restructured. Why is electricity an outlier? Will it change? Two distinguished industry analysts, Ken Malloy, CEO of the Center for the Advancement of Energy Markets and publisher of the RED Index, and Dr. Mark Cooper, Director of Research for Consumer Federation of America, will debate two interrelated propositions: 1. All retail customers should be required to choose a new energy supplier. 2. Non-commodity products--such as demand-side management, distributed generation, green power, and combined heat and power--will penetrate faster and more deeply in open retail markets than they would under the continuation of traditional regulation.

To Register Registration fee is $50 for each dial-in connection for companies that are not members of E Source. To register, contact our customer response team at 800-424-2908 or 720-548-5700.
