Kim,

Thanks.

Also, I need a favor. I need your top 3 or 4 articles on investing post age 60. My dad has a broker who has been moving his money in and out of stocks, and I need to show him something in black and white that says that is not the thing to do. This strategy has not worked well for anyone except the broker, of course.

Thanks in advance for your help.

All:

My time at Enron is quickly coming to an end as this is my last week. I have enjoyed working with each of you and getting to know you over the years!

I hope to keep in contact with many of you as I transition to a new phase in life...parenthood (advice welcomed)! For those of you who did not know, we are expecting our baby to arrive on October 17th. I plan to have a couple of months to prepare for this new adventure. Although I am sure that Baby Monk will take after his/her mother and love to travel, we decided that the commute from Dallas to Houston might be too much for him/her in the early years. It is with regret that I leave this great company. My current plan is to enjoy some time off and to begin looking for a position based in Dallas in the first quarter of 2002 (suggestions and referrals appreciated).

Please send me your contact information so we can stay in touch and keep me informed on all of the scoop! My contact information is as follows:

Subject: [TxWAG2001] Rescue Dogs

Hi all, I currently have two rescue's I'm looking for homes for.

The most urgent situation is a dog in Dallas, Riley. He is 4.5 years. Must be the only pet, and go to a home without children. The ideal situation would be an older, settled couple, or person. Riley was abused and is a terrified dog. He needs to have a home with a yard, because as of now, he can't go for a walk. He shuts down if he sees another dog, a person, a car... anything unfamiliar. I'm sure the right person could build his confidence back, but for now, he needs a very secure environment. I need to find Riley a home by this Sunday! And, he can't be shipped. I do have a picture of him.

My other rescue is Jessie. I still haven't found a home for her. But, she is not so urgent. Jessie also needs to be the only pet, she terrorized the other two dogs she used to live with. It's possible she was abused, she doesn't trust anyone, and will growl at you. She needs to go to a home without children, I can't take a chance with her actually being pushed to the point of biting. She is getting along fine with Jazz and Shasta, but I keep thinking she is going to start feeling comfortable one of these days, and our smooth times will be over! Jessie will need someone with lot's of patience, and who has time to work with her. She needs rules, and someone to enforce them. She is a pretty dominant little gal.

If anyone has any suggestions, call me: 832-358-9842, or email me: ccamp@pdq.net

Thanks, Cindy

Hello Dr. Jacobs -

Mike asked me to follow up with you to pass along his schedule for his visit to OU in April. Due to Mike's heavy schedule, he said that he plans to be there on Thursday for the lecture and he will be happy to join the group at The Mont following the lecture, but unfortunately he will need to return to Houston on Friday morning. He asked me to pass along his regrets for being unable to attend the banquet on Friday evening and the Board meeting on Saturday.

I have contacted the Montford Inn to reserve a cottage for Mike, but they said they are booked. They also said that they are holding 6 rooms for the OU Special Events group for April 19th. If one of the six rooms is not being held for Mike, can you please suggest another hotel or inn.

Please do not hesitate to contact me if you have any questions. Thank you.

Cathy'/Mike.

Thanks for the prompt response and the quotes. I will certainly use one of them and will use the picture we currently have of Mike on file in the Penney's Leadership Program.

Mike, I think there might be several of the Board of Advisor members attending your class on April 19th. Was wondering if you might consider joining some of them for a beer at The Mont afterwards, since it appears you will not be able to attend the Board of Advisors meeting on Saturday, April 21st. I know they would like to have the opportunity to meet and visit with you.

Again, thanks for the promptness in getting back to me.

Mike asked me to send you this message with the quotes that follow below. Mike wanted me to pass along that he graduated from OU with a BBA in 1982. His major was Petroleum Land Management with an emphasis on Law. I have attached the most recent copy of his bio for any additional information you may need.

(See attached file: MSM BIO CEO EGM.doc)

Quotes:

"The Energy Management Program is the reason Enron began recruiting at OU. The Program's course study reflects the changing energy business and gets students prepared for tomorrow."

"The changes that have occurred in the creation of the Energy Management Program is the primary reason Enron is recruiting at OU."

"The innovative Energy Management Program reflects the changes that are occurring throughout the energy industry."

I hope this will help. Please let me know if you have any questions.

Thanks.

Wow - the October calendar is already filling up. Please mark October 26 as the date of the fourth annual Seeds of Faith Halloween party. Written invitations to follow with more details. You have more than 30 days to come up with a costume.

For planning purposes, the 26th is Kids Night Out. If parents want, we can also have a babysitter at the house and put the kids upstairs.

Thanks.

I've taken the liberty to attach below the name of an individual who has a distinguished business career and since leaving Pittston as an executive VP in 1998, has started his on fund as well as developing other business ventures. He is very well connected and highly regarded in the Wall Street financial community.

I don't know where it may lead but I am of the opinion it would be of benefit for you both to at least have a discussion and explore opportunities.

I look forward to your next visit to BMR and also hearing the outcome of your discussion with Gary.

You should specify the transfer agreements (and accompanying documentation) from Arco to Questar and the documents which specify how Questar holds the asset (is there an SPV set up to own it?). Additionally we should have the company or partnership agreements for the holding vehicle. In terms of financial instruments, they should be related to the asset, its purchase and operation (if any) and the holding vehicle (if any) - in other words, how they paid for this puppy and whether we are inheriting those as ongoing obligations.

Call me on 57219 if you'd like to discuss further.

Mike,

Pete Weidler, a friend of mine, recommended that I contact you feeling that I may be able to help your group. Like you my background is not in e-commerce. I was most recently President of an oil company operating in Colombia. I am a manager in the classic sense, experienced in planning, project valuation, economic analysis, contract negotiations and acquisitions and divestitures. I am fluent in Spanish having grown up and worked in Latin America my whole life. I bring a keen awareness of the Latin culture and, what's more, a strong desire to continue working there. Do do this I'm considering a career change and can imagine no better company than Enron to make that change smoothly.

Pete and I both feel that Enron should have a good situation for a person with my qualifications; unfortunately Pete's group is actually downsizing and in no position to hire.

I appreciate your time. Best Regards.

HABITAT NEWS

St. Paul's United Methodist Church Habitat for Humanity Project

The site for the construction of the Habitat house has changed! Because of additional delays in pouring the concrete walls, our family, the Franco's, will take over another site where the walls have already been poured.

The new address is 10223 Tangiers. This is about eight blocks from the old location but is somewhat simpler to get to. Directions: From Highway 290, take the 43rd Street exit and go west. 43rd Street turns into Clay Road. Continue on Clay to Gessner. Right on Gessner approximately ? mile to Tangiers, which is the third street on the left. Left on Tangiers to 10223 on the left.

Alternate route: Take Interstate 10 to the Gessner exit and head north. Tangiers is approximately ? mile past Clay Road and is the third street on the left. Left on Tangiers to 10223 on the left.

There is another Habitat home under construction on the site next to ours so the area will be crowded. Parking will be tighter than the previous site, so car pool or take the van from the church if you can. The site will need straightening before we can start constructing the interior walls. Make sure you have heavy duty gloves. We will also be staining the concrete walls. The home next door has already been stained and it really looks like a brick home!

There are plenty of fast food places on Gessner within 5-10 minutes of the site for those who want to get away for lunch. We will have coffee and donuts waiting for everyone Saturday morning.

The tee shirts are in and look great. They will be at the site Saturday.

I have attached a schedule for all five weeks of the Project. Please let me know if additional changes are needed by return email or 713-748-3317.

See you Saturday!

Subject: A&M Recognition in the Senate Howdy! The 125th Corps Anniversary meant so much to the Corps ~ It meant something to Senator Hutchison as well! October 3, 2001 (4:27PM) Senator Kay Bailey Hutchison Floor Speech/Congressional Record TEXAS A&M/CORPS OF CADETS 125TH ANNIVERSARY Mr. President, I rise today to recognize with pleasure Texas A&M University on its 125th Anniversary. Texas A&M was the states first public institution of higher education, opening on October 4, 1876, as the Agriculture and Mechanical College of Texas. From its roots of

and engineering, A&M has grown into a world class university that is a leader in university research and development, as well as offering degrees

in numerous fields of study. Although the university is justifiably proud of its academic reputation, A&M is especially proud of its famous

Corps of

Cadets. For 125 years, A&Ms Corps of Cadets have provided our state and country with leaders in the military, government and business. Texas A&M has the largest cadet corps outside the military academies and commissions

officers in all four branches of service than any other university military program in the U.S. Former cadets have served in every military conflict

from the Indian Wars to Desert Storm. During World War II, 54,000

served as officers, which is more than any other school, including the service academies. They have always answered our nations call, and they have always met the challenge. Although only a small percentage of

Texas

A&Ms student population, they are the keepers of the many famous traditions at A&M, including Aggie Muster, silver taps, twelfth man

and

numerous others. Today, they serve in leadership and front-line forces throughout

our military services and help lead our nation to success in this 21st century war. Although the military has seen technology move from horse and rifle to spacecraft and lasers, the foundations of our military leadership and teamwork remain the same. These traits are the bedrock of the Corps

and explain the success of the Corps and its graduates. As America

undertakes

a war on terrorism, we are all learning the value and strength of A&Ms

Corps of Cadets motto, Per Unitatem Vis Through Unity, Strength. On behalf of my colleagues in the United States Senate, and with just

and

lasting pride, I offer heartfelt appreciation and respect to all the current and former members of the illustrious Texas A&M University of Cadets. I also wish all Aggies a Happy 125th Anniversary. WHOOP! Remember: The Corps Experience... It Lasts a Lifetime!

Mark,

I hope you have enjoyed your time working in Europe as much as I did. I have recently made a switch and I left the broadband group and joined the Transwestern Pipeline Marketing team.

I'll talk to you later,

Mark

Mark & Scott,

As there has been significant changes at Enron over the last few months, I wanted to revisit employment opportunities at Enron. With change comes opportunity and I hope both of you have been able to adequately capitalize.

My resume has been updated to reflect the work I have completed this year. As for my immediate schedule, I will be engaged in a consultancy assignment in Europe until November 9, 2001. Thereafter, my schedule appears to be open. I am hopeful we will be able to talk again soon.

Mike,

We have an opportunity that may interest your management team. We publish LNG Express and the related website www.LNGExpress.com. LNG is a unique form of natural gas trade, representing some $20 billion per year and growing at 7-8%/year. The industry is a fairly insular community. Our publication, website, industry reports, databanks, annual conferences and consulting services have grown to be possibly the most visible.

LNG has a growing spot and short-term contract market. There is currently no exchange for global trades. Nor is there an exchange for carrier vessel capacity, excess plant capacity, e-procurement or remote gas leases. LNGExpress.com could be platform for such an exchange with content and readers already established. We might also assist Enron sign up exclusive agreements with LNG suppliers and/or buyers.

Please let me know your thoughts ASAP. I suspect this window of opportunity will close quickly.

Best regards,

Gary,

There were two such events. On the Scott McNelly side, I realized that we weren't too late to change our approach and take a commercial view on technology. None of the other companies were thinking our new way at all plus when someone of the caliber and reputation of McNelly gives you a general approval and confirmation, as a new guy, that meant a lot. It inspired me to keep going on a "nontraditional" path. The other big impact moment was listening and having a brief conversation with John Chambers of Cisco. It was at the eCommerce Summit in Washington DC and he gave his, "its a matter of survival" speech. That really hit me and our conversation was also similar about my new job and Enron's new approach. He gave me a positive response and also gave me some advice that included an observation that the incumbent IT people may not have the abilities to help me lead Enron in the eCommerce world. It was going to take a different kind of technologist. That moment had the most impact on me of the two. I saw John again and spoke with him at an Economist conference in Laguna Niguel and told him of his original impact and I think he appreciated the story. He also was very nice to give me some time to talk after that speech as well.

I hope that clarified things, good luck with the piece.

Thanks, mike

Hi Mike, just one more:

You said, in describing the Sun breakfast, "I'll never forget this; this had a huge impact on the way I ran that group for the next year." What did you mean by that? Just how did it affect your approach?

Thanks again.

Mike, The Enron's Global Asset Management Conference committee would like to invite you to speak on Enron's ebusiness strategy for this conference which is being held at the Woodlands Conference Center on October 8-11. We would like to have you present on October 10, from 9:00-10:00 AM. The conference committee has chosen the One Enron theme since the attendees at the conference are coming from all the Enron business units both domestically and internationally. The estimated attendance at the conference will be 225 Enron and Joint Venture employees. The invitations are being issued enterprise-wide to employees who are engaged in operations/maintenance/purchasing. This conference is the expansion of the annual plant managers' conference that is held each year in Houston. We are replacing it with what we will be a "Best in Class" conference addressing multiple topics that will provide direction that will result in lower costs, increased earnings and employee retention. We will also be utilizing this conference as an additional mentoring activity for our Minority/Women Business Enterprise suppliers. I hope that you will accept our invitation, because I know many of the participates are very interested in learning more about what Enron's ecommerce strategy.

An agenda has been attached for your review, however it is still in development.

If you have any questions, I can be reached at (713) 646-8235.

Gary,

1. Correct 2. Global tech drove and directed the PRC (performance review committee) for all of it's employees. Enron ranks all of it's employees 2 times a year. The employees are examined and given feedback on their performance. It is a very lengthy process but it is very fair and insures and identifies excellent performance. The criteria for the rankings comes from a person's accomplishments, characteristics and customer feedback from numerous sources. It is all on computer and when we discuss a persons performance and ranking, that feedback (primarily from the business unit) is a key driver. Plus, there are business unit reps on the PRC. 3. I guess the way i would describe it would be that on every major expenditure and project, the commercial people involved helped drive the process as well as our group looking at it the same way. An example would be that traditionally any IT group or technologist is in love this the latest and greatest technology. and could look at embedding a new system in the company because it is the latest technology and is very cool. I would ask what commercial function does it perform and how does it give us a competitive advantage. It was a very customer driven (internal and external customers) process. It was also a mind set and paradigm shift internally within the group because they started looking at themselves adding to the bottom line rather than simply a cost center.

I hope that helps.

Sincerely, Mike

Hi Mike, three more questions. I hope I'm not wearing out my welcome.

1. Is Philippe Bibi spelled correctly?

2. You said, "When it came to the review process itself, Global Technology ranked all the employees and peers but the business unit had the greatest influence on where the person actually ranked and was rated." I may not have gotten this down correctly, but I don't quite understand it. Are you saying that IT basically just lists the people but the business units actually rate them?

3. When you refer to taking a "commercial" view of technology, what do you mean exactly and how is that new?

Thanks again.

Christie, a couple of comments on the 3rd paragraph on page 11. It is up to you to decide if it is worth correcting. I didn't know if you had a chance to make the writing better or simply correct mistakes.

1. Page 11: I was president of Houston Pipe Line and Louisiana Resources Company. The term, "Enron pipeline subsidiary" isn't real or correct. You could also restate with, head of Enron's non-regulated pipelines, head of two pipelines, head of an Enron pipeline subsidiary ; something like that. 2. Page 11: On the 5th sentence, it is mixing a couple of thoughts. I would like to add something like, (after officer,) and establishing a unified vision, 3. Page 11: typo. There needs to be an "an" in the last sentence before the word extension.

Thanks, mike

Friends,

Attached is the "Final" draft of the Harvard Business School case study prepared by Harvard Professor Chris Bartlett and his research assistant Meg Wozny. [please scroll down to the end of the next message for the attachment] . The content was developed from interviews with most of you.

Please review the case and let me know of any desired edits/corrections/comments as soon as possible. [One obvious correction is the spelling of Cindy Olson's last name].

We'd like to "sign off" on this within the next 2 or 3 days. Harvard professors are excited about teaching this case this coming semester. In fact, Professor Don Sull will be focusing largely on this Enron Case this semester, culminating in "Enron Day" at Harvard Business School April 26th, featuring Jeff Skilling. Also, Chris and Meg will be in Houston this Thursday, Jan. 11th, 'capping off' their work with video interviews with Ken, Jeff and Louise, which will help "bring the case to life" for the students studying it.

Please forward any edits/corrections/comments to me via E-Mail or via hard copy (please deliver to EB 4710, or call me [3-6117] and we'll have it picked up).

Thanks to everyone for all your contributions to this exciting work!

Gary,

Thanks for the email. Here is my attempt to type out a response. I hope it helps.

1. It was a matrix organization. The IT personnel reported into the Global Tech. group but we did that for communication and consistency purposes rather than simply control. They attended business unit staff meetings and the BU had a great influence in the review process and gave constant feedback. It was vitally important for the "customer" to be happy and that the IT person completed the projects from the BU. When it came to the review process itself, GT ranked all the employees and peers but the business unit had the greatest influence on where the person actually ranked and was rated.
2. When Enron Net Works was formed, nothing really changed on the day to day working of the IT world. IT (Global Technology) was folded into the newly created 5th business unit at Enron. Remember Global Technology had more than IT alone. We had an eCommerce commercial group, a principal investments group and was developing eCommerce or Technology origination roles developing around the world.

Philippe Bibi is the CTO for Enron and Enron Net Works. He is in the office of the chairman of ENW with Greg Whalley, CEO and Louise Kitchen, the newly appointed COO. Both LK and GW are non IT people. There are many VPs on the next level that are IT executives.

3. In a nut shell, Scott grinned when I told him of my 2 weeks experience and title as CEO with Enron's goal of becoming the largest B2B player in the world. He chuckled and said something like, "That sounds like Enron, it always looks at things differently. He then stated that my CEO title and Enron's approach was very unusual but that it would be more common place soon, as this was the way of the future and Enron was the first to recognize it and change its culture".

4. When i used the word cannibalize, I meant that if we didn't change the business ourselves, than our competition would do this for us. For example, we were the leading trader of natural gas in the US by far but we initiated EnronOnline and completely changed the way we traded natural gas and did it for free. Thus we cannibalized our own successful business even when it was going great. We are looking at all of our businesses for changes like that.

Gary, I hoped that helped. Please don't hesitate to contact me if you have any other questions.

Mike

"Gary Anthes" <Gary_Anthes@computerworld.com> on 10/06/2000 04:18:40 PM To: Mike McConnell <mike.mcconnell@enron.com> cc: Subject: Thanks and a few residual questions

Hello Mike,

Thanks for sending me those presentation slides. They are good background. And thanks so much for meeting with Julia and me this week. It was most interesting and helpful. I'm confused on a couple of points, so would you mind answering a few more questions?

1. You said that after Enron created the Global Technology group, you "seeded people out into the business units, and the way we did that is we had those people be totally accountable both to us and to the business unit head." So, at that point it was a sort of matrix organization, with IT people dispersed throughout the business units but at the same time accountable to a central IT organization for things such as standards, is that correct?

2. Then, this spring when Net Works was formed, did those 1,500 IT people essentially leave the business units to join a more traditional IT organization? Roughly how many non-IT people, and of what types, are part of Net Works? Two of the three top managers in Net Works are non-IT (from trading), correct? Does any given IT person now still live in a matrix world with responsibilities to IT and to a business unit?

3. For some reason, my recorder messed up and I couldn't decipher what you said about Scott McNealy's reaction to your background, etc. at the breakfast. Could you repeat that?

4. You said: "We had to cannibalize our own businesses. So what I think you'll see five years from now is that the IT world will look totally different." What did you mean by "cannibalize our own business"?.

Thanks again.

Good morning:

I have returned from an amazing "vacation" in Hawaii and it is good to be home. I played a ton of golf (thanks to my friend Pritch) and even rested some.

I am playing in the Houston City Amateur this Friday, Saturday and Sunday at Memorial Park. To my Houston friends, please feel free to come out to the park if your weekend schedule permits and you want a bit of sun and exercise. I'm first off tomorrw at 7:45am and Saturday, I tee off at 12:15pm.

This was one of the last places Meredith and I were together the day she died. My brother, Ford, is coming in from Austin to caddy for me for this tournament as well as a qualifier for the USGA Mid-Am on Monday at Shadowhawk. It promises to be a special weekend for me and for us.

I continue to walk through the pain and loneliness. Each day seems to bring new challenges, but I press on. I am shocked and saddened by the events on the east coast just like everyone, but we will be a stronger and more compassionate nation going forward. A most unfortunate event, I know there are so many, many families now who can partially identify with my loss.

God bless you all. I look forward to visiting with everyone in the coming weeks and months.

Love,

Tim

Hi Mary Anne -

I am responding to your message on behalf of Mike McConnell. Mike is in Singapore at this time and we are not sure if he will be successful in dialing up to catch up on his e-mail correspondence.

Thank you very much for your message. We solicit one time lump-sum contributions to JDF rather than per mile. In addition, we collect the pledges for the walk - rain or shine. The reason of course is that our main goal is to raise money to find a cure and we would prefer that weather or other elements beyond our control not impact our ability to raise funds.

However, we have a great time on walk day and we have a lot of people turn out for the walk. This year we are anticipating in excess of 500 walkers. The total amount of donations that are turned in by Enron employees are very generously matched dollar-for-dollar by the Enron Foundation. Therefore, the matching forms are not necessary.

If you happen to be in Houston on November 5th we would enjoy having you join us for the walk. If you care to make a donation, it may be mailed to Mike at the following address:

Mike McConnell Enron Global Markets 1400 Smith Street, EB 3328 Houston, TX 77002

If you donate $25 or more you are entitled to an Enron/JDF Walk T-shirt. If you are interested just send us your size (M-L-XL-XXL) and location and we will get one to you.

Thanks again.

Hi Mike - Saw your announcement regarding the walk on WEBSource. Although I don't have the funds to fly down to Houston to participate, I'd be happy to at least make a donation! How are the donations tallied? Pledge per mile walked? Lump sum contribution? Let me know!

I too am an insulin dependant diabetic - for 32 years now - and do know what a child goes through when diagnosed with this disease. I just thank God that I have parents that instilled a strong sense of self and urged me to understand as much about the disease as possible. I've seen too many kids and young adults, in my association with the Oregon Chapter of the JDF, that didn't understand and didn't want to deal with their diabetes - some of them dying at a very young age due to complications. I volunteer my time to talk to newly diagnosed diabetic children, so they and their parents can understand that it isn't a death sentence, it's a way of life. And a way of life that can be long and productive.

Here's wishing you the best in your endeavors on the JDF's behalf.

Dear Mr. McConnell:

I have been referred to you by a neighbor of mine, George Fastuca. I have known George for approximately 18 months and when he heard I was looking to do differently he strongly suggested I contact you. I am searching for a position that will permit me to utilize the broad based business experience I have acquired in commercial and investment banking, industry and public accounting.

Most recently, I was Vice President for American Electric Power Energy Services, a natural gas and electric power trading start up, responsible for business development. As Senior Vice President of Capital Markets at Chase Manhattan Bank, I launched an extremely successful derivative products/structured finance business in Texas and contiguous states. At Continental Bank, Citicorp and Motorola, Inc., I was responsible for a variety of innovative marketing and financial initiatives which included establishing new businesses, restructuring existing businesses and refinancing established or newly acquired businesses.

Attached is a copy of my resume. Qualities which have contributed to my success are:

? Entrepreneurial. 3 of my last 4 positions were start ups or turnarounds. Experience with early stage ventures and acquisition identification. ? Partnership. Ability to build strong relationships by providing solid counsel and negotiating skills. Established and maintained excellent working relationships with other senior operating managers. ? General Management. Have held full P&L responsibilities. Established policies, programs and procedures to achieve growth objectives, including recruitment, evaluation and development of personnel. ? Core Competencies. Development and refinement of organization infrastructure, including external marketing, joint venture relationships, internal operations management, strategic planning and new product development. Have identified and concluded acquisitions. International experience.

I would appreciate the opportunity to speak with you about opportunities at Enron. I will call Cathy this Friday to see if there is an appropriate time when we may speak next week.

Sincerely,

Mike: Understand LNG continues to be an enigma cloaked in a mystery for Enron. We are continuing to expand our coverage and knowledge base of this marketplace, especially in the Western Hemisphere and would like to meet with you to discuss our observations and learn more about Enron's desires in this arena. Also, we have a meeting planned in D.C. in late June, entitled "LNG's Role in North American & Caribbean Gas Supply." With the U.S. hunger for gas and El Paso, AEC and other's announcements of new projects, the meeting should be constructive, especially with DOE and FERC involvement. See summary below. Let me know when you might be available to discuss the LNG marketplace. We've just completed a white paper, entitled "Atlantic-Basin LNG: A Whirling Supply/Demand Balance." You may find our conclusions of interest. Best regards, Bob Nimocks President Zeus Development Corporation www.zeusdevelopment.com 2424 Wilcrest Dr., Suite 250 Houston, TX 77042 Direct: 713-952-9529 Main: 888-GR8-DATA (478-3282) e-mail: bnimocks@zeusdevelopment.com

 TITLE: LNG's Role in North American & Caribbean Gas Supply DATE/LOCATION: Washington D.C., June 27-29 SUMMARY: The winter of 2000/2001 confirmed the shift in the United States from a buyer's to a seller's market. Gas supplies for North America ran short as demand rose from colder weather, higher electricity demand and shortages in storage from the previous year. More and more supply is shifting from the U.S. Gulf Coast to Western Canada as offshore exploration in the Gulf of Mexico has proven disappointing. U.S. demand for power generation is expected to keep gas demand high through the summer of 2001, siphoning off gas that would have been destined for storage. Meanwhile during the long gas bubble of the 1980s, drilling rigs and experienced field personnel dwindled from thousands to several hundred. The current rig count for North American gas exploration and production is near full capacity at just over 600 rigs, so the industry is constrained on how quickly it can recover. The U.S. has not experienced shortages of natural gas like this since the 1970s and early 1980s when it was feared that the nation would run out of gas in 10 years. Four LNG import terminals were built to supply natural gas from North Africa (Algeria). These terminals are capable of supplying up to 5% of total U.S. gas consumption (about one trillion cubic feet per year). Plans are underway to have all four terminals fully operational by the end of 2002; however, more are needed. Conventional wisdom is that no new terminals would be built in the United States due to EPA laws and local citizen protests to any facility perceived to be unsightly or dangerous. Now, El Paso (a company that was burned by Congress in the 1980s by the ruling that take-or-pay LNG contracts with Algeria were invalid) is challenging conventional wisdom. They have announced plans for six new terminals to be built in North America: three in the United States and three in Mexico. New LNG plants in Venezuela, Algeria and Northern Australia might supply these terminals. Other companies, such as Enron and AEC, have announced plans to build terminals in the Caribbean to supply gas to independent power production (IPP) plants ranging from 400 to 1000 megawatts. Moreover, LNG facilities on Caribbean Islands close to Florida might export gas or electricity via undersea pipeline and cable. Floating offshore LNG terminals may also offer a means to bring LNG into the United States with less environmental and community concern. The June 27-29 conference, entitled "LNG's Role in North American & Caribbean Gas Supply," will cover the dynamics that are leading to North American gas supply shortages, how long they are expected to last, and what source of natural gas are available from conventional sources to meet demand. The conference will then focus on opportunities for LNG, including the capacities and timing of current terminals, the prospects for new mainland and offshore terminals, and the opportunity for broader terminal networks in the Caribbean, including those facilities that might supply gas or electricity to the United States. * * *

Jay/Allan,

FYI and evaluation, attached is a business plan from the CALME group. Please let me know what you think. They are trying to play ball and sent this to us. Also they are beginning to call me.

I had planned to send this to you while I was out but it wouldn't go thru properly from San Francisco. Allan, please give her a call and let her know you received it and let her know your overall impression.

By the way, Karen is David Haug's new fiancée.

Broadband trims down at Enron - Houston Chronicle Article

July 12, 2001, 11:41PM Broadband trims down at Enron But quarter's profits increase 40 percent By MICHAEL DAVIS
Copyright 2001 Houston Chronicle Enron Corp. will continue to scale back its money-losing broadband business, shifting personnel back into its high-growth energy segments, the company said Thursday. It will be the second time in four months that Enron has scaled back its broadband business. The company disclosed its intentions as part of its second-quarter results, which included a 40 percent rise in net income. Enron officials still expect the company's broadband business to be a core segment for the company but it has yet to deliver the sort of growth they once envisioned. A deal with Blockbuster that fell through earlier this year was considered a major setback. Enron's broadband business reported a $102 million operating loss, compared with an $8 million operating loss for the same quarter a year ago. Enron said it would significantly reduce spending in its broadband unit "to match the reduced revenue opportunities currently available." Analysts were not surprised by the company's move to reduce its exposure to the broadband market in the near term. "This is just a recognition of reality, not just with them but in general," said Daniel Tulis, energy analyst with Bank of America Securities in New York. "This has been a business that has taken a lot longer to materialize and it has affected everybody. It's just been total devastation in the industry across the board." In April, Enron Broadband Services eliminated up to 250 positions to reflect a softening broadband market. This latest cost reduction will result in more jobs being shifted from the broadband unit's 900-person work force into Enron's energy business, said Jeffrey Skilling, Enron's chief executive officer. "We just need to get the burn rate down, so we are going to redeploy people," Skilling said. Skilling said he remains "absolutely convinced" that broadband is going to be an enormous market for Enron one day but said the company has to adjust to the bandwidth glut the market is experiencing. Overall, the Houston company had second-quarter net income of $404 million, or 45 cents per share, on revenues of $50 billion. That compared with net income of $289 million, or 34 cents per share, on revenues of $16.8 billion in the second quarter of 2000. The company topped Wall Street's expectations slightly. Analysts had expected the company to earn 42 cents per share in the quarter, according to estimates compiled by Thomson Financial/First Call in Boston. Enron told investors that it is now confident it will achieve earnings per share for the year of $1.80, and the company said it expects to earn $2.15 per share in 2002. The 2002 estimate is up about 20 percent from what most analysts were projecting for next year. Shares closed Thursday at $49.55, up 45 cents. Enron's wholesale services business, which includes energy sales and trading, has consistently led the company in growth and operating income. In the second quarter, it had operating income of $802 million, up 93 percent compared with the $415 million it earned in the second quarter 2000. The standout for the quarter in this division was Enron's European operations, which showed a 103 percent increase in natural gas volumes and a 463 percent increase in power volumes. Enron's retail energy services division had operating income of $60 million in the second quarter compared with $46 million in the previous year's second quarter. In the second quarter, $7.2 billion of new contracts were completed, the company said. Enron's transportation and distribution business, which includes its natural gas pipelines and its Portland General electric utility, had operating income of $77 million, which was exactly the amount it earned in the comparable quarter last year.

I had a message from Jennifer Greenwell wanting to know the status of the Cost estimate. I probably didn't make myself clear in the memo below, but I thought you were going to call her back. Let me know if you need me to contact her. Our usual procedure is to contact the client only when clarification is needed, otherwise all transactions are between you and them.

Mark:

I called Tommy Edwards(713-209-1112) with Cima yesterday morning and talked with him about his plans for the new interconnect he has proposed. They have completed 1 well and will drill up to 4 more development wells, in the near future. The location he verified is Sec. 31, T19S, R21E, Eddy County, New Mexico. He called us wanting an I/C, because the old map he was using indicated that Enron owned the lines. The problem is that these were the gathering lines that we sold to Agave 5-6 years ago. We still own the Atoka #1, 2 & 3 gathering compression units and the main branch lines, but these wells will have to be connected to the Agaves Gathering system. I spent some time looking at this yesterday afternoon and have not relayed this information to him. Please call me to discuss any concerns, before you call Tommy.

Mark: I have talked with Jennifer Greenwell about the Nadel & Gussman, Buffalo Hunt # 21 well to be drilled starting on or around October 15, 2001. The target is the Atoka Morrow formation with expected volumes of about .5 to 1.0 mmbtu/d with a working pressure of 600 psig. The well location is about a mile off of our 24" WTX Lateral at Mile Post 28.5 south of Station # 9. N&G will have to set a small compressor to get into TW, because the line pressures are in the range of 750 - 950 psig. The alignment sheets do not indicate an existing tap on either of our lines, a new hot tap will be required for connection. The volumes are so small that it appears it might be more cost effective to lay the 5 mile of line pipe to Agave. The following are the results of a discussion I had with the Earl (E&C) on the costs required to connect to our system.

Hot Tap and EFM $75,000 H2S & H2O $24,000 Unknowns $30,000 Totals $129,000

Basically, the range is around the $100K to $130K level. I will need to verify with the Carlsbad Team about the project if it looks like a go. Jennifer was going to use the numbers to figure her cost/benefit analysis for choosing TW or Agave. My recommendation would be to go to Agave, if she can justify the costs for 5 miles of line.

A quick heads-up. Our initial VAR calculations from Bjorn suggest a current increase in John's VAR from $8.3MM to $11.5MM in total. Bjorn is still working with Scott Earnest in regard to position limits.

A few other facts from Rick Causey's meeting yesterday with Mike Patrick and Rodney Faldyn. Rick asked questions regarding (1) how EGM would manage these positions, (2) how we would manage the securities law issue of short-swing profits (Section 16 in the SEC 1934 Act) regarding the FAS 140 and the restructure of the subordinated units in 3Q on which corporate development is working, (3) disclosure of the transaction and sensitivities due to the affiliated parties and (4) whether or not the FAS 125/140 structure makes the most sense versus other EWS earnings. I may need to ask you guys to call Rick on #4 to let him know how important this is for EGM and that Stan and Rod are comfortable with the FAS 125/140 deal. John and I will follow-up with Rick on #1. We are working on structuring around issue #2 and we will be working with Koenig's group next week regarding issue #3. We are currently in discussions with AA regarding their recommendation concerning disclosure which will be the input for which Rex Rogers and Mark Koenig will be looking.

Thanks.

All,

Attached is a resume for Trevor Woods. Trevor worked with me at HPL and directly for me in Technology. He is outstanding and left to do the dot com thing with his brother-in-law who was CEO of this company. He is interested to come back to Enron and is talking to various people around Enron. He has offer opportunities at EBS and EES and has been talking with Billy Lemmons about ag. Trevor is great and would be excellent in a Jr. commercial roll in an origination type of function.

He is interested in moving pretty quickly and if you have an interest please contact him in the near future.

Shanna can coordinate the times but i recommend him highly and he would be an asset to EGM.

Pipeline: The proposed location would connect to TW's Leedy Lateral, this gas goes to Ivanhoe Dehy. then routes to Bushton processing. All of our lines are mainlines; however, it is fair to say that the Leedy Lateral gas quality can be compared to that of gathering gas quality (dehydration is required). The capacity at the Ivanhoe dehy needs to be checked to see if additional capacity would be available for the quantity that you have in mind.

Pressure: MAOP of Leedy Lateral varies from 1125 to 1200 psi. Operating pressures in the past year have been between 650 and 950 psig.

Cost: Approximate 4 on 16 hot tap costs would be between $60-75K. We can price measuring/regulating facilities when expected volume is provided to Planning.

How's it going in Brazil? I know you are happy to be back.

I transferred out of EBS and got back into the gas business. I'm working for the pipeline group. The people here are very nice and I'm glad to be back in this industry. Although, I must say that I will miss London and working with people like yourself.

I got a message from Martin Joergansen the other day. Do you happen to know his email address? Please let me know.

Jorge,

For tomorrow's meeting about the rate and term of the gas to potentially flow on the proposed Trans Pecos Pipeline, we would like to discuss the following rate scenario based on our Level A engineering assessments:

Volume Rate Years

240,000MMbtu/d $.25/MMBTU 1 through 15

26,000MMbtu/d additional volume $.25/MMBTU 3 through 15

40,000MMbtu/d additional volume $.25/MMBTU 4 through 15

306,000 MMbtu/d total contracted by year 4

Any changes to the volumes or timing of additional gas will effect the rate.

Howdy Heidi,

Well, your name is still on the list so that is good. I hope all is well with you and your hubby.

Awfully weird times here in the home office. Really strange vibes all over the building...people wondering about their jobs, sad about their retirement accounts and wonderment about how a proud (maybe too proud) Fortune 10 company could go down in ~3 weeks. I guess it is the same or similar there too.

The pipeline group is working out. I really like the people and am starting to get comfortable with the business and my regulated surroundings.

Please respond and let me know what you are up to and how you are doing. I'm so sorry we didn't hook up when you were in town last time.

Lay/Chavez call memo

File	mcconnell-m/notes_inbox/85.

Attached is a revised prep memo for the referenced phone call. The project team decided to change the focus to a much greater concentration on timing issues and a message that Enron may have to shift resources elsewhere if Project Jose cannot move quickly. Please review and return any comments at your earliest convenience. If you have any questions or wish to discuss, please contact me at X-52709, emilio at X-52710, or guido at X-52707.

Mike: We will advise you ASAP next week when all comments are in and the memo is ready to be passed on to Lay.

Tom/John: We think the call should take place some time during the week of June 18. Our thinking is that a good way to approach setting up the call may be to go through Venezuelan Ambassador Arcaya. Would you please assist in setting up a meeting for the project team with the Ambassador in the near future.

USG/TW Letter of Credit needs met

Sender	mark.mcconnell@enron.com
Recipients	['rcooper@usg.com']

Rob,

After reviewing the current status of United States Gypsum Company and Transwestern's status as a creditor of Administrative Claims, we will not proceed in seeking the additional $455,300 letter of credit (worth approximately 8 months of reservation charges). The current letter of credit valued at $227,650 is sufficient.

Also, our timing for the completion of the Red Rock Expansion that will make this capacity available is still on schedule for June 1, 2002. In our latest discussions with SOCAL, they have indicated that their expansion of the SOCAL Needles delivery point will be completed by that time. It would probably be best for you to discuss this with them yourself to verify its availability completely and thoroughly.

Please call me if you have any additional questions.

Best regards,

Sounds good. I was in Norman this last week...recruiting, golf and KSU game (close). I also picked up my tickets for this weekend. I don't like thinking about the game, it makes me nervous but that is the fun of it.

By the way, can you tell me the line? I'm sure you are favored.

this is very surreal right now. i am doing alot of dammage control in rac as you can imagine. it is an amazing learning experience, but it has been very stressful.

erica is going to be done with enron by the end of december and then probably move back to d.c. she is totally fine with this now expecially given the current environment at enron.

i am sure that andy is happy in denver. it is a great place to live.

i'm doing ok. i'm really looking forward to coming home for t-day and hangin' with the fam.

how are you doing at enron??

What is going on? I heard from Erica that she may have some decisions to make soon. Are you going through the same thing? I'm interested to know.

I heard from Andy Maus last week. He is doing some contract work for Enron. He and his family are enjoying Denver.

Please call or email me.

I hope all is well.

Marissa,

Hey! Just thinking about you. I hope all is well out west. Things here are sure interesting. You should be very happy that you are not still here going through this stuff. I feel pretty fortunate to be in the pipeline group. This group is pretty lean so hopefully, there won't be many cuts (although I am the new boy in the group). Many of the other groups are getting pretty anxious, including our former bunch. We should find out pretty soon.

I was in Salt Lake City a couple of weeks ago and I called Rhondo. He is working for the IOC and is in charge of all the fund raising for the Olympic charities. It seems to be right up his ally. He asked me to tell you hello.

Sarah and I took vacation last week. I played golf in San Antonio (La Cantarra - in case Will is wondering - excellent course) and also played here in Houston with Frank, Marc and Bradford Brooks. It was fun.

Please write back and let me know how you are doing. How's the job, How's Will, How's LA, How was Thanksgiving...many questions.

I really can't believe things happened the way they did. I thought everything was set for you guys to get another opportunity for the national championship. I also thought the case for Roy Williams to win the Heisman would become really strong. I didn't get to watch the OU-OSU game, but I received about 30 phone calls the last two minutes of the game.

I am excited that some breaks have gone our way, but it will be difficult to beat CU twice in one season. Also, I am not sure that I want to ever play Miami after seeing them the last two weeks.

Don't be too upset, you guys are going to be tough next year and you are riding a two year win streak on us right now....(11-0 would sound a lot better than 10-1).

I'll be heading to Dallas early Saturday morning.

I wanted to confirm with you that you have a 2 PM tee time on Wednesday, January 3rd at the Doral Resort and Spa's Blue Course (The Blue Monster). My future father-in-law, Tom Neville, the Tournament Director for the Genuity Championships (formerly the Doral Ryder Open), has reserved your tee time and should you have any problems please contact him at the tournament office (305-477-4653 ext. 3058).

He also suggested that you might want to arrive a little early because there could be a possibility of teeing off a little earlier than 2 PM. FedEx has a tournament scheduled beginning with shotgun start at 9 AM and depending on quickly they get around, you could get on the course before 2:00.

Should you have any questions, please feel free to contact me here at work, (713) 345-8741, or on my cell phone, (713) 582-7596.

I got a call from Questar's Jodi Starling this morning. She said an original document is missig from the data room and was wondering if someone brought it home by mistake.

The missing information is the Dandby section from the Asset Binder. It had a grey card-stock cover. We can certainly keep a copy but they need the original back. With all of the paper floating around the tables, it is likely to have been mixed up with some copies that were given to us. Anyway, please check your stuff and see if this got in there.

Also, the late copies she was making for us (including the stuff from Colleen) will be mailed overnight to Kim on Friday. We'll get the information passed out when we get it.

It should make for a fun trip.

When are you guys going down and where are you staying? We need to set up a time to get together and to get the tickets. Have you heard anything on Hieple (bad spelling) arm? If he is healthy I would take the points!

We have made reservations for Continental for spring break but need to make sure that the timing is fine before we confirm. We plan to fly out on Tuesday and return on Saturday. I have a scheduling problem to get there any earlier.

Give me a call if it is convenient, (713) 853-1450. I've got a very light schedule on Friday, or you can email, whichever is easier.

See you in a couple of days!

Yeah, what a game. That 7 - 3 score that held most of the game was a killer on the nerves. Both Defenses looked very good. Both offenses looked like they were playing very good defenses.

I do like our coaching staff. Bob hasn't always had things go his way. During his first season (7-5) he tried some different type plays and many didn't go his way including a fake field goal in the Independence Bowl that probably cost us the game. That being said, he has had a pretty good string lately.

Good luck with the rest of the season.

Great game. Until somebody beats y'all, you should be number one as far as I am concerned. Great play by Roy Williams. I couldn't believe how poorly both teams ran the football...and for that matter how poor both offenses looked. I will say that both defenses looked tough. It was tough to watch the collapse in the final two minutes.

I love our staff, but unfortunately, I think we were outcoached. That being said, Bob Stoops could be the luckiest coach in the world....everything seems to fall his way. He is a great coach.

Take care and I guess I am stuck waiting another 363 days.

St. Paul's United Methodist Church Habitat for Humanity Project

October 22, 2001

My apologies to those of you that did not find the new site last Saturday. The Habitat folks were supposed to have someone visit the Chickasaw site, but it appears that did not happen.

Our family, the Franco's, were at the Tangiers site Saturday, dressed in our St.Paul's/Habitat tee shirts. Fourteen year old Jose, Jr., was in the middle of the construction, cutting door openings with a Sawzall. Imagine his pride in helping build his family's home.

We (I) had a problem with mosquitos, ants and poison ivy last Saturday. We will have lots of bug repellent and I will try to rope off the poison ivy. If you have concerns, please see me at the registration table Saturday.

Special thanks to Jeanie Koch for assembling a first aid kit and standing at the ready; to Mark McConnell for finding hard hats for our group; to Ken Jones for coffee, donuts, juice and soda to keep us fueled all day, and to all the workers who managed to complete the interior walls and to cap the exterior walls, and still get us out by 3:30!

Alternate route: From Highway 290, take the 43rd Street exit and go west. 43rd Street turns into Clay Road. Continue on Clay to Gessner. Right on Gessner approximately ? mile to Tangiers, which is the third street on the left. Left on Tangiers to 10223 on the left.

I have attached a schedule for the remaining weeks of the Project. Please let me know if additional changes are needed.

See you Saturday!

Les

Mr. Joergensen,

A big "Howdy" from your Texas friend.

I was so glad to get your voice message the other day (week). It is always nice to pick up a voicemail and have it turn out to be a colleague from the not so distant past. I hope you and your family are doing well.

As EBS changed direction, I did as well. I decided to get back to my roots in the gas and gas asset business. I looked inside of Enron and also with some outside companies and decided to work with Transwestern pipeline (an Enron company). I've been here for about a month and all is well. The people here are very nice and very genuine (just like my old friends from London). It is weird to actually have a product to sell - if you know what I mean. I think I'll like it but I'm already missing my travels in your neck of the woods. Also, I'm home so much now, my wife doesn't know what to do with me.

I'm still saddened by the demise of our Blockbuster/VOD deal. It was a great concept and it worked. Oh well. We'll see it someday, I'm just not sure who is going to win the race on getting it to the public in bulk.

Christian sent an email to me and he seems to be doing fine, loving Rio but still looking for a job. Speaking of that, I hope your job is going well and as secure as it can be in today's climate.

It is a strange time here in America. The terrorist attacks, the retaliation in Afghanistan and the constant update on new discoveries of the spread of Anthrax are constantly being talked about and on every news channel. It is amazing how a handful of people can create such sadness and effect the world in so many ways. There is no doubt that the spirit of the people will prevail.

Take care Martin. It was great to hear your voice.

your WHEREAS clause is fine. We can develop a list but again it usually only covers a specific transaction

From: McConnell, Mark Sent: Monday, November 12, 2001 4:58 PM To: Huber, Lee Subject: RE: Aquila Confidentiality Agreement

I'll change the "Transaction" definition and the first WHEREAS to:

WHEREAS.....relating to the possible purchase by Transwestern of Company's weather derivative product (the "Transaction"). Is this okay?

When I was working on the VOD team at EBS, we talked with so many companies (as did other groups within EBS). It was handy to know who was tied to us with a conf. agreement. I thought it might be helpful here too.

You need to change the definition of Transaction in the first WHEREAS clause and then you can send it.

I could put together a list we have copies of them in the legal dept. What do you want to use the list for??

Lee,

I made the changes to the Duke confidentiality agreement that you sent me, basically just the name changes. Is there anything else I need to do, or can I just print this out and send it to them? Please let me know.

Also, Is there a list of companies that have a confidentiality agreement with Transwestern?

Mark: Sorry I missed your meeting. I had a conflict and thought Guthrie was going to attend. From a tax prospective, we are interested in the ad valorem (property tax) issues and sales and use tax issues related to the purchase. There should not be any federal or state income tax issues related to the purchase. I will make sure Gavin Russo's team is aware of this purchase. Although there won't be any income tax issues I would like to review the purchase/sale document when a draft is circulated.

Maryfran,

I would like to thank you for your very nice nomination. As flattered as I am, I believe that our current Chief Technology Officer, Philippe Bibi, is more appropriate as a nominee from Enron. I am very proud of our accomplishments when I was responsible as CEO for Enron's Global Technology group but my tenor was only about a year. In August I was asked to take on another assignment as CEO of Enron Global Markets. Although this was an even more challenging position I will say that it was a tough decision to leave the technology world.

Philippe Bibi has driven our technology group for many years and deserves a great deal of the credit for Enron's recognized technology advantage and innovation. He has been in the tech business for about 17 years.

Sincerely, Mike S. McConnell

Congratulations! You've been nominated for Computerworld's Premier 100 IT Leaders for 2001. Our annual list honors the 100 most accomplished IT leaders for their achievements in technology, innovation and management. Winners will be notified by year's end and then publicly announced in a special issue on March 26, 2001.

Please fill out the Premier 100 questionnaire (click on the link below), which covers your background, management style, IT organization and IT projects, as well as your thoughts on leadership and innovation. We will use the information in these questionnaires in our final judging process as we choose the Premier 100 IT Leaders for 2001.

Mr. McConnell,

I am a Management Information Systems professor at the University of Oklahoma. I heard you speak about EnronOnline approximately a year ago during one of your visits to the University of Oklahoma. I was captivated by your talk and continue to be impressed with EnronOnline's success in the world of e-business.

With this email I am inviting you to serve on a panel that I am assembling for the International Conference on Information Systems (ICIS) in New Orleans, Louisiana on December 16-19, 2001. ICIS is the premiere conference for IS academicians and is described at <http://isds.bus.lsu.edu/icis2001/> Approximately 1200 IS researchers and professors from around the world, as well as IS practitioners, are expected to attend this year's conference. Thus, this conference has a very broad reach within the IS academic community. The panel would be a wonderful venue to share with the IS research and teaching community the e-business inroads that EnronOnline is making.

The topic of the panel would be to explore your projections and that of the other panelists about how electronic exchanges may morph over the next five years. You would also be asked to describe the business model used by EnronOnline, and talk about factors promoting its success and issues warranting attention for its future growth.

The other three panelists would be myself, Arun Rai (Professor at the eCommerce Institute at Georgia State University), and Marshall McGraw (Business Services Manager for Information & Technology Services at Phillips Petroleum). The panel would last approximately 1 1/2 hours, but I would not know the specific day (i.e., Dec 17th, 18th or the morning of Dec 19th) until early Fall.

I would like to call you and talk with you about your interest in serving on the panel. I will call you on Monday (after you have had some time to recover from your latest trip to Norman).

Sincerely,

Hey Mark, (as they used to say in London)

You're right: i came down here in the beginning of the month and I am now slowly setting up shop down here in wonderful Rio de Janeiro. Things are going well, but the jobsearch is not gonna be easy now that we are facing a worldwide recession.

I saw that Enron took a huge beating today after some SEC inquiry. Nasty stuff, if you ask me. From being the darling on Wall Street, we are now back to being the ugly duckling (old Danish fairytale, of course).

I can understand that your are happy about being out of EBS, ?cos it seemed like you were often stuck between a rock and a hard place. Maybe the pipeline business is a little safer....maybe. Anyway, I'd like to say that it was also a great pleasure to work with you: it's refreshing to work with somebody stable, smart and trustworthy.

I did meet up with Martin briefly as he joined in for my goodbye party in London. His e-mail address is mjoergensen@netlane.com <mailto:mjoergensen@netlane.com> He also has quite an uphill struggle in front of him: looking to start up a sort of recruiting company that exploits the differences in wages between eastern and western telecomengineers. With wife and three kids waiting at home, it's not a position that I envy him, frankly.

Well, young man. Take care with strange looking envelopes containing white sugar etc. If you feel that it's getting too crazy up there, you know that you will always have a place to stay in calm (!) Rio de Janeiro.

Gaza Transfer Agreement

Mike-

As we discussed, the timing of the Gaza Transfer Agreement has once again become critical. This e-mail will give you some background as to the situation.

We financially closed the $90MM loan for the Gaza project last June. There was a CP from the banks that the remaining $20MM of equity would not need to be in the Project company until a date in the future. This was done because the project was placing a $20MM IPO locally and it was not possible to complete the IPO before the debt financing. The IPO has been successfully subscribed; however, Enron has been blocking the transfer of the IPO funds into the project company as we must have certain minor share transfers completed prior to the transfer of the IPO funds in order to solidify our U.S. tax deferral structure.

One of the covenants of the debt financing is that we must maintain a certain debt to equity ratio in order to be able to draw more debt. The project has now reached the point in which it can no longer draw debt proceeds until the remaining $20MM of equity (the IPO funds) are transferred into the project account as these equity funds are required in order to allow for our debt/equity ratio to be preserved. The timing of this issue is being driven by the fact that the project has to pay interest and commitment fees to the bank on the 3rd of January. The only source of these payments are the IPO funds that must be transferred.

As mentioned above, Enron requires several minor share transfers in order to preserve the U.S. tax deferral structure (5 or 10 shares need to be exchanged in several companies in the chain). These transfers must take place before the IPO funds are put into the Project Company. The language of these minor transfers have been agreed among the partnership. However, the partners are refusing to execute these minor transfers until Enron executes the Transfer Agreement.

When the Gaza project was being conceived, the former CALME management agreed to the Transfer Agreement and this agreement was memorialized in detail in the Joint Venture Agreement among the parties. The Transfer Agreement provides no party may have a change in control of their ownership in the project without the consent of the other parties. The JVA expressly states that this transfer restriction is to be entered into by Enron Corp. and that the restrictions on change of control apply all the way up the ownership chain to Enron Corp. as well as to the other partners ultimate parent entities.

A draft of this Transfer Agreement has been previously reviewed by Mark Metts. Mark indicated that he was not comfortable with the nature of the agreement; however, this was last summer when Enron was re-evaluating its position with respect to its international assets and it was thought that the Gaza project may have soon not been part of Enron.

The Gaza team has spent a great deal of time over the past six months trying to either soften the nature of the Transfer Agreement or to make the restriction apply to some entity lower in the ownership chain than Enron Corp. These efforts have been unsuccessful as the partners claim that the Transfer Agreement was a "pillar" of the deal that we had and furthermore that this deal had been agreed directly with very senior Enron personnel.

Therefore, it appears that we must deal with the Transfer Agreement now in order to allow Enron to preserve its tax deferral position, transfer the IPO funds and ultimately allow the project to meet its debt service obligations to the bank on January 3rd. We have tried to bring this issue to a close sooner, but the parnters have delayed resolution until now. The timing of this is unfortunate, but probably not accidental from our partners position.

You may reach me at any time at 502.458.4985 (through Thursday afternoon) or at 713.522.4802 (home) or 713.818.9019 (mobile) beginning Thursday evening. I appreciate your giving this attention during the holidays.

Wednesday July 18, 6:06 am Eastern Time Press Release Charter, DIVA Expand Agreement to Deliver Video On Demand to a Total of 1.7 Million Customers ST. LOUIS, Mo. and REDWOOD CITY, Calif.--(BUSINESS WIRE)--July 18, 2001-- DIVA's Dominance of Commercially Deployed VOD Markets in the U.S. Surpasses 60 Percent Charter Communications Inc. (Nasdaq:CHTR - news), the nation's fourth-largest cable operator, and DIVA(TM), the video-on-demand solutions leader for the cable TV industry, today announced a new agreement that will expand the total number of Charter customers capable of receiving VOD via DIVA's software and hardware solutions to 1.7 million. Building on their existing agreement, Charter and DIVA will bring VOD to new markets across the country, continuing the strong momentum of DIVA's VOD rollouts in the U.S. This rollout follows recent Charter deployments in St. Louis and three of the 10 largest U.S. television markets: Los Angeles, Fort Worth and Atlanta. Charter is deploying the service on both Scientific Atlanta and Motorola digital set-top boxes. "Although it's early in the deployment cycle, we're already seeing significant benefits from Video on Demand," said Steve Silva, Senior Vice President of Corporate Development & Technology for Charter Communications. "VOD is a compelling return for our investment, both from incremental revenue and customer retention. Charter believes DIVA's integrated solutions, repeatable implementation process and high quality of support and service enable us to provide our customers with the best VOD service available today. From the comfort of their homes, our customers can experience the convenience of gaining access to a large library of DVD-quality programming content with full VCR functionality, a service that our satellite competitors cannot duplicate or provide." "We have remained committed to delivering the most comprehensive, easy-to-use VOD solutions to the cable industry. The additional Charter deployments have significantly expanded our agreement and have enabled DIVA to maintain its position as the leader in VOD," said Henk Hanselaar, President and CEO of DIVA. "Charter is a key partner for DIVA because of its aggressive approach to providing consumers with the most advanced digital cable offering today. Charter's ability to roll out VOD services and provide high-quality support to its customers make it a leader in the cable community. We are pleased to serve more Charter customers and look forward to continuing our goal of deploying VOD in more neighborhoods across America." With DIVA's technology, Charter's customers have complete control over their viewing experience and, with VCR-like capabilities, can watch new releases, classic films and basic and premium cable programming including Discovery Channel, PBS and ESPN, as well as children's programming. Charter and DIVA are also exploring the opportunity to offer content via Subscription Video On Demand (SVOD) packages. With SVOD, a customer would have unlimited access to view titles within the SVOD package, without incurring additional fees. Today's announcement of additional rollouts in key markets affirms the high level of commitment both DIVA and Charter share in delivering the best VOD solutions today. About Charter Charter Communications (Nasdaq:CHTR - news), a Wired World(TM) company, is among the nation's largest broadband communications companies, currently serving some 7 million customers in 40 states. Commercial high-speed data, video and Internet solutions are provided under the Charter Business Networks(TM) brand. Advertising sales and production services are sold under the Charter Media(TM) brand. More information about Charter can be found at www.charter.com . About DIVA DIVA Systems Corporation (www.divatv.com) is the nation's leading video-on-demand (VOD) provider to the cable television industry. DIVA has either deployed or has commitments to deploy in 26 markets by three of the top eight U.S. operators, AT&T Broadband, Charter Communications and Insight Communications, which together reach 44 percent of all U.S. digital cable subscribers. DIVA offers a choice of services in a complete VOD solution, including content aggregation and distribution, software and server technologies, billing and support services. Founded in June 1995, DIVA is a privately held company and is headquartered in Redwood City, Calif. DIVA's strategic investors include Charter Communications, NTL, OpenTV, Starz Encore, Liberate and Motorola. More information can be found at www.divatv.com. This press release contains 'forward-looking' statements pertaining to DIVA, including, but not limited to, the ability of DIVA

to provide large scale deployment of its video-on-demand and subscription video-on-demand products and services to Charter Communications' customers effectively, in a timely manner, and customer acceptance thereof. Actual results may vary from anticipated results and such differences may be material based on a number of factors, including the commercial viability and scalability of DIVA's video-on-demand products and the extent of Charter Communications' deployment of these products.
